Will It Be War?
Gold Keeps Coming.
Mr. Rockefeller Recovers.
Carnera Drops In.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

FRANCE BEGINS to develop a Hitler complex. Doumergue, 71 years old, reveals a "mailed fist," tells the volatile French chamber what it may and may not do. When trouble comes, someone must take charge, as Mussolini, Kemal and Stalin have shown.

FIGHTING continues in Austria, spreading to small villages. Italian troops are sent to the border.

Italy, like France, is prepared to help Dollfuss suppress the half-starved workers. Britain warns Europe "Hands off Austria," not that Italy, France or England cares what happens to crippled Austria. They do not want Hitler to walk in.

ONE STEAMER is about landing forty-two million dollars of gold, which will be added to Uncle Sam's hoard. Gold is coming here at the rate of one hundred millions a week.

The President says we do not need gold. "We are "off it." The ordinary citizen may not have any, it is not good for him. But Europe insists on sending it, by the hundreds of millions.

Much more may come, as the war danger becomes greater. The British government is said to believe that Japan and Russia will fight surely.

Whatever happens, this country will stay out of it, and investments here, with all our uncertainties, attract Europe.

THE WISDOM of Japan should prevent the war that is predicted. Russia could be hurt, but not conquered, and her men are double, her resources ten times the men and resources of Japan.

Stalin is no feeble Czar. He would sign no treaty not based on victory.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, whose illness has worried his family for some months, has recovered and is on the way to his winter home.

Those who understand the work that Mr. Rockefeller has done, for industry, science, health and knowledge, will be glad to learn of his recovery, and glad that he can travel in comfort, warm coat, fur gloves, flannel-lined overshoes.

ALL THAT is not too much for a man far past ninety, who has given to useful public purposes more money than any other ten men who have ever given in the world's history, five hundred millions of dollars, at least, to increase knowledge, promote science, protect public health.

And, more valuable to the human race than all the millions wisely given, is Mr. Rockefeller's contribution to efficiency in industry, his demonstration that the public is best served by wide co-operation, not by wasteful, extravagant competition.

WHAT MR. ROCKEFELLER'S ascetic life has been, compared with that of "Coal Oil Johnny," taking his bath in champagne; his industrial methods of production and distribution have been compared with the wasteful competition that he found in every business, when he left his father's little house in the Catskill Mountains, and took his first step in the world's business.

BY THE WAY, you remember that Mr. Rockefeller's five partners, some sixty years ago, decided that he knew nothing about the oil business, and forced him to buy them out. They said he was narrow-minded, in a business way, because he "would not branch out."

Mr. Rockefeller, who told this writer about it, has branched out since then. His tin cans are scattered from New Jersey to Thibet and China, from Seattle to Patagonia.

It cost his five partners about five hundred million dollars, among them, to decide that Mr. Rockefeller "knew nothing about the oil business."

MR. JAMES J. JOHNSTON, who promotes fights and THINKS, came to call, bringing Primo Carnera, tall, powerful Italian heavyweight champion of the world.

They approached like Mahout and the elephant, only Mahout Johnston walked, instead of riding. You thought of the well-informed jackal leading the lion to its prey, or the rhinoceros bird telling the rhinoceros when to look up and pay attention.

THE BIGGEST things that nature does are interesting, as when she builds a huge Pacific, throws the Himalayas into the air, or constructs Primo Carnera, standing six feet six above the soles of his feet, weighing 270 pounds ordinarily, 258 pounds when he fights, trained.

Carnera became heavyweight champion of the world last June 4, defeating Mr. Sharkey. Since then he has defended his title once in Rome, with Mussolini and 75,000 other Italian looking on, near the Villa Borghese.

The giant Basque, Uzcudun, as big as Carnera, was the other man in the fight. He lost.

ON THE twenty-eighth of this month, Carnera defends his title again. Mr. Tommy Loughran, described by Mr. Johnston as "a good, hard fighter, and really religious—he goes to church every day," will be the victim or victor in that fight.

There are various things that you would prefer to being Tommy Loughran on the twenty-eighth, although Carnera is a good-natured giant, never loses his temper when hit in face or stomach.

The "rabbit punch" on the back of the neck, he does not know. The back of his neck is too high up.

MR. JOHNSTON, as "promoter," arranges boxing matches for a consideration, does not manage fighters. But

Banker Questioned at Hearing on P. R. R. Directorship

By JOHN P. COWAN
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Richard King Mellon, 34-year-old president of the Mellon National Bank, Pittsburgh, today was compelled by the Interstate Commerce Commission to disclose shareholdings in more than a score of great industrial corporations.

Appearing before the commission in an effort to secure its approval of his application to become a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad and its affiliates, the youthful scion of the Mellon dynasty testified that he would not seek in any way to divert traffic to the Pennsylvania lines from any of the numerous Mellon-controlled interests.

ON STAND FOR HOUR

He was on the stand for more than an hour and readily answered questions fired at him by examiners.

He emphasized that a directorate in the Pennsylvania Railroad has been a tradition in the Mellon family for more than half a century. His grandfather, the late Judge Thomas Mellon, and his father, R. B. Mellon, who died recently, both served actively on the board, young Mellon asserted.

Richard King Mellon was elected president of the Mellon Bank this month and has gradually been taking over control of many of the interests of his father.

Mr. Mellon, reciting the long list of corporations in which he is interested, declared that he would find time to give strict attention to the affairs of the railroad, and explained that in matters affecting the interlocking control of corporations and the Pennsylvania

M'Nair Walks Out On Balky Students

Mayor McNair walked out of a class in the Leisure Time Day School at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. today when the 275 students present refused to mount his single tax hobby horse with him. When some 20 students refused to rise in a standing vote for taxing the Schenley estate, McNair said:

"I'm going to leave if you don't all vote for me."

They didn't. He left, forgetting his coat and hat.

Wingless Autogyro Lands Vertically

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(Universal)—A wingless and tailless autogyro with a speed of 115 miles an hour has been developed in Manchester, England, the Commerce Department was advised today.

The machine takes off in ten yards and lands vertically with a run of less than a yard. Both horizontal and vertical movements are controlled entirely by rotor blades.

F. X. BUSHMAN JILTS OPERA SINGER

Breaks Engagement to Carmela Ponselle to Re-Wed First Wife

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—The wedding plans of Francis X. Bushman have taken a sudden and dramatic turn and his third marriage may be to his first wife, he said today.

His engagement to Carmela Ponselle, opera singer, announced last week, has been broken.

He announced a possibility of reconciliation with his first wife, Mrs. Josephine Bushman, of Beverly Hills, mother of five of his six children, from whom he was divorced in 1918. His marriage to Beverly Bayne followed the next day.

The publicity attendant on his and Miss Ponselle's announcement of their forthcoming wedding, Bushman said, resulted in telephone calls, telegrams and cables of protests from his children, some of whom are now married. They wanted him to talk to their mother in California. He did this and old memories were revived. He explained:

"Carmela and I talked it all over. She is big and fine, and she decided that for the sake of the children, we had better call it off."

And now Bushman is planning to go to California to see his first wife as soon as his present engagements will permit.

Bushman procured a marriage license to wed Miss Ponselle, and the singer, when she arrived from the East two days later for an operatic engagement, confirmed his announcement of their coming marriage. At the time, she intended remaining a week or 10 days, but her hotel said she had checked out last Monday.

The first Mrs. Bushman was Josephine Fladuene, of Baltimore. Her marriage to Bushman took place in 1902 when the actor was 18.

Bushman today said:

"She is a very beautiful woman and she has been a fine mother to the children."

He had one child by Beverly Bane. He is now a lad of 14 and is in school in New Jersey.

Soles' Statement to Park

District Attorney Andrew T. Park this afternoon revealed what he identfied as a "confession" made to him on October 6 by Robert Soles.

The District Attorney said the statement was dictated to him by Soles as Soles' remembrance of what occurred on the night of the shooting of Mrs. Soles. Following is the statement:

MR. PARK:

Q.—Now, Bob, just sit down there and tell your story in your own way from the time you were down town.

A.—Now stop me if I get rather bawled up.

MR. CONNORS:

Q.—Just take your time; nobody is rush-

The Other Woman 'Fond' of Soles

MISS ANNA FREE

Mrs. Hardy, McKeesport woman, pictured today at court after she had left the witness stand in the Soles murder case—in which she testified that "I was fond of Mr. Soles." This was after the commonwealth had introduced jewels claimed to have belonged to Mrs. Soles, but that were given to Mrs. Hardy after her death. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

MRS. ROSE HARDY

ADMITS RECEIVING LOAN, CALLS WIFE'S JEWELS 'BUNCH OF JUNK'

BULLETIN

The reputed "confession" in which Robert Soles, on trial for the slaying of his wife, LaRoux, stated he must have fired a shot, was admitted as evidence at his trial late today. The "confession" was read by District Attorney Andrew T. Park after Defense Attorney Oliver K. Eaton tried unsuccessfully to prevent its introduction.

Blonde Rose Hardy today opened wide the door of her walk-up apartment in McKeesport and let the world walk in to see her with Bob Soles.

Courageously, a bit defiantly, she sat down in the witness chair in Criminal Court and toldthe story of her relations with the prosperous ex-Army captain, a story she hopes will save him from being convicted of murdering attractive LaRoux Soles.

She gave Soles an alibi for a part of the time in which LaRoux Soles might have been shot. She said he was with her.

She denied that Soles had ever given her money, but she added without hesitation that he had three times loaned her funds.

She admitted that handsome Bob Soles, whose office was just below her apartment, started coming to see her six months before his wife was found dying in the smartly-appointed Soles home.

She described LaRoux Soles' jewelry which Bob Soles gave her three weeks after the shooting as "a bunch of junk."

She said there was a liquor odor on Soles' breath when he left her apartment after 1 o'clock in the morning on the night his wife was shot.

SMARTLY DRESSED

Smartly dressed, she appeared an attractive woman of perhaps 40 as she sat in the witness chair. At no time did she hesitate in her testimony, she was not confused. Her voice was low and vibrant, but clear. Her clear blue-green eyes frequently showed a flash of fire.

On the stand for 40 minutes, she walked smartly to her seat in the first row, sat down, gently crossed her legs and allowed a small smile to cross her features, unmindful of the gaze of spectators.

She said she was a nurse, a widow and the mother of one child.

She was wearing the same dress she has worn since the trial started—a semi-tailored outfit, the dress of black crepe with an ivory-colored bib collar. Her in-between-season has was silk and broad-rimmed, with a tailored bow and one pearl ornament. She wore suede gauntlet, cream-colored gloves and neutral stockings.

IN POOR HEALTH

In poor health, she made no excuse when Prosecutor Haggerty brought out she has been under a doctor's care.

She testified that Soles reached her apartment shortly after 11 o'clock on the night LaRoux ws shot—shot some time between 11 and 3 a. m., the state contends.

Haggerty asked:

"How long did he stay there?"

Mrs. Hardy replied:

"He stayed until after 1."

"Mrs. Hardy, how do you fix the time so definitely?"

"Well, I glanced at the clock. I knew it was after 1, and I told him it was after 1 and he'd better go."

To Prosecutor Haggerty's question, "Were you in love with him?" Mrs. Hardy said:

"I was fond of Mr. Soles."

"Was Mr. Soles in love with you?"

"I couldn't say that."

It was in Mrs. Hardy's apartment that county detectives claim jewels belonging to LaRoux Soles, the defendant's slain wife, were found four months after she committed suicide or was murdered.

At 3 o'clock in the morning of October 6 two county detectives

JOLSON CLOSES WINCHELL FEUD

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Broadway today learned that the historic feud between two of its leading figures, Walter Winchell and Al Jolson, is apparently ended.

The conflict, which began when Jolson "socked" Winchell in Hollywood because he thought his wife, Ruby Keeler, had been disparaged in a movie scenario written by the famous columnist, moved into its final chapters when Jolson admitted it was "all a mistake."

The mammy singer's admission, it was learned, was made in the course of a luncheon speech in Washington, when he said:

"I guess it was a little mistake on my part."

Just after the fight in Hollywood, Jolson said he would apologize if he ever found he was misinformed.

Death Takes Brown, Noted Phila. Lawyer

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—William Findlay Brown, vice president of the Fairmount Park Commission and well known attorney, died today at the age of 72.

HINT DOLLFUSS DEATH PLOT

VIENNA, Feb. 16. — (AP.) — Except for rumors of attempted assassinations, threats of sabotage, and occasional gunfire, peace had returned to Austria today after four days of civil war.

The stubborn battles between Socialist and government forces, which had taken from 1,000 to 1,500 lives was ended, but unverified rumors were rampant.

One of these told of a wholesale assassination plot directed against Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss—who has escaped assassination before—Vice Chancellor Emil Fey, and second Vice Chancellor Prince Ernst von Starhemberg.

Other high government officials likewise were mentioned as

VIENNA, Feb. 16.—Civil war has ceased for the moment in Austria today but the sick man of Europe is sicker than ever and permanent peace on this continent is less secure than at any time since the last World War ended.

For four days Austrians have fought each other and the only perceptible victor is Germany. France and her allies have suffered a severe setback, Italy has won a doubtful momentary triumph but the real winners are the Nazis who looked on while the Austrian government did their work for them and

HUMES PRAISES SALES TAX

Maj. E. Lowry Humes, former United States attorney, told more than 400 women members of the Friday Morning Club in Carnegie Music Hall this morning to "become tax conscious."

Maj. Humes outlined the present tax situation, describing the fallacies of the Federal income tax system as now administered and lauded the manufacturers' sales tax as an ideal solution of the present revenue problem. He said:

"Since 1926 a total cost of 1,900,000 laws have been passed, requiring a tremendous amount of administration and enforcement machinery. This mass production of laws is largely responsible for the increase in tax burdens and the consequent development of a bureaucracy in this country.'

The national income in 1930 was $78,000,000,000. Maj. Humes continued. Tax collections amounting to $10,266,000,000 comprised 13.16

AVIATION BOUNTY URGED TO REPLACE MAIL CONTRACTS

PLAN ADVANCED TO BUILD UP WAR DEFENSE

Brown, Robbins Deny Charges Leading to Postal Work Loss

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—A direct federal "bounty" for aviation, replacing scrapped air mail contracts, received strong administration thought today.

An idea behind such an undisguised bounty would be to build up stronger aerial defenses in case of war.

Another disclosure today was that Comptroller General J. R. McCarl, watchdog of federal expenditures, is shaping a stop-gap against excessive profits on Army-Navy airplane contracts. This move is at Congressional request.

Whatever the new federal plans, it appeared that the air mail scrap is far from over.

Walter F. Brown, Hoover postmaster general, said that charges of conspiracy and "illegal" acts by his administration, as put forward by his successor, were completely lacking in "justification."

BROWN TO TESTIFY

Waiving immunity, Brown arranged to tell the Senate airmail investigating committee on Monday his version of the tangle.

The name of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh continued to enter into the row over air mail. Brown, in a statement in New York, said in connection with Lindbergh's White House-criticized message to the President:

"Col. Lindbergh knows more than any other person outside of the postoffice personnel about details of air mail operation and the efforts of the Postoffice Department during the period of my service to promote an economically independent aviation industry."

Whether Lindbergh would be asked to appear before some Congressional committee had not been determined early today.

BRITTIN IN JAIL

Meanwhile, as a direct outgrowth of the Senate air mail committee's investigations and the Senate trial, one man—L. H. Brittin, vice president of Northwest Airways—had behind him one day of his 10-day jail sentence.

He declared his career had been ruined and that he lacked money to fight through an appeal.

William P. MacCracken, air mail attorney, also under a 10-day sentence, was free on $5,000 bail while his attorney pushed an appeal.

Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York, meantime assailed the wholesale contract cancellation, asserting that Pan-American Airways had received a $6,000,000 subsidy without competitive bidding. Fish sought to link the fact that its contract was not revoked and that "distinguished Democrats" served as its officials.

Air Line President, Brown Deny Charges

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Richard W. Robbins, president of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., issued a statement last night saying he felt "both President Roosevelt and Postmaster General Farley have been misled in this air mail matter."

The statement, of about 2,500 words, detailed the company's position on the various points raised by Farley Wednesday in his letter to Senator Black, chairman of the air mail investigating committee.

The documents cited by Farley to show collusion in mail contract bidding were said by Robbins to show instead "that there was a series of disagreements between the contractors." Robbins added:

"Mr. Farley's letter to the Senate shows conclusively that our company has not had a hearing before his department or before any other governmental agency; and this should be enough to make void his so-called annulment order."

BROWN DENIES FRAUD

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown vigorously denied fraud in issuing air-mail contracts during his tenure of office, in reply made yesterday to accusations made by Postmaster General James A. Farley. Brown said:

"Everything I did and everything done by anyone under me in connection with those contracts was entirely legal and proper.

"There is absolutely no justification for the charge that any of the air mail contracts were awarded through collusion among contractors or any illegal practice."

Soles' Statement to Park

ing up; you got lots of time, just that those people get it down right.

A.—Well, I left downtown McKeesport at some time between 1 and 1:30 and drove my car directly to my garage near my home and walked one block to my residence. Opening the front door I proceeded to a downstairs bedroom, noticing a light on.

I also noticed my wife sitting on a straight backed chair near a dresser, on a trip to Atlantic City for five or six weeks.

I recall her getting off the chair and approaching me at the other side of the room, talking rather loudly and I returned the conversation in a loud tone.

Just what was said is not exactly clear to me; but she made one remark which to me seemed to be quite nasty, and which as I recall was to the effect that I was out sleeping.

Whereupon I evidently became quite incensed and must have taken one of the guns which I had in my chiffrobe and fired it at her, although this is not at all clear in my mind.

She then fell forward and what I did with the gun in my hand is not clear, but I recall picking her up from the floor and placing her in the bed next to the doorway. There is then a slight period of uncertainty as to what was said between us, but there must have been something said as to what people would say and who was to blame for the accident.

I then recall getting a telephone book, pen, ink and paper for her to write a statement—"Dear Bob, I am no good to myself or anybody else and am getting worse in place of better. Please forgive me for doing this." Signed "Larue, lovingly," she had on there "lovingly."

This note was placed on a dressing table with the telephone book on it and must have been done by myself as she was then lying in bed and could hardly have moved.

I do not recall undressing for bed after this, but it must have been that way, and putting my pajamas on I retired and read the comic strinp for a period of 15 to 20 minutes and returning to the bedroom. My mind suddenly realized that my wife was very ill and asking her what had happened she told me that she had shot herself, whereupon I proceeded to the rear of the house and called her father from his bedroom upstairs.

He came down to our room and administered water to her, asking me to get a doctor, and both of us becoming rather excited, he ran out of the door to get Dr. Jordan, two blocks from the house, and I called him on the telephone. He reached the house at the same time I talked with Dr. Jordan on the phone, who advised me to call also Dr. Heisey, and he himself called Dr. Heisey.

I believe when Dr. Jordan came into the house, if I remember correctly, he and I discussed the matter of calling the cops and I said "yes" and went to the phone to do so, and Officer Connelly and Lieut. Eckels came to the house in a short time. In the meantime, I having had such a shock over all the affairs and perhaps having had too much to drink and my head being rather befuddled, I began to ask my wife questions and she repeated that she had shot herself and that the gun was lying on the floor near the bed, but I found the gun underneath the bed with one shell fired out of six.

There is a discrepancy here, because the gun which evidently caused the accident was a .45-caliber and the one picked off the floor was a .38-caliber. I don't remember putting that thing back in that drawer.

In the meantime, Dr. Heisey had arrived and while the two doctors were administering to my wife, I took the officers through the house while they were looking for damage caused by the bullet, and in a short short time Dr. Heisey ordered the ambulance, taking Mrs. Soles to the hospital at McKeesport.

In the meantime the ambulance arrived and Mrs. Soles was taken to the hospital and the doctors and officers and myself arriving there in different conveyances. Mrs. Soles was ill until the next afternoon, June 20, when she passed away.

I have read the above statement, which was made at my own free will and accord.

Q.—Just go ahead, Bob, and tell your own story.

A.—I recall she was smoking a cigaret and looked at me for a moment, admonished me for being out late and not behaving.

U. S. BATTLES AIR MAIL SUIT

By GEORGE H. KENNEDY
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—The right of the Transcontinental and Western Air Lines, or any other air transport companies to seek relief in the Federal District courts against the cancellation of air mail contracts, was challenged today in Federal Court as "in essence a case against the United States."

The challenge was made by Martin Conboy, United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York at the opening of the hearing before Judge John C. Knox, on the request of the T. W. A. for a temporary injunction restraining the Postmaster General from terminating its air mail contract Sunday night.

The United States government, said Conboy, friend and former legal adviser of President Roosevelt, has never permitted filing of a suit to compel specific performance of a contract.

Conboy added that the only remedy for a plaintiff in a case of this sort is to go into the Court of Claims and sue for collection of damages if he can prove contracts have been improperly abrogated.

Falling Meteor Barely Misses Mail Plane

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—The strange experience of being bombarded from space by a meteor was described by Pilot Hiram Sheridan on his arrival here with the eastbound night American Airways Mail plane from Fort Worth, Texas.

Sheridan said just before he reached Texarkana last night he saw the meteor break into flame as it struck the earth's atmosphere and describe a huge arc coming directly at the plane. He added:

"I watched it for a minute or two and realized that it was coming straight at me. I changed my course and put on speed, but it looked like it would strike the plane in spite of all I could do.

"When it appeared something was sure to happen, I banked sharply to the right and at about the same moment the meteor burned out and disappeared."

Sheridan said he was unable to say just how far the meteor missed the plane, but said he thought it barely missed." Continuing, he said:

"When I first noticed the meteor, it apparently was just entering the stratosphere and it gave off a dazzling blue-white light that blinded me. As it came closer, it lost its brilliance until at the time it reached the altitude at which I was flying, it was just a glowing red ball. It went out completely just after it passed me."

Today

he has ideas about management.

"If I were managing this boy," says Mr. Johnston, the top of whose derby hat reaches about to Carnera's middle waistcoat button, "I'd take him around more,

"I'd have him at every opera, with a stove-pipe hat on him that would make him seven feet high, overall, and I'd dress him in accordance with his greatness, nothing flashy, you know, everything refined, but the finest make with velvet collars on his dress coats. Big people like to see a man like that."

THEY DO indeed. "Perfumed dandies," in the days of Rome's decadence, used to follow giant fair-haired gladiators from the North, exclaiming at their deep chests and huge arms, wagering on their death or survival.

Perfumed dandies of modern opera, if there are any, would probably pay the same compliment to the dark-haired Latin gladiator,

"That boy," says Mr. Johnston, before he leads the Italian hundling elsewhere, "can hold his own with the best of them, at the opera or anywhere. He speaks four languages, English, French, Spanish and Italian. You don't know any other fighter that can speak four languages, do you?"

The writer admitted that he did not know any other fighter who spoke even one language.

HITHERTO, THE American people have taken little interest in government. But now politicians will hear from them, because they have something to be interested in.

Manufacture of jobs, distribution of billions, establishment of union labor on a national basis with government backing, laws to prevent wages from falling below and hours from rising above a certain point, are things interesting.

The people will take an interest in them, and tell their Congressmen about it.

CWA WILL DROP 400,000 IN NEXT WEEK

Climate to Rule on Jobs; Only Needy To Get Work

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The civil works program will be closed May 1, with 400,000 workers to be dropped by next Friday, Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, announced today.

Hopkins indicated he would propose new measures involving other government branches to continue aid to the unemployed after May 1, as part of a long-range program, details of which have not been announced.

DROP TO BE GRADUAL

Last week 3,850,000 workers were paid, Hopkins said. The drop will not be so fast in the next few weeks.

Winter needs of the unemployed will be met "head-on," with rural areas, especially in the deep South affected first, and the civil works employes in industrial centers maintained in full strength for the present.

Demobilization will be geared to weather and climate, being accelerated during March.

Wage regulations effective March 1 will be a minimum of 30 cents per hour, or the prevailing wage rate for similar employment in each locality, and the 24-hour week in the cities, and 15-hour week in rural areas, as at present.

WORK FOR NEEDY ONLY

Any city authorized to add workers will be restricted to persons in need only, Hopkins said.

In the meanwhile, work will be concentrated on certain projects, especially rural schools, in 10 or 12 states, which were not named. Between $350,000,000 and $450,000,000 will be required to carry the work to May 1, Hopkins estimated.

MELLON LISTS STOCKS

he would remain neutral and not vote.

On the other hand he asserted that his interest in various companies and the information obtained through his banking connections would be valuable to the railroad.

RAILROAD EXPERIENCE

As to his railroad experience he said he had inherited this through his connection with the Ligonier Valley railroad which has been owned by the Mellon family for 55 years, and in three years on the board of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie and one year a director of the Norfolk and Western railroad.

He testified to ownership of the following stock:

Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, 518 shares; Mellon National Bank, 10 shares; Forbes National Bank, 250 shares; Aluminum Corporation, 140 shares; Carborundum, Ltd., 3,727 shares; Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates, 500 shares; Westinghouse Airbrake Company, 15,494 shares; Union Switch and Signal, qualifying shares; Gulf Oil Corporation, 1,000 shares; Pullman Company, Inc., 4,000 shares; Harbison and Walker Refractories, 2,000 shares; Pan-American Airways, 1,000 shares; Aviation Industries, 400 shares.

COUNSEL ATTENDS

The applicant was represented by H. W. Bickle, general counsel of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and the examination was conducted by E. M. Ebert, assistant director of the Inquiry Board.

Other witnesses in behalf of Mr. Mellon were J. T. Wilcox, secretary of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Thomas S. Gates, president of the University of Pennsylvania and a director in the railroad.

Probably a week or longer will elapse before the commission's decision is announced.

CWA's Discontented Millions Become Menace Unless Ruled By Army, Warns R. W. Child

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD
Noted Author and United States Ambassador to Italy Under Two Administrations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The menace of a mobilized army of the unemployed in the Civil Conservation Corps and the Civil Works Administration may be turned into a compelling benefit if the administration will, at once, enlist the whole force of the army not only to command and control the unemployed, but to act as educators and trainers of organized citizenship.

Folly can be no greater than mobilizing the unemployed so that they in their misfortune become conscious of their political force as voters or, worse still, conscious of their power to make their protests effective in a manner outside of law and order.

No government in the history of the world has done more than ours in the last few months to create and organize human beings in regiments of discontent.

NO GOVERNMENT has a greater opportunity than has this administration to turn the defeat of constitutionalism and of law and order into a spiritual victory. It can do so only by one method.

Turn the mobilized unemployed over to the training of the Army, and of every competent group of active and reserve officers which can be summoned for the task.

Take this mobilized army of discontent out of the hands of politicians and give it the leadership of patriots.

Teach it what its obligations and duties are to the taxpayers who will pay and pay to keep that army well and happy.

There is no menace greater today than the red leadership certain to come unless this administration, at a crisis, will furnish to the mobilized unemployed a leadership of discipline and patriotism.

SECRECY VEILS WEIRTON CASE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Members of the National Labor Board maintained strict silence as to the future in handling the case of the Weirton Steel Company and denied published reports that they had reached a decision.

Board circles indicated further consideration of the question is desired by several members before any action is taken.

The Weirton company has refused to permit the board to conduct a new election of employe representatives at its plant. The company has continued its opposition in the face of an executive order from President Roosevelt empowering the board to poll employes of the firm in an effort to determine whether a new election is desired by "a substantial number."

Officials of the company refused last week to give representatives of the board a list of the employes to facilitate the poll.

Sues to Prevent Gasoline Station

Mary Olah yesterday filed an equity suit against Pauline Colker to prevent erection of a gasoline station on the southeast corner of the Boulevard of the Allies at Ward street. It is claimed construction of the station would be illegal, as the district is classed as "A" residential section.

Weather Conditions.

There was a marked drop in temperature during the last 24 hours over the northern states east of the Mississippi River, due to high barometric pressure spreading southward from the Hudson Bay section. Over the West temperature changes were slight generally and mostly towards rising. There are no low temperatures this morning west of Eastern Indiana. Precipitation was light and occurred mostly in the form of snow over the Upper Mississippi Valley states. There were thunderstorms in the Lower Mississippi River Valley and showers over the Pacific Coast states. High pressure is centered over Eastern Ontario and extends down over the lake region thence southwestward to another center over Oklahoma and Northern Texas. There is a small low centered over Iowa and pressure is low over the Rocky Mountain states.

River Conditions.

The rivers are about stationary and frozen over nearly everywhere above Pittsburgh. Stage at Pittsburgh is 3.9 feet gauge. Lock No. 7 (Mon.) 11.8; Pittsburgh 10.5; Dam No. 4, 3.3; No. 6, 4.0; No. 10, 3.7 and No. 12, 4.7. Dams Nos. 12 and 13 are up.

ARMY CONTRACT PROBE PUSHED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—The District of Columbia grand jury today continued scrutiny of alleged irregularities in Army contract awards, with indications that three or possibly four persons might be indicted.

Announcement that he had retained as his attorney, A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney General in the Wilson administration, followed the disclosure by Joseph Silverman of a two-way contract providing that he would sell back to the department 700,000 undergarments at the price he paid.

In exchange, he said, he was given assurance he would be allowed to purchase other supplies.

Silverman said the contract, which was not executed, could have saved the government $700,000, as he had agreed to sell the garments to the department at 15⅜ cents compared with competitors' bids of around $1.20. The grand jury is expected to report next week.

Air Reserve Pilots Urged for Volunteers

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(INS.)—Announcement was made today at the Second Corps Area headquarters on Governors Island that air mail pilots who lose their jobs as a result of government cancellation of air mail contracts will be taken into the Army air service "as far as practicable."

Air mail pilots who hold commissions in the Army Air Corps Reserve were urged to volunteer immediately for active duty with the Army Air Corps.

147 Army Planes Set for Mail Job

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(INS.)—With 147 crack military planes mobilized at flying throughout the country, the Army Air Corps today had virtually completed arrangements for taking over the nation's air mail service at midnight Monday.

These 147 machines will be used to inaugurate the greatest peace time job ever undertaken by the Army's skyriders. They include 63 observation, 39 attack, 30 pursuit, 13 bombers and 2 cargo machines.

Bandits Terrorize Bank Teller's Home

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Police today sought four bandit terrorists who held seven persons captive in the home of a paying teller three hours in a vain effort to force delivery of a key to the National Bank of Topeka.

Don Hassebroek, the teller, was beaten and threatened with death, a machine gun at his abdomen, before the four robbers finally were convinced of the truth of his assertion that he had no key.

BANKS TO THAW CREDIT MAPPED BY ROOSEVELT

'Chain' Would Pump Funds Into Industry; Probe 'Clamp'

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The government is preparing to go deeper into the banking business unless there is an early and appreciable increase in the flow of capital into heavy industry.

President Roosevelt and his advisers feel that the whole recovery movement is being retarded by the reluctance of the commercial banks to extend medium and long-term credit to such industries as need that sort of financing.

BUSINESS COMPLAINS

Industrialists are constantly complaining to Washington that they find it difficult even to get short-term loans, and almost impossible to obtain long-term accommodation.

Under these circumstances, the administration is again considering plans for the government itself to enter the field, either through the RFC, or through the institution of intermediate credit banks set up in the 12 reserve districts. These banks would be prepared to serve industry on five or 10 year credit arrangements.

The capital market is generally regarded as in a frozen condition, due to a variety of causes.

BANKERS CAUTIOUS

One is that the bankers have become exceedingly cautious since the lesson of the depression—overcautious—according to complaints reaching Washington.

Another is the uneasiness that investment promoters feel over the new securities act. And still another is what seems to be a disposition to lay back and observe the effect of the 59-cent dollar for a while yet.

PROBE CHARGE

Meanwhile a thorough inquiry into allegations that national bank examiners are instructing banks to "clamp down" on loans despite the administration's policy of liberalizing credit, was planned by a House Banking and currency subcommittee today.

HINT SHAKEUP IN TREASURY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Another far reaching reorganization of the Treasury Department was anticipated today with the report that Assistant Secretary L. W. Robert, Jr., of Atlanta, and Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor, of California, might resign shortly.

While it was understood that there had been no open rift between these officials with Secretary Morgenthau, the latter has been known to desire that his assistants should be those of his own choosing. Both Robert and O'Connor came into office under former Secretary Woodin, who resigned because of ill health.

If these two resignations materialize, the majority of the keymen in the Treasury that were appointed by former Secretary Woodin will have disappeared.

Among the dramatic resignations was that of Prof. O. M. W. Sprague, former adviser to the Bank of England. Sprague quit with a statement declaring that the country was embarked on a program of unrestrained inflation.

Air Stock Crash Inquiry Launched

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(INS.)—In an effort to find out who profited from the recent collapse in the aviation stocks following the cancellation of the air mail contracts, the New York Stock Exchange today moved to investigate all sales of these shares in the period from January 26 to February 9.

Reports have been current in Wall street for some time that insiders and politicians profited from advance information on the drastic action.

'Gas' Truck Upsets Driver Escapes Fire

KITTANNING, Pa., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—A gasoline truck, laden with 1,000 gallons of gasoline and 120 gallons of oil, overturned on a highway today and was destroyed by fire. Lloyd McCullough, driver, saved himself by jumping just before the truck overturned.

Rail Chieftains Heed Pay Cut Opposition

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—A White House plea that railroad wages be continued without further reduction will receive consideration by rail chiefs.

Railway executives gathered in Chicago let it be known today that Mr. Roosevelt's proposal would be placed for discussion alongside one of their own—a 15 per cent cut in the basic pay rate effective July 1.

Only by federal intervention was a quarrel between railroad executives and their employes settled last fall with agreement on a 10 per cent reduction in the basic rate. The rail chiefs now propose another 5 per cent slash.

Employe views, voiced through A. F. Whitney, chairman of railway labor executives, were that "the railroads are not suffering from the wage scales paid their employes."

In a formal statement opposing the projected 15 per cent cut, issued soon after the President's plea, Whitney said:

"The real difficulty with the railroad industry is caused by the burdensome load of fixed charges and the refusal of railway bond holders to contribute their share to the relief of the industry. Railway labor is not disposed to continue to assume that burden."

In his request to both rail labor and executives, the President said an extension of the present wage agreement for at least six months "would be of advantage to those directly concerned, and also to the entire country."

FATHER ADMITS THROWING BOY IN RIVER

Thought Son Dead, 'Stuffed' Body in Hole in Ice

ROCKFIELD, Ill., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Charles Backus, a middle-aged vegetable peddler, stood near the ice-covered river here, pointed to a hole in the ice and told police:

"I put it there. I was scared."

The "it" was the body of his 8-year-old son, Charles, Jr., who who been missing eight days. The father had persisted in denying knowledge of his son's whereabouts. Last night, after long questioning, he said to Joseph Rank, of the state highway patrol:

"All right, I'll show you where it is."

Then followed the trip to the river, where the peddler pointed out the air hole into which, he told police, he had stuffed the boy's body.

There was no trace of the body, however, and the river was to be dynamited today in an effort to bring it to the surface.

A verbal confession which Rank of the Highway Patrol attributed to Backus, still left details of the manner in which the boy died vague.

Backus told police he had reprimanded his son when the boy came home from school a week ago Wednesday. The boy appeared ill, the peddler said.

Police quoted Backus as saying:

"I struck him and he became unconscious. We (presumably meaning members of the family) carried him onto a bed and rubbed him, and I thought he died of poison candy."

TRAPPER GUILTY IN SON'S DEATH

LITTLETON, Col., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Mrs. Donald K. Smith heard a jury pronounce her husband guilty of the slaying of their 3-year-old son, Donald Arlen, then said:

"Now I can go home safely and know that he won't be back to kill the other baby."

The wife, who testified against her husband, said the 30-year-old trapper fatally beat the child because he could not pronounce the word "breakfast."

District Judge Samuel W. Johnson saved Smith from the state's lethal gas chamber by removing first degree murder from the jury's consideration. The verdict of second degree murder, returned yesterday, calls for punishment of 10 years to life imprisonment. Judge Johnson will sentence Smith tomorrow.

Boy Free, San Jose Lynching Quiz Ends

SAN JOSE, Cal., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Investigation of the lynching of the kidnap-slayers of Brooke L. Hart was officially closed here today after the one person arrested, Anthony Cataldi, 18, was released as a youthful boaster.

Belief that Cataldi "concocted" the story that he was one of the leaders of the mob which dragged John Holmes and Thomas Thurmond from jail and hanged them last November was expressed by Justice of the Peace Chester Moore.

Big-Mouthed Lion Bites Joe E. Brown

EL MONTE, Cal., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Joe E. Brown, the film comedian with the wide grin, met a movie performer with a bigger mouth than his own yesterday. A trained lion, working in a picture, snapped at the actor, biting him on the nose and ear. The lion also made a swipe with a paw.

Brown was not badly hurt and resumed work after having his wounds treated. The cameras recorded the attack.

Gold Cross Stolen, Big Reward Offered

CARAVACA, Spain, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—A reward of 20,000 pesetas (about $2,600) was offered today for the return of a gold cross which disappeared from historic Caravaca Castle.

The treasure, which is valued at $390,000, has been stolen several times in the past, but always has been returned, since it could not be sold.

GIRL TROUBLE AGAIN FACES MAX BAER

New $50,000 Lawsuit Follows $150,000 Balm Battle

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—More girl trouble—$50,000 worth this time—descended today upon the curly black head of Max Baer, the larruping Lothario of Livermore, Cal.

Miss Shirley La Belle was disclosed to have sued him for damages as the result of an alleged attack at Baer's hotel last December 20, because of which, she says, she is an expectant mother.

The affair became public when the prize fighter moved to have Miss La Belle examined before trial. Supreme Court Justice Bernard L. Shientag reserved decision.

On December 29 Baer was served with a summons in a $150,000 breach of promise suit brought by Bee Starr, circus aerialist. He has been named in other suits of that nature on the coast.

HELD 'SHAKEDOWN'

ROSEVILLE, Cal., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max Baer, today branded the $50,000 suit brought against the fighter in New York by Shirley La Belle as a "shakedown." The manager said:

"The girl appeared as one of 50 women who besieged the stage door at the theater at which Baer was appearing.

"She kept coming back and one night burst into tears, claiming she had had nothing to eat and no place to sleep. Baer sent down $5 to her, but would not see her. She came back later after she had spent the money and again wept all over the place that she had no place to sleep.

"'All right,' Max told her, 'go up to my hotel, and tell them to charge your room on my bill.'

"She did and the hotel clerk told her that she could stay only one night. She was put out the next morning. She claims that Baer came to her room that night, but he told me he didn't go to her room. I had a guard with him all the time and he couldn't have gotten away from him."

DENIES POISON KILLED DOCTOR

GREENWOOD, Miss., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Poison found in the vital organs of Dr. John Preston Kennedy was insufficient, in the opinion of the state chemist, to affect a human being.

Testifying yesterday in the trial of Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean on charges of killing Dr. Kennedy with a poisoned whisky highball, Dr. W. F. Hand, the chemist, told of finding the poison.

Asked by J. J. Breland, defense counsel, whether the "minute amount" was "enough to affect a human being," Dr. Hand replied:

"I think not."

Relatives of Dr. Kennedy and physicians who treated him during the illness that preceded his death last August testified he made a dying statement accusing Dr. Dean of serving him a drink of whisky with a "metallic" taste.

Santa Rosa Feels Eight Light Quakes

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Feb. 16.—(INS.)—The eighth of a series of slight earthquakes today shook Santa Rosa and a large portion of Sonoma County. Five other quakes were felt during the night and two last Wednesday.

Falling of plaster in the County Court House and in the high school and the collapse of one small chimney was the extent of the damage, a checkup disclosed.

Lila Lee Robbed, Police Save Gems

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 16.—(INS.)—Lila Lee, film actress, was robbed of jewels valued at $12,000, but police recovered them before she was aware of it, she disclosed today.

Officers arrested Robert Lewis, 18, Negro, who until December had been employed as Miss Lee's chauffeur, while he was in a pawn shop.

Husband Dead, Actress Goes On, Saves Show

LONDON, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Even fellow actors of Margaret Moffat did not know of the sudden death of her husband, Sewell Collins, American-born theatrical producer, as she acted a part without which the show could not have gone on.

Informed yesterday afternoon while lunching with friends, of her husband's death she decided to "carry on" because, she said, he would have wished it. She is chief laugh-maker of "Wind and the Rain" and has no understudy.

KEEPS NEWS FROM CAST

She kept the news from the rest of the cast fearing their sympathy might mar the performance. She said:

"When people around you are sympathetic it often is difficult to control one's feelings."

Collins, who was 57, had been ill earlier in the winter, but of late was much better. A doctor, called when he became ill yesterday, found him dead. The cause of death was not announced.

CARTOONIST, WRITER

Collins began his career as a cartoonist on the Chicago Tribune. Later he became dramatic critic of the New York Journal and a special writer and illustrator for magazines. He was chief intelligence officer in the British Isles for the United States during the World War.

Among his recent theatrical productions are "The Left Bank," "Hawk Island" and "Afraid of the Dark."

Margaret Moffat was born in Scotland and made her first appearance on the stage at the Savoy Theater in New York in 1903.

DENIES HE SHOT EX-PUGILIST

Pete Domeroski, 30, of 2015 Penn avenue, changed his story in Lawrenceville Police Court today and denied he had shot John Burkowski, 30, of 219 Main street, former pugilist known as Jack Burke, in a Strip political feud.

Domeroski explained his testimony before Magistrate Charles McCall yesterday, when he stated he had fired the shot that struck Burke in the leg, by saying:

"I only told that story to scare Burke."

Domeroski was freed. Burke had been discharged yesterday. He told the magistrate a Negro had wounded him.

Bond of Million Set On Bandit Suspects

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—(INS.)—Five bandit suspects, all 18 or under, today were held to the grand jury in bonds totaling $1,100,000 on charges of committing more than 100 robberies.

The staggering bond, imposed by Judge Frank M. Padden in Boys' Court, was a record here. The youths were identified in court by 25 robbery victims.

SEIZE 'HEIRESS' AS VAGRANT MAN IN HOAX

Sex Disguise Muddle Causes Arrest of Farm Hand

SPRINGFIELD, Ont., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Police today arrested Gene P. Crandall, self-identified as "Mrs. Jean P. Crandall, widow," after discovering "she" was a man, and charged with vagrancy.

Crandall said he was from El Paso, Tex.

He caused a furor yesterday by announcing he was a woman and that he had fooled his employer over three weeks while working on a farm as a laborer.

At the same time he announced that his grandmother whom he called "Madame Dickinson of Chicago, had given him a bequest of $69,000.

But today incredulous questioners brought from him the admission that the bequest was purely imaginary.

It was all too interesting to remain farmyard gossip and police investigated.

They discovered that "she" was a "he," and the arrest followed.

RECONCILIATION DENIED BY DOUG

Universal Service.

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 16.—Douglas Fairbanks said yesterday there has never been any question of a reconciliation between himself and Mary Pickford since she brought suit against him for divorce.

The film star told Universal Service:

"I had not heard from my wife for a long time before her divorce suit was filed. There has been no question of a reconciliation."

Fairbanks was "annoyed" by rumors that Lord Ashley's recent divorce action in London against the former Sylvia Hawkes, actress, naming Fairbanks co-respondent, had disrupted a possible reconciliation between himself and Mary Pickford.

Miss Pickford, one of America's most famous film actresses, sued Fairbanks in California in December. Fairbanks said he had no plans for the present except to remain in Monte Carlo, where he is seen nightly at the green tables of the Casino, playing with American gold $5, $10 and $20 pieces.

FOND OF SOLES, 'OTHER WOMAN' TESTIFIES AT TRIAL

JEWELS, SEIZED BY SLEUTHS, DISPLAYED

went to the Hardy apartment in Locust street, McKeesport, and there Rose Hardy turned over to them the pearls, the diamonds and the necklaces which Prosecutor Haggerty contends Soles gave her shortly after his wife was buried.

The jewel box was opened in court today before the very eyes of Rose Hardy, who sat in the first row of witness seats.

O. K. Eaton, counsel for the prosperous McKeesport defendant, intimated he would charge that the jewels were obtained from Mrs. Hardy under unusual circumstances.

County Detective Patrick Trainor was on the stand when Prosecutor Haggerty first revealed the jewel box. Haggarty asked:

"Did you ever see this before and where?"

"Yes. It was turned over to us by Rose Hardy."

"Where?"

"On the fourth floor at 507 Locust street."

"Where did she get them?"

"Why, we were in the kitchen and she went back to another room and got them."

"What time was this?"

SEEK TO LINK DRUGGIST

Before the jewels were introduced Haggerty spent an hour seeking to upset defense contentions of yesterday which seemed to link Thomas Lindberg, McKeesport young druggist, with knowledge of LaRoux's death.

Here is the inventory of the jewels turned over by Mrs. Hardy:

One wrist watch, one pearl bead bracelet, one necklace (pearl and rhinestone pendant), two pairs pearl ear rings, one turquoise ring, one string pearl beads (double string with emerald and rhinestone clasp), one bar pin, one rhinestone clasp, one rhinestone necklace, one necklace (small pearl beads with crystal beads), one sterling necklace with turquoise pendant, one oval rhinestone pin, one sterling little finger ring with rhinestone and sapphire settings (held together with clasp), three bands, one necklace (broken) with silver glass links, one green gold bracelet with greenstone settings, one pin (oval glass with three round glass settings).

CURSED THEM, POLICE SAY

A defiant Soles locked himself in his room and cursed the detectives who came to question him about the death of his wife, it was testified late yesterday.

That same Bob Soles, quiet and suave, listened to the evidence and smiled ever so smugly as he heard himself quoted telling a county detective to "go to hell" and accusing the detectives with trying to "frame" him for the murder of his wife, LaRoux.

He smiled again when he heard read from the witness stand his affidavit to the Coroner in which he declared his wife had "committed suicide because she was despondent" and his smile broadened into almost a grin when he heard the saucy testimony of his stenographer in refutation of the state's contention that she helped Soles to re-enact the shooting to convince himself of the suicide theory.

CROWDS AND SURPRISES

Yesterday was replete with surprises for the crowded courtroom, and particularly Prosecutor John Haggerty. Five times the prosecution pleaded surprise in order to cross-examine its own witnesses, and just that same number of times Prosecutor Haggerty told the court and jury he was hearing things about the case he never heard before.

Another person who was hearing things in that courtroom was Rose Hardy, she who the state contends was "the girl friend" in the case. She heard a few things about herself and her relations with the debonair Soles. Walter Williams, Soles' chauffeur, gave only a hint to the revelations of that relationship prior to the death of LaRoux when he told of driving them to Pittsburgh some two months after Mrs. Soles' death.

SOLES INTERESTED

But Soles, himself, was perhaps the most interested spectator as witness after witness called by the prosecution began laying the groundwork for a many-sided defense.

Prosecutor Haggerty's first surprise came during the testimony of William R. Connelly, a McKeesport policeman. Twice during the policeman's testimony, Haggerty jumped to his feet to cross-examine him.

Again during the testimony of Williams, the chauffeur, Haggerty pleaded surprise and twice more when Minnie Buckweitz, Soles' stenographer, was on the stand.

The biggest surprise came from Minnie. She testified Mrs. Soles told her:

"UNWILLING WITNESS"

She testified in refutation of a statement purported to have been that she helped Soles re-enact the shooting to convince himself of the plausibility of the suicide story.

Haggerty, referring to her as an "unwilling witness," asked leave of the court to cross-examine her on the first revelation. He shouted:

"Why didn't you tell me that before?"

Minnie flung back:

"You didn't ask me."

The statement attributed to Mrs. Soles, Minnie testified, was made in a whispered conversation between herself and the dying woman in the hospital the day before she went back with Soles to take the whole statement down in shorthand.

Haggerty thundered:

"What for?"

She replied:

"Mr. Soles wanted the exact truth. Mr. Lynch had accused him of shooting his wife."

ARRIVED TOO LATE

She said Soles had telephoned to her at the office Monday and told her to come up to his home, where he told her all about the shooting.

That same day, she testified, she accompanied Soles to the hospital and heard from LaRoux's own lips the declaration she "thought she had made a good job of it."

The next day she returned with Soles to take down a statement in shorthand, but they got there too late, according to her testimony.

Haggerty asked her about the alleged re-enactment in the Soles bedroom. She denied there had been one. Haggerty read from a statement he said had been given to County Detective Peter Connors, and Minnie declared:

"Those are the questions Connors asked me, but they're not the answers."

HIDING IN BEDROOM

The last witness of the day was Connors. He told of going to the Soles home to ask the defendant to accompany him to the District Attorney's office. Soles was hiding in a bedroom, Connors testified. When he called upon him to come out, Connors quoted Soles as answering:

"Get the hell away from there."

Connors said:

"I told him we were from the District Attorney's office, and the District Attorney wanted to see him. He said:

"'Who the hell is the District Attorney? How much is that old ——— paying you to frame me on a murder charge?'"

Connors testified Soles finally came out of the room when a McKeesport detective arrived a short time later.

BRIBE ALLEGATIONS

Lieut. Charles Eckles, of the McKeesport police, substantiated the bribe allegations of a brother officer and testified that Soles offered him money also. Twice, he testified, Soles offered to give him money—once in the hospital and once at the home. He testified to seeing Soles offer money to a nurse at the hospital as well.

The lieutenant also testified that Soles acted "excited" when the bullet holes were discovered in the wall of the bedroom. He said Soles "tramped up and down" and got very excited and said:

"I'm going to get that fellow that caused this if it takes all the money I have."

The police officer testified that Soles named Watt Martin as the man who was "blackmailing" his wife.

Deputy Coroner E. G. Baxendell identified an affidavit given to him by Soles three days after the shooting. In this document Soles stated his wife had been despondent over the loss of her children and had shot herself. He said in the sworn document that his wife had been in good spirits the night before the shooting and told of finding the suicide note on a stand in the bedroom and the gun on the floor beside the bed.

Several North Side properties were left to six children and a grandson by Mrs. Elizabeth Lindow, North Side, in her will filed for probate today. The estate was valued at $20,000.

Amanda E. Davis, Mt. Lebanon, bequeathed a $10,000 estate, leaving $5,000 to a daughter, Florence R. Lawritzen, and dividing the rest in three equal shares among the daughter, a son, Howard C. Rathburn, and the children of a deceased son. The daughter was made executor.

Black Dominating Color at Trial

Crowds continued to pour into the Court House yesterday to witness the trial of Robert S. Soles, now in its fifth day. Throughout the day the courtroom was filled to capacity while in the adjoining corridor, following an order from the court that no one would be permitted to stand inside the courtroom, scores of persons lined up to await their turn.

Marking her third day in the courtroom, Mrs. Rose Hardy again held her front-row seat, directly in line with—and 10 feet behind—that occupied by the defendant. And as on the two previous days, her attire was black, relieved only by a smart white silk collar.

Overheard at the courtroom door as a woman wheedled a tipstaff for entrance:

"Oh please! Just for a minute —I want to see what he looks like."

Corridor sayings:

"Where do you get passes to get in "

"D'ya mean to tell me a Pitt law student can't get in there?"

And when the apple vendor strolled by:

"I wonder if that's the Mayor's apple man . . ."

Indicative of restlessness in the gallery, frequent waves of muffled comment swept over the court room late in the afternoon. Court did not adjourn until 5 p. m.

Black and white, acclaimed the most popular combination this season for feminine attire, was dominant in the courtroom. Besides Mrs. Hardy, two witnesses sported black silk dresses with white jabot collars and black hats. They were Miss Minnie Buchweitz, Soles' secretary, and Mrs. Helen Cockrill, friend of LaRoux Soles.

* * *

Soles appeared wearing a new suit, dark gray with a slight white fleck; over the top of his breast pocket peeked the habitual white handkerchief. His countenance remained impassive during the greater part of the day. Once he smiled broadly. Again, as a witness endeavored to remember the length of a certain lapse of time, he squinted in an apparent simultaneous effort to determine the period.

Gimbels Tells the Truth, the Whole Truth

No Madam, We Do Not Offer Discounts

We're sorry you didn't understand the other day. That's why we're explaining it here again. We do not offer "discounts" on our furniture during the February Sale. "15%, 20% off" has always seemed a pretty vague term. "Off what?" we feel like asking. Every price mark on our furniture is an honest evaluation of the worth of that piece and the lowest price we can afford to offer.

Consequently, madam, when you wanted an additional discount we had to refuse. We didn't show you a ticket marked higher than we expected you to pay and then offer "so much off." That example of telling the truth, not only in our advertisements but also from our salespeople, is proof again that always

LISTENING IN ON SOLES TRIAL WITNESSES

The following is a question and answer story of the latest testimony in the Soles murder trial.

Rose Hardy, the "other woman" in the Soles case, was called to the witness stand today. In a low, vibrant voice, she answered questions put to her by Prosecutor John Haggerty.

Q.—I understand you've been under a doctor's care, Mrs. Hardy?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Well, if you have any difficulty answering questions, I'll go slower.

Mrs. Hardy testified she was a registered nurse, a widow and had one son.

Q.—Was Mr. Soles in your home Saturday night, June 17?

A.—Yes, he was, but only for a few minutes.

Q.—When did you next see him?

A.—Sunday night.

Q.—What time did he arrive?

A.—Shortly after 11 o'clock.

Q.—How long did he stay there?

A.—He stayed until after one.

Q.—Have you any idea how long after one?

A.—Not exactly, but I know it was some time after one.

Q.—How far is it from your apartment to the Soles home?

A.—About 10 or 15 minutes' drive.

Q.—Was Mr. Soles driving that night?

A.—I believe he was.

Q.—When was the next time you heard from Mr. Soles?

TOLD OF SHOOTING

A.—About 5:30 the next morning, he called me.

Q.—He called you on the telephone?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Why?

A.—He told me LaRoux shot herself. I said what? He said LaRoux shot herself. I said, when? He said about 10 minutes of 12. He asked me, "What time was it when I left," and I said, "It was after one."

Q.—Did he tell you where he was calling from?

A.—Yes, in the hospital.

Q.—Did you go up to the Soles home to see the remains of Mrs. Soles?

A.—Yes, on Thursday.

Q.—Who was with you?

A.—Miss Buckweitz.

Q.—Did you know when Soles came over to see you that Saturday night, he had just got back from Atlantic City?

A.—Yes.

Q.—How long had Mr. Soles been coming to see you?

A.—Off and on since the first of the year.

Q.—Had you ever contemplated marriage with Mr. Soles?

A.—No.

Q.—Had you ever talked marriage with Mr. Soles prior to Mrs. Soles' death?

A.—We had talked about marriage generally, but we were never engaged.

Q.—Did you ever talk about marrying?

FOND OF MR. SOLES'

A.—No, we just talked about marriage generally. We never talked about marrying ourselves.

Q.—Was Mr Soles in love with you?

A.—I couldn't say that.

Q.—Were you in love with him?

A.—I was fond of Mr. Soles.

Q.—How often do you say he came to your apartment?

A.—I couldn't say, exactly.

Q.—Well, it was seven months. Would you say he came once or twice a month—about 15 times?

A.—Not that often.

Q.—Well, about 5 or 6 times?

A.—Perhaps.

Q.—Did you ever discuss the death of Mrs. Soles with Mr. Soles?

A.—Quite a while afterwards. Mr. Soles was very nervous and upset. He was almost a complete nervous wreck.

Q.—Did you ever discuss it in the Soles home?

A.—No.

Q.—You were in the home taking inventory, weren't you?

A.—Yes.

Q.—When was that?

A.—The day after the funeral.

Q.—Don't you recall discussing the death of Mrs. Soles three days after the burial?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What was that discussion?

A.—Mr. Soles said he couldn't believe Mrs. Soles shot herself.

Q.—Did he tell you where he found her?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Where?

A.—In bed.

Q.—Well now suppose you tell us what that discussion was as near as you can remember.

'WIFE WAS MOANING'

A.—Mr. Soles told me he came home and went to the (bed) room, where he heard his wife moaning. He said he asked her, "Are you still sick?" They had stopped on their way from Atlantic City, and for dinner one night they had some lobster, or some kind of sea food. He said he asked her, "Did you take any soda bi-carb?" He took a newspaper and sat in the bathroom for perhaps 4 minutes, and when he came back she was still moaning. He asked, "What's wrong." She told him, "I shot myself." He said, "What?" She said, "I shot myself." He said, "Where's the gun?"

I don't recall whether she told him it was at the foot of the bed or under it. He called Mr. Lynch, and when he came down, he cursed Mr. Soles and accused Mr. Soles of shooting his wife. Mrs. Soles said "Bob didn't."

Mr. Soles then called Dr. Jordon and Mr. Lynch got excited and ran down the street to Dr. Jordan's office. The telephone was ringing in Dr. Jordan's home when he got there.

When Dr. Jordan got there, he said, This is a surgical case —call Dr. Heisey.

SAW THE BLOOD

Q.—Is that all?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know just about where the bullet entered the body of Mrs. Soles?

Q.—Comparing that with the height of the bullet in the wall, what would you say about it.?

A.—The bullet in the wall is low. It comes just about right if Mrs. Soles had been sitting down.

Q.—Did you discuss this with anyone?

A.—Yes, Miss Free.

Q.—Didn't you discuss it with Frank Soles and Bob Soles?

A.—With Frank Soles, yes, but not with Bob.

Q.—Did you see the slip she was wearing that night?

A.—I did.

Q.—Did you see the large amount of blood on it.

A.—I wouldn't say it was a large amount of blood.

Q.—Have you ever received any presents from Mr. Soles?

A.—Nothing except a small trinket.

Q.—How did you get the jewelry?

A.—Well, Miss free suggested to Mr. Soles that he give it to me to keep until he decided what to do with it.

Q.—When did you get the jewel box?

A.—Three weeks after the shooting.

Q.—Is the inventory you heard here this morning correct?

A.—I saw it was a bunch of junk and there was only one good piece of jewelry there.

'BORROWED MONEY'

Q.—Did Mr. Soles give you any money?

A.—No, I borrowed some money from him.

Q.—How much?

A.—$150. Fifty dollars, three different times.

Q.—Did you ever discuss the bullet hole in the wall with Mr. Soles?

A.—No.

Q.—Did Mr. Soles say anything about a .38 or a .45 bullet fitting the hole?

A.—Mr. Soles told that a .45 seemed to fit. He said he had tried some bullets and a couple fell in.

Q.—Were you there when he tried the bullet in the hole?

A.—No.

Q.—Do you know the calber of the gun turned over to the police?

A.—No, and even if I dd I wouldn't remember it, I'm not familiar with firearms.

Q.—Did Mr. Soles tell you what clothing his wife was wearing when she was admitted to the hospital?

A.—No, he did not.

Q.—Do you know what a grdle s?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he tell you she wore one?

Q.—Dd Miss Free tell you?

SAYS SOLES WAS EXCITED

A.—No. Miss (name not distinguishable) told me.

Q.—Do you know how tall Mrs. Soles was?

A.—No, but Miss Free said she was about five feet or five and a half.

Q.—What was Mr. Soles' condition as to sobriety that Sunday night in your apartment?

A.—He was excited.

Q.—Don't you know what sobriety means?

A.—Well, I could smell liquor on his breath.

Q.—Did he do any drinking at your apartment?

A.—No.

Q.—Did you give him anything to drink?

A.—No.

Q.—How long was he there?

A.—Two hours.

At this point Judge Patterson interrupted to tell Haggerty Dr. McMeans was in court and to inquire if it would be all right if he returned at 1 o'clock to testify. Haggerty then left the witness to talk with McMeans.

FATHER-IN-LAW RECALLED

H. B. Lynch, LaRoux's father, was recalled to identify three pieces of jewelry as having been given his daughter by her mother. These were two rings and a turquoise pendant. Later, he was recalled again to identify a photograph subpenaed from the Sun-Telegraph. Haggerty questioned him:

Q.—When was this picture taken?

A.—On our last trip to Miami beach.

Eaton asked:

Q.—How do you know it was the last trip?

A.—I remember it.

Q.—Who took it?

SOLES' DEATH STORY AS TOLD ON STAND

A.—I don't remember that. It was some person with a camera.

Q.—The pictures were taken separately weren't they and pasted together?

A.—I believe so.

Q.—Did Mr. Soles tell you how they got along?

A.—No.

Q.—Have you ever been out riding with Mr. Soles in an auto?

A.—The only time was when I was waiting for a (street) car. He stopped and I got in the car. The other time I was going down the steps (from her apartment) and he said, 'You seem to be in a hurry,' and I said that I was catching the 11 o'clock train for town (Pittsburgh.) He said, 'If you wait five minutes, I'll take you down.'

Q.—Was that the time the chauffeur told about?

A.—No. That was after Mrs. Soles' death.

Q.—How many times did you discuss the death of Mrs. Soles with Mr. Soles?

A.—About a half-dozen times.

Q.—He always maintained she didn't shoot herself?

A.—Yes, he did.

NEVER SAW 'SUICIDE NOTE'

Q.—Did you ever discuss the note?

A.—Yes. He said, "There's somethng about this note that wil tell the story."

Q.—I'm talking about the suicide note—did you ever see the suicide note?

A.—No.

Y.—Did you ever discuss the writing of it with him?

A.—No.

Q.—Did Mr. Soles ever tell you what kind of a bullet he thought killed his wife?

A.—No.

Q.—Did he ever tell you about the writing on the note?

A.—He said Mrs. Soles had written the note and it was on the dresser table.

Q.—Did he ever tell you he went anywhere to check up on the writing on the note?

A.—Yes. He went to the Coroner's office at Mr. Frank Soles' suggestion.

NOT POSITIVE

Q.—How long was this before he was arrested?

A.—I think about two or three weeks. I'm no positive about that.

Q.—Did he tell you he inquired what was wrong with his wife before he went into the bathroom (on the night she was shot)?

A.—Yes. He took it for granted she had indigestion.

Q.—Did he tell you she was shot before or after he went into the bathroom?

A.—No.

DENIED AFTER FUNERAL

Q.—Did he tell you she shot herself at 10 to 12?

A.—No. He said she told him that.

Q.—Did he tell you of the preparations they had to go to Chicago?

A.—Yes. They were leaving Tuesday.

Q.—You had supper at the Soles home on the day after the funeral?

A.—Yes. Saturday.

Q.—When was the last time Soles was in your apartment before he was arrested?

A.—The day before.

Q.—The day or night before?

A.—The night before.

Q.—You recall the day he was arrested?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Was he there that day?

A.—No, he hadn't been.

Q.—Did you talk to him the day he was arrested?

A.—Yes, about 9 o'clock.

Q.—Where was he then?

CERTAIN OF HOUR

A.—At home (this call presumably was made by phone).

Q.—Mrs. Hardy, how do you fix the time so definitely (on the night LaRoux was shot and Soles was in the Hardy apartment)?

A.—Well, I glanced at the clock. I knew it was after one and I told him it was after one and he'd better go.

Q.—Did he say what kind of a gun she had shot herself with—Say whether it was his gun or an Army gun?

A.—No, he did not.

Q.—Did you see where the bullet struck the (dining room) buffet?

A.—Yes, I did.

Q.—Did you examine that?

A.—I looked at it.

Q.—Where did you keep that (jewelry) box at home?

A.—In my clothes hamper.

Q.—You had that box how many months after the death?

A.—About three weeks after.

Q.—Did you ever examine the contents?

HAD GOOD JEWELRY

A.—Miss Free, Mr. Soles and I looked at it. I told Mr. Trainer (county detective) there was only one piece of good jewelry there—a watch. I had good jewelry.

Q.—When did you intend to give it back?

A.—Well, I didn't want anybody else to get—

Q—Did you know he had other jewelry in a private box?

A.—Yes. Mrs. Soles had good jewelry. I think that's where he said it was.

Q.—When did you put the linens (in the Soles home) away?

A.—About two weeks after (the shooting).

Q.—Did you put everything else away?

A.—No. There was one chair I started to put away and Mr. Soles said, "No, don't, that's Mr. Lynch's chair. It may tell something. It has a bearing on the case."

Q.—After Mr. Soles came back from the Coroner, looking at the note, did he remark it was LaRoux's writing?

A.—Yes. They came back and were positive it was Mrs. Soles' handwriting.

Eaton then cross-examined Mrs. Hardy.

Q.—When did you first know Mr. Lynch?

A.—About five years ago.

Q.—You were a tenant in the same building?

A.—Yes. He had an apartment below. I nursed him for two months.

Q.—Did you ever talk with the defendant about Mr. Lynch?

A.—Yes. The first time Mr. Soles came to my apartment was to apoligize for Mr. Lynch's attentions to me.

Haggerty objected to this and was sustained. The answer was stricken off the record.

DENIES WEARING GEMS

Q.—Under what circumstances did you get the jewelry?

A.—Mr. Soles was carrying them around and Miss (Anna) Free said, "Why don't you leave them with Rose?"

Q.—Were they given to you as a present?

A.—Oh, no.

Q.—Did you ever wear any?

A.—I did not.

Q.—Why did you assist in the inventory (At the Soles home after the death)?

A.—Because I took care of him (Mr. Lynch) during sickness and drunkenness.

Q.—Did you go to the hospital to see Mr. Lynch at Mrs. Soles' request?

This question was stricken off when Haggerty objected.

John Wesley Soles (no relative), of McKeesport, was called by Haggerty to dispute the defense implication that Thomas Lindberg, young druggist, might have been in the Soles home the night of the shooting. He said he, Lindberg and Cooley drove to Duquesne in LaRoux Soles' machine on the night of June 19, but that he didn't know where Lindberg was between 11 and 12:45 o'clock.

Lindberg testified yesterday that Mrs. Soles frequently loaned him her car.

Mrs. Regina Johnson, of 1105 Walnut street, McKeesport, then testified that she was a guest at the Soles home on the same night and had been driven homeb y Lindberg, arriving there about 1:25.

Lindberg's mother, Mrs. Mollie Lindberg, and two brothers, James and Robert, agreed in their testimony that she and her son went for a drive to Mt. Lebanon between 11:30 and midnight.

TELLS OF JEWELS

Patrick Trainor and Peter Connors then testified as to the jewels Trainor said were handed over to him by Rose Hardy in her McKeesport home.

Sarah Jane Crossen, night nurse who attended Mrs. Soles, was called to contradict the story told by Minnie Buchweitz, Soles' secretary, who had testified that Mrs. Soles' statement whispered to her on her death bed was:

"Minnie, I've done a god job of this."

Miss Crossen said she had never seen Minnie anywhere but at the foot of the bed in the hospital room.

But Attorney Eaton brought from Miss Crossen the admission that she couldn't remerber "exactly" whether she left the room or not.

PLEADS SURPRISE

Haggerty pleaded surprise when Miss Buckweitz, a state witness, contradicted statements Haggerty had attributed to her. She testifield she was called by Soles for a statement after she had seen his wife at 4 p. mfl in the hospital.

Q.—What for?

A.—Mr. Soles wanted the exact truth. Mr. Lynch had accused him of shooting his wife.

She had testified Monday that Soles telephoned her at her office to come to his home. Haggerty described Minnie as an "unwilling witness."

Q.—Did you talk of Mr. Soles?

A.—I did. I went in with Mr. Soles and he kissed his wife.

Haggerty asked her why she hadn't told him before of Mrs. Soles' dying statement to her, and Minnie answered:

"You didn't ask me."

Q.—Didn't you tell me Mr. Soles said to you he didn't see how Mrs. Soles could have shot herself?

A.—He never believed she shot herself.

Minnie then denied that she had told Haggerty she helped to reenact the shooting with Mr. Soles, and insisted that Soles had told

Tragedy Stalks Soles Trial Jury For Second Time

Tragedy stalked the Soles jury again today as funeral services were held for a relative of one of those chosen to try Robert S. Soles for the killing of his wife.

The juror is Thomas J. Daugherty, Library coal miner. He sat in the jury box while funeral services were being held for his sister-in-law, Mrs. William Cobert, 34, of Cochran Mills road, Jefferson Township.

Mrs. Cobert was injured fatally in an auto accident.

At the beginning of the trial, Mrs. Caroline Benson, of 1911 Wylie avenue, was discharged from service on the jury after she had been chosen as juror No. 7, because of the death of her brother, August Auchter. Auchter was burned fatally in a fire that partly destroyed the Benson home.

Mrs. Cobert was struck by an automobile in Brownsville road last Sunday. Thomas F. Dennick, Library road, Library, alleged driver of the car, has posted bond pending an inquest.

SOLES' DEATH STORY AS TOLD ON STAND

her he didn't believe his wife committed suicide.

SELUTH ON STND

Lieut. Charles Eckles, of the McKeesport police department, was questioned by Haggerty, and substantiated Policeman Connelly's testimony given earlier in the day.

Described a scene between Soles and his wife in the hospital emergency room, Eckles said:

"Then he walked away from the table where his wife was lying and said: 'Go ahead and spill it. Tell it all. Tell them I did it.'. She said: 'No, no, Bob, you didn't. No, officer, he didn't. I did it."

Q.—Did you ask her why she did it?

A.—Yes I asked her and she said she'd been despondent.

Q.—Did you hear her say she had been planning it for a long time?

A.—No.

GUN EXAMINED

Q.—Did you examine the gun?

A.—Yes, it had a slight smell of powder about it.

Q.—Did you ask Soles about the shells?

A.—Of course. I told hom he had no business taking the sheils out of it.

Q.—Did he offer you anything at the hospital?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What?

A.—Money. Eckles said Soles offered money to Miss McLaughlin.

Later at the Soles hom, Eckles said, he saw the hole in the wall and that Soles got "very excited" about it, declaring:

"I'm going to get that fellow that caused this if it takes all the money I have."

Eckles then testiged that Soles again offered him money and that he told him to "put the money back in his pocket." The witness said Soles threw his wallet on a bed, saying: "There's $5,000 or $8,000 in negotiable papers in there," but that Soles did not tell him to take it.

Chief of Police John J. Whalen then told of turning the gun, shells and note over to Deputy Coroner E. G. Baxendell.

Q.—Did you make any investigation yourself, or go to the Soles home?

A.—No, I didn't.

Baxendell testified next that he took statements from Soles, Dr. Jordan and Connelly.

In the statement he said he had taken from Soles, the defendant said his wife had been in ill health and he had sent her to Florida, later taking her to Atlantic City.

'HEARD WIFE MOAN'

On the night of the shooting, according to the statement, they had entertained until 10 p. m. He went outt o put his car away, but instead drove downtown. When he returned, the statement continues, he began to unpack a suitcase when he heard his wife moan and asked her the reason.

When she didn't answer, he discovered blood. Then she told him she had shot herself.

Soles' affidavit states Mrs. Soles had been worried about the loss of her children, but that she seemed in better spirits the night of the shooting.

Soles had said, the statement continued, he found the "suicide note" on a stand in the bedroom and the revolver lying on the floor near the edge of the bed

PEEPED OVER TRANSOM

Detective Connors then testified to going to the Soles home to look for the defendant. Connors said he went into a bedroom on the second floor and looked over a transom into the next room where he saw Soles hiding. He called for him to come out, testifying that:

"He yelled back, 'Get the hell away from there.'

"I told him we were from the District Attorney's office. he said:

"'Who the hell is the District Attorney How much is that old —— paying you to frame me on a murder charge.'"

Tells of Soles

MRS. HELEN COCKRILL

Mrs. Cockrill, Lewisville (Ind.) friend of the slain Mrs. Soles, strong witness for the commonwealth. She told of the Soleses' life at their home.

BOY, 15, ADMITS RUM SALE

A 15-year-old boy admitted selling a pint of liquor to a 12-year-old boy at a hearing before Magistrate Howard B. McNutt in Morals Court today.

The witness testified at a hearing for his father, who was arrested in connection with the sale of moonshine liquor. The father was fined $25 or 10 days after he pleaded guilty.

The son said the boy to whom he sold a pint for 35 cents told him the liquor was for the purchaser's father. The Sun-Telegraph will not publish the names of those involved in this case because of the age of the children involved.

NAZIS VICTORS IN AUSTRIA, KNICKERBOCKER ASSERTS

FRANCE GETS SETBACK IN CRISIS

crushed the Austrian Socialists.

The balance sheet of the civil war that began Monday shows today:

First: Estimated at least four to five hundred dead.

Second: More than two thousand wounded.

Third: Three executed.

Fourth: Concentration camp established to house from two to ten thousand prisoners, depending upon how long the captives will be kept.

Fifth: Courts martial by the dozens with hundreds of the accused awaiting their possible death penalty.

Sixth: Dissolution of the Socialist party and its traditions, to wit: complete abolition of the oldest and most successful moderate Socialist organization in Europe which had long been the strongest bulwark against Bolshevism.

Seventh: And finally, removal from the political field in Austria of the only opposition the Nazis have had besides the government.

HUGE PROPERTY LOSS

This balance sheet omits mention of material loss. Five of the finest workers apartments blocks in Europe, the Karl Marx House, the Schlinger, Goethe, Reumann and Ottakring houses which formed fortresses for the Socialists, were taken only after an artillery bombardment had seriously damaged them.

The Goethe house—the last to surrender—has shell holes in it big enough to admit a horse. Direct hits from artillery destroyed whole sets of flats in one explosion. The condition of the Goethe House is typical of the five mentioned. In each were housed from two to ten thousand persons.

I saw the Goethe house shortly after firing ceased. It didn't look quite as bad as French houses in the devasted district after the World War, but it didn't look like a house that could have contained many living persons after the bombardment.

The only answer to the question of why many more persons were not killed was revealed when the commander of the government forces that took the Goethe house after a siege lasting 30 hours disclosed that its Socialist defenders had only two machine guns and presumably during the whole bombardment by hundreds of troops there were no more than a handful of Socialists fighting, while the rest were in the cellars.

REDS OVERMATCHED

This illustrates one lesson of this civil war. The fighting was between forces hopelessly different in strength. In Vienna alone the government had, according to one of its own officials, at least 8,000 thousand police, 7,000 Heimwehr troops and other irregulars and 4,000 regular troops, a total of at least 19,000 thousand. They were equipped with rifles, heavy machine guns, field artillery, howitzers and armored cars.

Against them was a population which voted at the last election seven hundred thousand ballots for the Socialists. But of these most of the observers agreed there could not have been more than five thousand men equipped with rifles and some machine guns.

In other words the government forces outnumbered the Socialist fighters by at least four to one and their equipment was incomparable.

Yet it took the government four days to conquer the enemy. As a show of strength it reminded one diplomat of the Japanese attempt to take Shanghai, when the Japanese, expecting an easy victory, stepped into the Chinese section and thereby started a battle which they only won after weeks of fighting and at the cost of much prestige.

The material damage, however, can easily be repaired and even the houses that were the worst shot up can be restored within a few weeks but the political damage done and the blow given to the peace of Europe may be irreparable in the long run.

SLAUGHTER RESENTED

The fundamental facts of the situation here were the three armies: The Socialists, backed by France and her allies; the Heimwehr, led by Starhemberg and Fey, backed by Italy, and the Nazis, backed by Germany. There are only two armies left—the Heimwehr and the Nazis. The destruction of the Socialist party with such a high casualty list has left a profoundly bitter feeling among the population.

The killing of many women and children by artillery fire will not be forgotten.

In this as in all other casualty figures only estimates can be given as the government is plainly reticent and the Socialists carried off many of their dead and wounded.

At least 14 dead women and two children were registered at one city hospital. Thus the Socialists who were the most formidable enemies of the Nazis are now forced to argue that the Hitler revolution in Germany brought no such bloodshed and that the Hitlerites today are the only party that can oppose the present government here. They must argue that even Hitlerites must be preferred to men who killed Socialist women and children.

NAZIS WIN SYMPATHY

Therefore most observers believe that there has been an enormous growth of sympathy for the Nazis among all classes, for not even the Christian Socialists of Chancellor Dollfuss' own party condone the killing of women and children.

The government's defense on this point is that without the use of artillery they could not have taken the Socialist strongholds except after weeks of siege, and by that time the Reds might have conquered the country.

If the Nazis had come into power before the Socialists had been crushed, the Nazis would have crushed them too. Now, however, that has been done for the Nazis and today then can compare the "benign" regime of Germany with the "cruel dictatorship" of Austria. Their second game is that the Heimwehr is the only power in the state, and the Heimwehr boys lack only brown shirts to be full fledged Nazis.

'SUSPICIOUS' SILENCE

The Heimwehr leaders, Fey and Starhemberg, want to monopolize power, and hence will not admit the Nazis want to dominate. But the rank and file of the Heimwehr are Hitlerites at heart and would like to join Germany.

Heimwehr troops shot enthusiastically at Socialists, but when the time comes to shoot at Nazis nobody knows whether the Heimwehr or the army or the police would do it. During all this time the Nazis have kept absolutely and suspiciously quiet. They have ceased to explode firecrackers in public meetings. Firecrackers do not make much of an impression during the booming of field artillery.

But what Europe fears today is what the Nazis are keeping as their secret. Rome, Paris, London, Prague and Belgrade are all asking in anxious unison:

"When will the Nazis reap the fruit of Dollfuss' 'victory'?"

DR. ENGLEBERT DOLLFUSS, CHANCELLOR AND DICTATOR . . . HE HEADS THE AUSTRIAN GOVERNMENT TODAY FIGHTING NAZIS FOR ITS VERY EXISTENCE

Hands Off Austria, Britain Warns Nazis

Simon's Statement Of Support Sent to Vienna Envoy

By HARRY K. REYNOLDS,
International News Service.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—A note, incorporating Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon's statement in Parliament Tuesday, warning Germany to keep hands off Austria, has been handed to Baron Franckenstein, Austrian minister, by the Foreign Office, it was disclosed today.

While the British government is considering further steps to support Austria's integrity against a possible Nazi coup, the Simon declaration remains the keynote of British policy.

Having taken the lead in warning against foreign interference in the strife-torn republic, Great Britian is now considering further action in collaboration with France and Italy.

It is understood that the Foreign Office is opposed to a joint three-power declaration, as proposed by Italy, on the ground that it might needlessly embroil Britain in continental affairs, though the idea has not been definitely rejected. The Foreign Office favors separate statements by London, Paris and Rome.

All diplomatic exchanges in this connection are aimed to throw cold water on any attempt by Germany to support moves to overthrow Chancellor Dollfuss' government at Vienna and install a Nazi administration favoring Austrian union with Germany.

WOMAN TELLS OF PARIS RIOTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—A New York modiste, Miss Frances Clyne, returned today with the first eye-witness account of the recent rioting in Paris.

She had seen the worst of it, she said, from her hotel near the Place de La Concorde, center of the battle. Miss Clyne said:

"I was warned to keep away, but I wanted to see it. In a few minutes the place was literally filled with bandaged heads.

"I went back to my room and closed the windows and heavy shutters, so I didn't hear anything. But 'Toque' did, because he started to tremble."

"When I opened the shutters, I heard machine guns and the smash of bullets hitting walls of nearby buildings. None hit the hotel, though."

Congress Follows Knickerbocker Articles

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(INS.)—Articles of W. R. Knickerbocker, staff correspondent of International News Service, on "Will War Come?" are being followed closely by many members of Congress who are fearful of the continued possibility of another great war in Europe.

Said Representative Sam D. McReynolds (Dem.), of Tennessee, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee:

"I have read Mr. Knickerbocker's articles. He has had long experience as an observer of European affairs. The articles are interesting and instructive."

Communist Leader To Talk On Austria

Earl Crowder, Communist party general secretary, will address a mass meeting in Fifth Avenue High School at 8 p. m. Monday. With particular reference to the Austrian revolution, the Paris barricades, and Spanish general strike, Crowder will speak on "The Crisis and the Way Out." Special emphasis will be put on the Communist program.

the objects of plots, but the principals concerned admitted nothing.

Socialist headquarters issued orders calling for a campaign of sabotage against utilities and public services and for guerrilla warfare.

The only evidence of such warfare, however, was a short but brisk battle in the Stadtpark district last night when approximately 20 Socialist riflemen hopped out of sewer manholes to snipe at Heimwehr soldiers.

They ducked down again into their hiding place, however, and there was no evidence of casualties.

Authorities were unable to say how many Socialist fighters might be lurking in the underground sewerage system which tunnels Vienna like the passages of an ant hill.

Daughter in Vienna Reassures Phillips

BUTLER, Pa., Feb. 16.—Revolution danger in Vienna is over and all is well in the city, according to a cablegram received by Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., of this city, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. Mr. Phillips received the message from his daughter, Mrs. Katherine Van Hoorn, wife of the Netherlands ambassador to Vienna, in response to an inquiry concerning the arrival of her mother in Austria.

Mrs. Phillips, who planned to spend a week visiting at the home of her daughter, was due to arrive in Vienna last night from Trieste, Italy.

23 ALIENS LEAVE HERE TO BE DEPORTED

A party of 23 aliens is en route this morning from Pittsburgh to New York, where they will be delivered at Ellis Island by immigration officials, for deportation to their native countries in various parts of Europe. Three others joined the party at Harrisburg. The Department of Labor ordered them deported as being undesirable residents, with exception of three who left voluntarily.

Sixteen others scheduled to leave with the party were granted stays when Attorneys Ward Bonsall and David B. Fawcett filed habeas corpus proceedings in Federal Court, which alleged that the men had been arrested without probable cause and ordered deported after unfair hearings.

Pending hearings on writs of habeas corpus against Frances Perkins, Secretary of the Department of Labor, and W. W. Wiggins, divisional director of immigration and naturalization in this district, the 16 aliens were released under bonds of $1,000 each. No date was set for the hearings.

Among those that left was Lius Rene Jacquet, 44, French, decorated for bravery by his native country during the World War. He is being returned for having entered this country illegally in May, 1928. He came to the United States as a seaman and deserted his steamship at New York, and was arrested while working as a coal miner at Mincar, W. Va.

Another member of the party was Vincenzo Pienzich, 38, Italian. In 1923 he and 26 others were arrested when they landed at Tampa, Fla., in a small boat from Cuba. After being ordered deported he was released on $1,000 bond pending removal. He "jumped" his bond and was recently found working as a steel worker at Steubenville by immigration officers.

With few exceptions those deported, including the 16 men whose removal was halted by the court, were ordered deported for either having entered the United States illegally or for committing offenses against the laws of this country. The party en route is conducted by Charles Garfingel, assistant divisional director of immigration and naturalization in the Pittsburgh district.

They are being sent to Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Italy, Albania, Arabia, Spain, Sweden, Roumania, France and England. All were arrested in the territory under the supervision of Pittsburgh immigration authorities.

SHEILA TERRY . . . HER HUSBAND: "AWKWARD AS AN OX"

'Awkward as Ox' Jibe Wins Divorce For Actress

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Blonde Sheila Terry, film actress, was awarded a divorce yesterday from Maj. Laurence E. Clark, former New York banker. They were married August 16, 1928, and separated August 15, 1930.

The actress said her husband criticized her hands, told her that her feet were too large, that she was "a rotten singer, a terrible dancer, and awkward as an ox."

Miss Terry said that although her husband was reputed to be wealthy he failed to support her properly. The suit was filed under her family name, Kathleen Mulheron Clark.

Socialists Protest Austrian Violence

A labor and Socialist protest meeting against the killing of Austrian workers in recent disturbances and destruction of the Trade Unions and Socialist movement, will be held Monday night in the Moose Temple. Among the speakers will be Louis Waldman, of New York, labor attorney and recent candidate for Governor.

The meeting will be one of a series of protest meetings to be held in large cities under the auspices of the Socialist Party and the Young People's Socialist League.

PREPAREDNESS ADVOCATED BY M'GOVERN

Since the Pittsburgh district produces over half the country's means of waging modern warfare, Col. Charles C. McGovern, chairman of the County Commissioners, sees Allegheny County probably feeling the brunt of the first inland air raid if the United States is attacked.

Pleading for adequate preparedness in a radio address, a feature of National Defense Week, he warned:

"Adequate preparation for effective national defense is necessary if the United States is to continue as a free nation, running its own affairs and maintaining its territorial integrity and national self respect."

Speaking over KDKA last night he declared:

"National defense for the United States means self-defense for Allegheny County. If National Defense Week does nothing more than remind you of that fact, it will have accomplished its purpose.

VITAL ZONE HERE

"Allegheny County and the district of which Pittsburgh is the nerve center may be truthfully called the strength, the vital zone, of America.

"This territory produces more than half our country's means of waging modern warfare, outside the factor of manpower.

"If the United States is ever attacked by an enemy, Allegheny County probably will feel the brunt of the first inland air raids.

"Even if no enemy aircraft destroyed our mills and our homes, Allegheny County would be the section of the United states hit the hardest by our defeat in any future world war. Modern victorious nations disarm their beaten foes. A foreign nation, having defeated the United States, would destroy the means of recovering our national military strength by destroying the industries of Pittsburgh.

CITES GERMANY

"If you doubt this, look what France did to Germany after the last war. And read about what the French generals now say they should have done to prevent Germany ever again threatening France.

"If you think national defense is foolish, or too expensive, or wrong, just look at a few of those photographs the newspapers have been printing lately.

"Then remember that the World War, 20 years ago, is old fashioned. Modern war will be worse.

"The United States does not want to attack any other nation. But, in spite of the depression, the United States is by far the richest country in the world.

SOUNDS WARNING

"Has it ever occurred to you that a rich nation, without an adequate army and navy is just like a rich man in a town without any police force, and with no gun, no bodyguard and no dog.

"I have every respect for the rights of pacifists to think and say whatever they honestly want to think and say.

"But I also know that, if this country ever should be defeated in a modern war, the only thing the survivors would be free to do would be to think. The winners would do the talking."

TALKS OF RESERVE MEN

Coast Artillery Reserve officers of three regiments were among those who last night heard Lieut Col. Franc Le Cocq, of Fort Monroe, urge year around attention to the technical phases of adequate military preparation. He said that enthusiasm confined to summer active duty training periods was apt to be inefficient.

Col. Le Cocq, executive for the Organized Reserves in the Third Coast Artillery District, spoke at 99th Division Headquarters in the Westinghouse Building. Before the conference he was the guest of honor at a dinner in the Keystone Athletic Club.

John Doe in Person Faces Judge on Coney Island

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(INS.)—A man of a thousand identities finally appeared in the flesh. He is John Doe, and even Magistrate Brill, in Coney Island Court, stared at him with extra-judicial interest.

"Is that your real name? How do you spell it?"

The celebrated character responded:

"It's my only name, D-O-E."

He was charged with neglecting to remove snow from in front of his Brooklyn liquor store. Magistrate Brill suspended sentence.

Potent Defense Policy Favored by Trammell

By SENATOR PARK TRAMMELL

Chairman, Senate Naval Affairs Committee
Written Expressly For the Hearst Newspapers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The best national defense policy for America is to return to the peace-producing practices of our early pioneers who lived in calm quietude with their neighbors, seldom engaging in conflict of any kind.

Those pioneers had a dual insurance against strife. Over the door of each cabin hung a loaded shotgun. Out in the front yard sat a staunch bulldog.

The bulldog reposed quietly in the sun, but he was ready to spring with bared teeth and claws if an enemy attacked. The gun seldom was taken down, but it was kept well oiled and primed. It was ready if needed.

The gun symbolizes our Army; the bulldog may well represent our Navy.

The difference between the defense of dog and gun in those days and of Navy and Army today is that the bulldog and gun were kept in perfect condition at all times.

Today the bulldog's teeth have been allowed to decay, his claws have become dull. In other words, we have let the power of our Navy deterioriate. We have drawn the charge of the shotgun—the Army.

If we are to keep our national defense up to a status necessary for our own safety and protection, we must bring potency to our armed forces.

CHEMIST HERE GETS MEDAL

Presentation of an achievement medal, the Pittsburgh award, given by the Pittsburgh section of the American Chemical Society, was made last night to Dr. Ralph Emmons Hall, director of the Hall Laboratories, Inc.

The medal is given to the Pittsburgh district chemist who has rendered an outstanding service to chemical science or his community or both. Dr. Alexander Silverman, head of the University of Pittsburgh chemistry department, presented the award.

Dr. Hall is known for his research in poison gases during the war and development of a process to halt water corrosion in boilers.

Prep Pupil Near 100 Mark in Exams

Robert Bahl, a junior in the Duquesne University Preparatory School, scored the highest average in the recent mid-year examinations, making 99 4-7 per cent, according to the Rev. Anthony Lechner, principal. The results of the tests were announced today.

Bahl's average was achieved when he lost only three points out of a possible 700.

Loading a pipe, son, is like building a fire

"NOW if you want to build a fire you've got to have the right kind of chimney, and you've got to have the right kind of wood, seasoned right and packed right in the fireplace. If you've got all this, it's easy to light up.

"It's pretty near the same way in smoking a pipe. Now if you've got Granger Tobacco—the right kind of pipe tobacco—any old pipe will do.

"And if you put in a pinch at a time and pack it down good and tight—the way to load a pipe—all you need to do is strike a match.

"Granger smokes sweet and cool right down to the bottom of the bowl.

"That's pipe comfort, I tell you."

NATIONAL DEFENSE TALKS -:- Maude Adams In 'Peter Pan' -:- ON RADIO

Army & Navy Discussed Tonight

Pittsburghers pause for a half-hour tonight at 11:30, to consider the nation's arms of defense . . . the Army and Navy.

At that hour, a coast-to-coast broadcast, heard here over KDKA, brings to the air the chairmen of the House Military and Naval Affairs Committees; the president of American War Mothers and chairman of National Defense Commitee.

"Our Army," "Our Navy," and "Our Sons" are the titles of addresses to be heard, along with a program of music by the Army Band.

Which reminds us that the War Pictures in the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph are particularly timely during this—National Defense Week.

* * *

WILL WAR COME?

The revolt in Austria costing thousands of lives and threatening the peace of Europe; the air mail situation in the United States, including the Lindbergh incident, are among the news highlights dramatized during tonight's March of Time, heard over WJAS at 8:30.

* * *

"Peter Pan" comes to life again tonight, when Maude Adams recreates her famous role in a WCAE dramatization at 9:30.

* * *

"The Romance of Dan and Sylvia" enters its second week as a local hit on KDKA tonight at 10:30.

SALES TAX

Raymond D. Evans, assistant to the potentate, Syria Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. of Western Pennsylvania, embracing 20,000 members, discusses the manufacturers' sales tax over WCAE at 6:20 this evening.

* * *

Phil Baker and his allies, Beetle and Bottle, begin a series of broadcasts from Radio City, over KDKA, tonight at 9:30. Leon Belasco's orchestra replaces Roy Shields' ensemble in the show.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The other day I told the story of the eclipse that began "tomorrow" and ended "today," the path of the eclipse crossing the 180th meridian. That might have been confusing and strange but not nearly so odd as the story of Globe Trotter Frederick M. Hohmann, of Linwood avenue, who spent "yesterday," "today," and "tomorrow" all in 24 hours, and besides that he missed having two Fourths of July by a matter of six hours.

He was coming back to the United States after the China Insurrection. On board ship the time changes at noon instead of at midnight so when you cross the 180th meridian you have two days with the same date.

In the afternoon anything that happened in the forenoon was yesterday. After midnight naturally it is tomorrow. Yet today is today. You can't get around that any way at all. So-oo-oo it was yesterday, today, and tomorrow all within 24 hours.

Just read over the above and it sounds a little bit "balmy." Let's just forget the whole thing.

Here's a big thank you for all those valentines. I thought I couldn't blush any more.

Esther Warren—Write to the "First Nighter" program and ask if the song is published. It may be an original theme used only by that one program.

I know how somebody can get off that diet of mush and vegetable soup. His false teeth have been found. Joseph Brecht reports the finding of a lower set. Globe Trotter Brecht lives at 315 Cedarville street.

Jimmy Long Gives Sports Review

James J. Long, dean of sports writers whose "Sports Comments" appear daily in the Sun-Telegraph, discusses athletic events of the week over WCAE tonight at 6 o'clock.

George Seibel aircasts over WCAE at 6:30 p. m.

Ray Perkins Writes Radio Dictionary

Ray Perkins came to town for, and "went to town on," the WCAE dedication broadcast last Saturday. I paid him a surprise visit that morning.

"How about this here now radio dictionary you're writing?" I inquired, and he confessed.

With the assistance of two chorus girls who have a book, Ray, who always thought that radio could do very nicely with its own lingo, had sequestered himself in his musty office, and undertaken the compilation of a radio lexicon.

In a moment of weakness, Ray surrendered a copy of his Websterial work, with an earnest appeal appended.

He'd like suggestions for his dictionary, and I'll be glad to forward any of you listeners' contributions to him.

His original manuscript, tossed off after a couple of hours' laborious application, goes something like this:

ARRANGE—A place where cowboys live, like "Home on arrange."

AUDITION—A form of mathematics, like addition, subtraction and division. The result is usually zero or minus.

BATON—A wager. For example: Who are you gonna baton, Carnera or Loughran, Cantor or Rubinoff?

CHORUS—Denoting assent, as "of chorus I can sing."

CONTRACT—Paper handcuffs.

DUO—An honor fight between two singers.

DX—What George Washington said: "I did it with DX, pop, I cannot tell a lie."

FAN MAIL—A device for keeping sponsors cool.

HOOK-UP—A short catching sound in the windpipe, like a cough. Prominent nowadays.

LOUDSPEAKER—A woman to whom a man is married.

SHORT WAVES—Gestures by married men to their wives denoting "good-bye."

SMALL CHAINS—Currency under a 58-cent dollar.

VERSE—A degree beneath "bad." For instance, when a listener is displeased, he says: "De program gits verse and verse."

* * *

Richard Crooks comes to town over the week-end to sing for Pittsburghers at Syria Mosque Sunday night.

The famous tenor, still a victim of mike fright, has taken his pet wire-haired terrier to the studios with him, until recently.

The pup, crouching on the floor beside the singer, warmed his "cold feet," Crooks says. But once, during a broadcast, the terrier barked, and since then his master sings alone.

Chancellor Dollfuss, of Austria, will address America at 12:45 p. m. Sunday over CBS-WJAS facilities, if the Socialist machine gunners don't improve their aim.

His talk will be followed by an English translation.

$250 IN PRIZES for BOYS and GIRLS

"PITTSBURGHERS OF THE PAST" CONTEST OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS, SIXTH GRADE TO HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS

Here's a Contest that boys and girls will find easy, interesting—and helpful in informing themselves about "Pittsburghers of the Past" who have contributed to our city's greatness.

Every boy and girl has heard of Carnegie, Heinz, Westinghouse, Foster, Brashear, and other famous Pittsburghers. All right, can they tell their business, or the achievement for which they were famous? If they can and will name twenty-five additional "Pittsburghers of the Past" of their own choosing, they stand a good chance to win a cash prize, from among 113 CASH PRIZES divided as follows:

FIRST PRIZE.....$25.00
SECOND PRIZE....$15.00
THIRD PRIZE.....$10.00
FIFTEEN PRIZES..$ 5.00 EACH
TWENTY PRIZES..$ 2.50 EACH
SEVENTY-FIVE PRIZES.$ 1.00 EACH

The Contest is extremely simple. No essays to write; just a little checking up on "Pittsburghers of the Past," most of whose names are familiar to every citizen. Parents and teachers will enjoy helping; or the desired information is available in reference books in home, school, or public libraries.

The Contest is open to all boys and girls in public, parochial, and private schools, in the Sixth Grade and up to High School Seniors, in Allegheny County.

ENTRY FORMS, containing complete details, may be obtained on the THIRD FLOOR of the Joseph Horne Co., between February 16th and 28th, without obligation of any sort. NONE WILL BE MAILED.

Entry Forms are available to boys and girls, in person; or their Parents, Neighbors, or Friends can get them for them—merely for the asking. Get them tomorrow!

MERITS OF NEW AIR BULLETIN PLAN CITED

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—The recently formulated plan for the broadcasting of news bulletins effective March 1 was outlined in an address yesterday by E. H. Harris, secretary of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

Speaking before the Hoosier State Press Association, Mr. Harris declared the program will be of greater value to radio listeners than the old system of news broadcasts. Mr. Harris, publisher of the Richmond (Ind.) Palladium-Item, said:

"It has two important advantages. The first is that nothing but authentic news, collected by the three national news gathering organizations and the newspapers, will be put on the air and the broadcast of this news will have no connection with an advertising program.

"The second advantage which the public obtains from the arrangement is that the news broadcasts will be free from voluntary or implied censorship."

Under the new plan, the publisher said, the news supplied by the press associations must be broadcast word for word as received "and therefore the listening public is guaranteed the news in bulletin form without voluntary or implied censorship." He continued:

"Records will be kept of the news broadcasts and should any station deviate from the facts, that staion will forfeit further use of the news bulletin service."

Is This Too Good for Your Cough?

Creomulsion may be a better help than you need. It combines seven major helps in one—the best helps known to science. It is made for quick relief, for safety.

Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is a little more than a single help. But your druggist guarantees it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known.

UNLINED TWEEDS

A Grand Fashion—
A Grand Low Price!

$7.95

For smart offices! Campus! For "impatient Griseldas" sighing at bridge for a breath of Spring! These suits or their parts are smart now under a coat—and later they'll be complete suit costumes! Suits are smart. Unlined tweeds in the British manner are jolly well smart. You can wrap up Spring fashions tomorrow in these—at the price of a dress!

We've cornered every fashion at this impelling price!

Russian Rhythm Tweed Suits—with tunic length coats, like Harlow wore in "Blonde Bombshell"—$7.95.

2/3 Length Box Jacket Tweed Suits—$7.95.

Norfolk Jacket Tweed Suits—blouses in Mexican colors—$7.95.

Windblown Tweed Suits with Taffeta Blouses—$7.95.

The English REEFER SUIT

From Our Tweed Shop!

Carries Its Own Full Length Coat That Can Be Worn Separately

$17.50

English as a bulldog—and new as this Spring—you can carry smart economy through the season in this suit.

A full length coat that could accompany other costumes. Plus a matching skirt in Harris like tweeds everyone's talking about.

The boxy idea, in its heyday this year, reaches a smart climax in the Norfolk back and half belt of the coat. It looks smart practically whenever and wherever it's worn! Grey's, or Brown and Tan mixtures. 14-20.

February Sale FURNITURE

There's been a lot of talk about rising prices . . . and there's been some action, too. Where furniture prices will go to after February we can't predict. We do know, however, that everyone who has shopped this sale has been surprised and delighted at the low figures on our price tags.

We prepared for this sale with immense purchases months ago when markets were favorable. In addition our entire stock is included at discounts of 10% to 50%. Things are looking better. People are beginning to live graciously again. We believe it wise to buy furniture at this time.

For example:

THIS SMALL DINING ROOM OR DINETTE SET—5 PIECES

$49.50

It's sturdily constructed with all the high style of more expensive suites. The finely finished table has two handy extension leaves. The four handsome chairs are covered with a neat, durable tapestry. The suite comes in your choice of all-walnut, ivory-and-walnut, or cafe au lait and walnut. The attractive china cabinet has a green-finished interior and is $49.50 additional. The buffet is also extra at $49.50.

REED ASSAILS NRA IN TALK TO VETS

Striking at his critics, United States Senator David A. Reed made it plain to an American Legion post last night the American Legion four-point program he is sponsoring in Congress was not motivated by the coming campaign.

Appearing to present some "plain facts," the Senator told East Liberty Post No. 5 in East Liberty Y. M. C. A. that the four-point program contained nothing that wasn't included in the bills he sponsored 10 years ago.

He described the legion's demands as justified, and predicted their ultimate passage on the grounds that the President already has approved three of the four points.

Beginning with last spring's economy act, which reduced soldier relief, Senator Reed went right down the line, attacking first the NRA and then other recovery measures, and wound up with this statement:

"Certainly no person went to the polls and voted for what the professors are giving us."

Then he laid down an attack on the processing taxes, which, he said, were imposed not because elected representatives voted for them but because the Secretary of Agriculture had been authorized to determine what should be taxed and how much. Of the secretary, he said:

"Instead of George III, we have the secretary of agriculture."

He credited the NRA with having abolished child labor and the "sweat shop," but added that it had repealed the anti-trust laws, and had almost ruined the small business man.

Gang Escapes Shots, Flees With Loot

JAILBIRDS RUN DEVIL'S ISLAND RAILROAD

By GORDON SINCLAIR

CHAPTER XV

St. Laurent de Maroni, French Guiana.—Here, at the transportation and distribution centre of the 12 penitentiaries which make up the notorious Devil's Island group, you'll find the only railway on earth manned and operated by convicts.

Every man a jailbird.

But they've never had a wreck yet and the one train is always on schedule. One of the most valuable cargoes it carries is butterfly wings. No fooling, butterfly wings are worth twice as much as gold!

Convicts and ex-convicts risk their lives night and day trying to catch the gaudiest of butterflies known to science. They are shipped to all the great museums of the world.

The senior butterfly broker of the island got a radio the other day and set it up in his shop for all to hear and marvel.

Convicts who have been on the islands and in the jungle chain gangs for years stood around gawping and giggling.

After a bit one of them started tittering in astonishment as the radio chattered away in Spanish. An announcer in Caracas, Venezuela, was urging his audience to take advantage of a special one-week sale in coffins.

He chirped:

"Buy now."

"Be prepared for future emergencies. We guarantee to please."

The linguist among the listeners chortled:

"Better'n us. We all have the same coffin."

The boys in stripes laughed gleefully.

'Handshake—Freedom'

Cayenne, French Guiana—Did you ever hear tell of a town that had laws for and against handshaking?

Well, this is it.

One person in four down here has leprosy, but that has nothing to do with the handshakes. You've got to shake about 20,000 lepers by the hand before the bug bites.

The law has to do with convicts. No man condemned to Devil's Island or its 11 neighboring penitentiaries is allowed to shake another man by the hand. Handshaking is the mark of friendship and freedom.

Convicts are not supposed to enjoy either of these. So, during their 10 or 15 years in the big house and during their lifetime of exile thereafter, handshaking is barred to them. If they greet a pal with a handshake they go back into the cells.

But a liberated man can, by appeal to the town council, have the handshaking privilege restored to him.

That means a lot more than appears on the surface because a handshaker, when he dies, can be buried inside the cemetery. While he lives he can attend mass and eat with the elite in the two beaneries. In 20 years about 100 men have been reinstated in the Amalgamated Handshakers' Association. Sixty-four have been blackballed.

The result of these laws is that Cayenne is the handshakingest town in all this earth. If you meet a man for the first time down here you grasp him by the hand fit to crush him. When you part, perhaps six seconds later, you pump-handle again. If you don't you're a convict.

People spying each other 50 yards away bear down with outstretched hands. Acquaintances passing in what the home folks laughingly call The Boulevard, touch fingers in cheerio.

There is no fine for illegal handshaking. Just a jail term. Some of the boys in stripes, however, are suspected of bootlegging.

Escape Racket at Work

Surinam, Dutch Guiana.—Guaranteed escapes from Devil's Island for $100!

That, in effect, is the slogan of a syndicate working here, or near here, with sub branches in British Guiana, Trinidad, Venezuela, Brazil and Columbia.

British police, who have been co-operating with the Dutch toward breaking up the ring, say that the leader is a red-haired French woman. The British alone, within the past two years, are said to have shipped 101 escaped convicts back from Georgetown and Port of Spain to Cayenne.

These 101 represent men who drifted ashore in British territory flat broke and starving. In spite of occasional diplomatic prodding it's admitted that no effort is made to round up escaped men who can carry on under their own financial steam.

The escape syndicate is said to have false bottomed boats at its disposal for those choosing to make the break by sea and blazed trails through the jungle for those preferring a land break.

In the past two years admitted escapes from the 12 convict colonies of French Guiana have exceeded 500.

2 Boys Sentenced For Molesting Girl

Two youths were found guilty in Criminal Court of a statuatory offense involving a young girl ward of Juvenile Court, and were sentenced to serve from two to 15 years each in the workhouse by Visiting Judge R. R. Lewis.

County Detective Lawrence Kline testified the two, Edward Holland, 20, South Nineteenth street, and James Okaroma, 19, South Twentieth and Sidney streets, had detained the girl four days in the attic of a house.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head and ear noises or are growing hard of hearing go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Yes, indeed! SWEEP STAKES answers the people's call for "a good bottle of pure liquor at a sensible price"

When America voted for Repeal it didn't vote for high prices on legal liquor. Possibly that's why SWEEP STAKES swept to such a sensational popularity. It's the liquor of the people—pure, smooth, mellow, and only $1 for a full "fifth". 25 3/5 ounces of pure quality. No sherry, no malaga, no prune juice or glycerin in SWEEP STAKES. Its flavor is the natural result of distillation. Get a bottle at your most convenient State Store. You'll want SWEEP STAKES always!

PITTSBURGH'S ORIGINAL BARGAIN BASEMENT

KILLING ENTERS NIXON SUIT

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Details of a murder trial which held the interest of two continents have been put in the record of another case—the effort of Mrs. Charlotte Nash Nixon, prize-winning beauty, to break the will of her husband, Frederick G. Nixon-Nirdlinger.

Statements that the theater magnate had been shot by his wife in France three years ago and that she subsequently was acquitted of the murder charge were brought out during cross-examination of the widow's mother, Mrs. James B. Nash, of St. Louis.

Counsel for the estate—estimated as high as $1,000,000—led the mother over the path of her direct testimony. He recalled that St. Louis' entrant in the 1923 Atlantic City beauty pageant and Nixon-Nirdlinger had been married three times, first before his divorce from Mrs. Laura McKenna Nirdlinger, next after the decree was granted, and finally after the theater man and the beauty had been divorced.

Left only a 33 per cent interest in the residuary estate under the theater man's will, Mrs. Nixon—she has dropped the "Nirdlinger" from her name by court order—is seeking to obtain a widow's third of the entire estate.

Teachers Attend Institute in Bellevue

Educational problems were discussed by more than 200 teachers at the North Boroughs Sectional Institute meeting in Bellevue High School, yesterday. Dr. C. R. Foster, president of Indiana, Pa., State Teachers' College, was the principal speaker at the afternoon and evening sessions.

The meeting was arranged by the faculty of Indiana State Teachers' College and teachers from Avalon, Ben Avon, Bellevue, Emsworth and McKees Rocks attended.

DOG REAL HERO IN PEN RIOT

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Jeff, an Irish setter and constant companion of S. D. Bowen, chief engineer at the State Penitentiary, was a true hero in Monday's fatal riot.

When convicts grabbed Bowen, they shoved Jeff outside.

Shortly before the break was known to prison officials, Warden J. M. McCauley looked into the prison yeard and saw the dog running nervously around the cell block building, seeking a way to rejoin his master.

The sight of the dog away from Bowen led McCauley to believe that all was not well inside the walls, he said today. His suspicions were confirmed shortly.

BAN ON SAVINGS TAX AIRED

Briefs are to be submitted to Orphans Court in a few days, following arguments heard yesterday, on exceptions to Judge Thomas P. Trimble's recent decision upholding the Einstein act, exempting interest-bearing bank deposits from the four mill state tax.

The county filed exceptions to the court's opinion, claiming that only thrift deposits should be exempt from taxation and not interest-bearing bank deposits in general. Assistant County Solicitor Thomas E. Whitten said the County Commissioners take the position that the Einstein act is aribtrary.

Attorney George E. Alter, who represented the estate of James Donnelly, which questioned the county's right to collect $86 state tax on interest-bearing bank deposits, told the court he would rest his case on one paragraph in Judge Trimble's decision.

In this statement the court called attention to the fact that the state has authorized an elaborate banking system, which could not exist without depositors. He contended that interest-bearing accounts should be encouraged.

Rival Democratic Camps Launch Bitter Fight

By MARK SHIELDS

Formal announcement yesterday by Roland S. Morris of Philadelphia that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the United States Senate has set the stage for a bitter primary battle within the Democratic party.

Mr. Shields

There is no possible concealment of a clear-cut struggle between rival ticket picked by Joseph F. Guffey, himself a candidate for the senatorial nomination, and that headed by Morris and Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County.

Both Copeland and Morris in their announcements attacked Guffey as the boss of the state committee, dictating not only his own nomination, but that of George H. Earle as Governor, together with other candidates.

The object of their vindictiveness is conclusive evidence of prearrangement and it may as well be admitted at the start of the hostilities.

Some of the friends of Judge Copeland, announced as seeking the governorship, were fearful of the established link with Morris so early in the proceedings. They will be better armed if they come out frankly and admit that they are against the state committee ticket straight down the line.

They should, of course, get some spontaneous support for their slate. They are well advised not to do any picking when a handful of anti-Guffeyites meet at Harrisburg next Saturday for a conference. But later, when invitations are extended to scores of rebellious Democrats for a rally, they may as well ask indorsement for a whole ticket.

They will not be in the same position that the state committee is. They are individuals in the party, and not party officers. As such no one can challenge their right to designate favorites, while the state chairman, as protagonist of a factional slate, and not head of the whole party, has less in his favor.

* * *

Confusion On Morris' Stand On Roosevelt

Morris, as well as Copeland, stressed the fact that the freedom of the primary was somewhat nullified by such action as that taken at the state commitee meeting last Saturday. In Philadelphia yesterday evening Mr. Morris said:

"The statewide primary was created for the purpose of giving to individual voters an opportunity to express directly their choice for candidates.

"It should be used for this purpose and not as an instrument merely to ratify a slate of candidates previously selected by party officials who, as such, have no right to interfere with the fair choice of the party members and attempt to dictate the party nominees."

Mr. Morris then expressed pleasure at the possibility that he might be afforded the opportunity to work with President Roosevelt in carrying out his policies.

In this connection confusing stories are told as to the attitude of Mr. Morris before the nomination of President Roosevelt in Chicago in 1932.

Friends of the former ambassador to Japan, who was a favorite in the administration of Woodrow Wilson, say he always favored Mr. Roosevelt, though he would not cooperate with Mr. Guffey, for whom he had and has no love.

On the other hand, men not now enlisted in the Morris movement, some of them old enemies, some formerly associated with him, assert he never was enthusiastic for the present President.

One unequivocally says that Mr. Morris really was for Newton D. Baker for the nomination, and took an at least covert part in the Al Smith movement in 192[illegible], not to nominate the New Yorker, but to block Mr. Roosevelt while the Baker boom attained strength—which it never did.

Democrats' 'Dog Fights' Important This Year

Whatever the merits of these conflicting statements, it is definite that there will be a flurry of brickbats throughout the Democratic primary campaign.

Ordinarily this situation would not attain a great deal of importance, being viewed as something of a private fight with no great impress on governmental conditions in the state.

But in 1934 there are beliefs—not only among Democrats, but among Republicans as well—that Democratic nominations for state and national office may be negotiable credentials, possible of translation into election and an attachment to the public payroll.

Regular Democrats will not tell you so publicly, but they are happy that their gubernatorial candidate, George H. Earle, has been sent back to Austria, where he is the American minister.

There are reports that when Mr. Earle visited the White House Wednesday with Mr. Guffey, he was looking for no more than a blessing, but instead was ordered back to his post.

At first the regulars were somewhat discomfitted, but recapitulation of their sentiments changed this. They have not viewed Mr. Earle as a magnetic campaigner. He is not of the crusading type, necessary this year, though a very likeable gentleman. He wouldn't have stirred the multitude to their patriotic depths.

But now, campaigning in absentia, spokesmen for Mr. Earle will point to him as an outpost of the United States standing guard over the citizens of this country amid the storm and strife of Austria. It may be worked up to quite an emotional pitch.

At least, the regulars hope it can be!

Commerce Group Asks Local Government Economy

TRADERS URGE ECONOMY IN GOVERNMENT

Chamber of Commerce Calls for Reform In Local Offices

HARRISBURG, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Policies ranging from a fight on bills before Congress to a study of crime have been adopted by the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce to guide its efforts to revive business during the coming year.

Approved at the organization's one-day convention in Harrisburg yesterday, the program also includes recommendations that:

The next Governor-elect name a representative commission to frame legislation for economy in local governments, which should be required to reorganize before the state increases any subsidies to them.

GOVERNMENT ECONOMY

The state government avoid any increases in taxes "until every possible economy has been effected," and that it avoid the expense of another special session of the Legislature.

The Wagner bill, which would tax payrolls of employers with 10 or more workers, and the Connery bill, to prohibit employes working more than 30 hours a week, be opposed in Washington.

Establishment of our currency on a gold basis "is essential to the restoration of business confidence."

Dr. Frank Cyril James, of the University of Pennsylvania, at the closing session suggested restoration of the gold standard and urged complete banking reform.

Calling federal deposits guarantees a "mere palliative," the economist said all banks should operate under federal charter with widespread branch banking. He said:

"The country would never suffer either inflation or deflation as a result of the policies instituted by commercial bankers if the total volume of all loans were equal to the total volume of savings currently set aside out of income by the population as a whole."

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

These officers were re-elected: Alba B. Johnson, Philadelphia, president; John A. Longacre, Norristown, treasurer; George E. Foss, Harrisburg, general secretary; E. J. Poole, Reading; Frank J. Lanahan, Pittsburgh, and John T. Harris, Harrisburg, vice presidents.

Directors elected for four-year terms were:

Elmer J. Eshelman, Lancaster; Norton Goodyear, Carlisle; P. N. Hershey, Lebanon; E. D. Hilleary, Philadelphia; C. W. Laycock, Wilkes-Barre; Donald Markle, Jeddo; W. G. Marshall, East Pittsburgh; V. A. Redfield, Oil City; C. B. Sudobrough, Philadelphia, and Ralph E. Weeks, Scranton.

INSURANCE DAY PROGRAM SET

William Quaid, of New York, will be the first speaker on the Insurance Day program in the Hotel William Penn, Monday, according to Charles H. Bokman, chairman. Mr. Quaid will speak on "Future Demands in Selling Fire Insurance."

Scheduled for the afternoon session are Harold R. Gordon, of Chicago, on "Insuring Human Time Values," and E. M. Allen, executive vice president of the National Surety Corporation, on "Development of Fidelity and Surety Business."

Forty-eight insurance company executives from all parts of the country will be honor guests at the evening dinner. John Dickinson, assistant secretary of commerce, will be the principal speaker.

Europe Is Dizzier Than Boy Spinning In Airplane Test

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

The mad Hapsburgs don't want any part of Austria. It's too crazy for them.

Europe is sure dizzier than a boy taking his first aviation test.

Poor old Sam Insull went there for a rest. Now, if Sam gets out of bed he must get out of the country. There's a law that will make you sleep late.

All we have over here is an air mail scandal among other things. Looks like you will have to go to West Point to be a letter carrier.

Mr. Farley says the mail racket cost the government $46,000,000 in honorariums, emoluments and fees. That's an educated way of blowing a police whistle.

FOUR RECEIVE HONORARY DEGREES

Record Mid-Year Class Hears Talk on Economics

Success of governmental control of business depends on retention of democratic methods as against autocracy, Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of Brookings Institution, Washington, told a banner mid-year graduating class of the University of Pittsburgh today.

Two hundred and sixty-one graduates, the largest mid-year class in the history of Pitt, heard Dr. Moulton in his address on "Government and Economics: A Cycle of Change", sketch economic trends from feudalism to the present.

Without mentioning the NRA the speaker referred to the upheaval that resulted in increasing governmental supervision of business.

BLAMES OLD SYSTEM

He blamed the fall of the old system of purely private enterprise on concentration of wealth in the hands of a few, which created the impression, "erroneous as it might be that the system promoted welfare of the classes at the expense of the masses;" the old order's failure to provide continuous employment to either labor or capital and to complications of international trade.

Governmental supervision of business and industry will not necessarily mean dwarfing of individual initiative and enterprises, the speaker asserted. He continued:

"It is gratifying to observe that in connection with the comprehensive plan with which our own government has recently been concerned, this fundamental consideration is not being ignored.

"In general, much will depend upon whether governments which are vested with large powers become autocratic in character or remain democratic in organization and in methods of operation."

HONORARY DEGREES

Chancellor John G. Bowman conferred honorary degrees upon the following: Dr. Moulton, doctor of laws; Miss Mary A. Graham Mitchell, principal and founder of Winchester School for Girls, doctor of letters; the Rev. C. Marshall Muir, pastor of Bellefield Presbyterian Church, doctor of divinity; Dr. Henry L. Banzhaf, Milwaukee civic leader and educator in dentistry, doctor of laws.

Three women, two of them members and one a former member of the faculty, received degrees of doctor of philosophy. They are Miss Olive McElroy, graduate assistant in chemistry; Miss Dorothy Torreyson, Spanish instructor, and Mrs. Virginia Gatto, former French instructor.

Highest student honors went to Edward Kalberer and Frank Engelman, both of Pittsburgh, Pa.

WILKINSBURG'S P. O. ROW VAIN

Wilkinsburg's Council can stop fighting over the proposed sale of a lot owned by the borough to be offered to the government as a site for Wilkinsburg's new post-office building, for it was learned today that the lot is not recommended as a site.

Postoffice Inspector M. V. Brown, in a report to the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General omitted the property from his recommendations.

The sites recommended are: On the south side of Penn avenue, between Wood and Hay streets, with a frontage of 80 feet and a depth of 130 feet, C. C. McKallip, agent; lot measuring 65x122 feet in Penn avenue, near Center street, Freehold Real Estate Company, agent; choice of a lot 58x132 feet on north side of Ross avenue, or a lot 33x132 feet on north side of Ross avenue; choice of a lot 66x122 feet in Penn avenue, owned by Postmaster William M. Turner, or lot 81x121 feet on north side of Penn avenue, between Center and Mill streets.

30 SUITS OVER DRUG PRODUCT

Federal Judge R. M. Gibson has set March 13 for hearings in equity suits against 30 proprietors of drug stores in Pittsburgh, filed by the A. C. Barnes Company, a Delaware corporation, which seeks preliminary injunctions to restrain the defendants from making substitutions for "argyrol" in preparation of prescriptions.

The retail stores named are located in various parts of the city. No chain drug stores are involved. The plaintiff concern is described as proprietor of "Argyrol." Affidavits filed charge the druggists named have used substitutes for the product.

The Barnes Company also asks defendants to show profits derived from the alleged substitution and to pay the costs of the cases. The company is represented by the law firm of Reed, Smith, Shaw and McClay.

PARENTS SEE TRUCK KILL BOY

A Mt. Lebanon boy was killed when he broke from his parents' grasp and ran into the path of a truck at Fifth and Liberty avenues last night.

The child Richard Zegler, 3, of 211 Jonquil place, was rushed to Allegheny General Hospital in an automobile and was pronounced dead from a skull fracture. The child dashed directly in front of the truck, according to Special Patrolman C. W. Crosby.

William Chasky, 26, of 3940 Howley street, was ordered to post bond at the Coroner's office, police said.

Mrs. Sarah Manes, 56, of 64 Roberts street, was injured fatally when she was struck by an automobile driven, police said, by Leonard Lebovitz, 28, of 839 Mellon street, in Dinwiddie street, last night. She died 10 minutes later in Passavant Hospital from a skull fracture. Lebovitz was ordered to post bond at the Coroner's office.

HURT BY THUGS, DAZED MAN SAYS

Found crawling on his hands and knees in a dazed condition at Alcor street and River avenue, North Side, early today, L. E. Seibert, 59, of 1673 Perrysville avenue, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital, where he told police he had been attacked and robbed of $300 in cash and jewelry.

He suffered a possible skull fracture and forehead injury.

Seibert was found by Howard Windhorst, Allison Park, and Thomas Ridoritsch, 1716 East street, as they were returning home from work in their auto.

$50 in Prizes Weekly for News Tips

Are you alert? Do you wish to make your alertness pay? The Sun-Telegraph is presenting the opportunity. Every week it is offering a total of $50 in prizes for NEWS TIPS telephoned to the News Tip Editor, Grant 6500.

If you know of any accident, of a business merger, of a big building project—that is NEWS. Watch especially for unusual stories about children and animals and for stories that lend themselves to interesting pictures.

For the best exclusive news tip of the week $15.00 will be given, for the second best, $10.00, and for the next 25 best, $1.00 each.

OFFICER'S RUM PREY IN JAIL

Because Patrolman Marty Cochran wanted a drink of water, Frank Cienek, rear 4500 Butler street, today had begun serving a year in jail following his conviction on a charge of violating the state liquor law. He also was fined $300.

Cochran told the jury he was hunting the source of moonshine blamed for the death of James Meghan, 2512 Davidson street, December 20, and the trail led to Cienek's place.

All Cochran found was a little booze in a cup on the sink. Thirsty, he turned on the spigot and—instead of water—liquor flowed out, he testified. He traced it and discovered a tank of moonshine in the rear yard and covered by a trap door, he related.

Pittsburgher Heads Coal Parley Group

The American Mining Congress has announced appointment of C. W. Gibbs, Pittsburgh, as chairman of the Pennsylvania, Northern West Virginia and Ohio section of the program committee for the eleventh annual convention of practical coal operators, to be held in Cincinnati the week of May 7. The committee will meet in Pittsburgh tomorrow.

Pitt Junior Named To Naval Academy

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Luczak, of Shaler Township, today announced the appointment of their son, Bernard, to the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis. He is a junior in the School of Engineering at the University of Pittsburgh.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 16.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Lots of headlines.

"Mussolini's troops camped on the Austrian border."

"Hitler says nothing." Which means that he is too busy moving troops.

"England lends moral support." Yes, and two battleships.

"France backs Austrian government," and sends a few hundred planes over to deliver the message. "Japan almost on verge of prostration in fear Russia won't get into this European war."

Will Rogers

Mr. Franklin D., shut your front door to all foreign ambassadors running to you with news. Just send 'em these words, "Boys, it's your cats that's fighting, you pull 'em apart." Yours, WILL.

Vets' Association To Hear Cronkhite

Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite will be the principal speaker at the annual reunion banquet of the Veterans' Association of Headquarters Company, 320th Infantry, tomorrow night in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

A feature of the gathering will be facilities for veterans to fill out state bonus applications. The reunion will open during the afternoon, culminating with the banquet at night. John H. Freese is association president.

FIREMAN FIGHTS TO REGAIN JOB

Trial board and service records of more than 120 city firemen have been subpenaed in the case of Delos G. Harvey, fireman discharged during the Kline administration, who, through a petition in Common Pleas Court, is seeking reinstatement and payment for the time he has been laid off.

Alexander P. Lindsay, attorney for Harvey, is expected to contend that men less meritorious were kept in service while Harvey was dismissed.

Among witnesses asked to appear are Charles Martin, Republican chairman of the Tenth Ward; Harry Feldman, Republican chairman of the Fifth Ward; Thomas F. Hansberry, chief clerk of the Civil Service Commission; Fire Chief Richard L. Smith and Robert Brown, chief clerk of the Public Safety Department.

Factory-Built Houses Seen for Future

The American home of the future will be built in a factory, shipped to the site, and put together—perhaps with a zipper!

Charles Morgan, Chicago architect and associate of Frank Lloyd Wright, thinks such a system is inevitable. In Pittsburgh for a lecture engagement, he said today's method of home building is out of step with progress made in other industries.

The factory-built house of the future, he declared, will be superior in strength, beauty and practicability to the ordinary dwelling of the present. Variety will be infinite, he said, and the cost will be cut in half.

Morgan, who designed the Italian Building at the Chicago World's Fair, is author of the skyscraper bridge sketches that call for the erection of modern apartments with penthouses, garages and elevators as the supports of viaducts.

He said the idea of the bridge occurred to him in a dream, and he has since worked out the design and plans for construction.

Voicing disapproval of a large majority of the architecture in the United States, Morgan said it is modernistic rather than modern.

MELLON-VARE LINK LAID TO COPELAND

A charge that the candidacy of Judge Charles D. Copeland for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination is an apparent attempt of the Mellon-Vare-Atterbury organization to name the Democratic nominee for Governor was made today by J. Hilary Keenan, Westmoreland County Democratic chairman.

Meanwhile, Major E. Lowry Humes declined an invitation from Judge E. C. Bonniwell, of Philadelphia, to run for the Democratic senatorial nomination on a slate headed by Bonniwell as a candidate for Governor.

DECLARES FOR MORRIS

Humes declared himself for Roland Morris, who yesterday announced against Joseph F. Guffey for the senatorial place. Humes was United States District Attorney here in the Wilson administration.

Keenan, United States marshal here, said Copeland, Westmoreland County jurist, has been a leader of one Republican faction in the county for the past 12 years. In campaign after campaign, he said, Copeland has supported Republican candidates. He added:

"I have been Democratic county chairman of Westmoreland County for the past three years, and I have no knowledge of Judge Copeland ever having been in Democratic headquarters, or ever having attended a dinner, banquet or meeting sponsored by the Democratic party during that time."

He added:

"Judge Copeland, in 1930, managed the campaign of the Vare candidates in the primary for state offices, led by Francis Shunk Brown for governor and James J. Davis for senator. It is very apparent that the Copeland candidacy is an attempt of the Mellon-Vare-Atterbury organization to name the Democratic nominee for governor."

CONFUSION IN PARTIES

In announcing his candidacy Thursday, Judge Copeland said he always had been enrolled as a Democrat.

Meanwhile, a further complication in both Democratic and Republican primaries looms with a statement by City Controller S. Davis Wilson, of Philadelphia, that unless "satisfactory" candidates announce for Governor he will seek nomination on both tickets. Davis, a Republican, was elected Controller last November on the Democratic ticket.

VARE STAND VEILED

Harry C. Davis, executive director of the Philadelphia Republican City Committee, has returned home from a conference with William S. Vare in Florida, presumably bearing a message as to the latter's preference among Republican candidates for Governor. Davis declined to confirm reports that Vare favored a plan to trot out Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon as a tentative organization choice, his final selection dependent upon how much strength he could develop in two or three weeks.

City Appoints New Light Bureau Head

Appointment of S. E. Lovitt, 448 South Graham street, as superintendent of the Bureau of Light was announced today by Leslie M. Johnston, director of Public Works. Lovitt replaces Guy D. Doty.

Lovitt for 20 years was employed by the General Electric Company as a street lighting expert. Doty has had 25 years' service with the city. The position pays $2,750 yearly.

Woman, Dress Afire, Dashes to Street

Burned when her clothing ignited from an open stove in her home late yesterday, Mrs. Minnie Herring, 47, of 1703 Arcena street, was reported in serious condition in Passavant Hospital today.

Her clothing ablaze, Mrs. Herring ran from the second-floor apartment into the street. Mrs. Alice Corrigan, who lives on the first floor, attempted to beat out the flames with a rug.

State Police Telling Their Side of Hoax Killing

J. BRADBURY — CHARLES E. MULLIN — H. A. STINNETT — CAPT. JASPER OFTEDAHL

Capt. Oftedahl as he reported to District Attorney Park with the three Butler-barracked state policemen who figured in gunplay in Indiana Township that was fatal to a 19-year-old in a "holdup" that investigating county detectives reported was a hoax arranged by officers to trap a suspected crowd of young bandits. A youth, police ally, was shot. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Muldowney Candidate For Congress Again

Michael J. Muldowney will run again for his seat in Congress, he said today, and Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., and Herman P. Brandt, incumbent state senators, obtained petitions from the County Elections Bureau to enter the race for re-election.

But opponents of Muldowney and the others, in great number, also got petitions, with indications that the ballot in the primaries may be the heaviest in many years.

Activities within the Democratic party were more noticeable, many asking petitions for that party alone.

Frank J. Harris, of Crafton, also obtained petitions here for governor, although he had taken them out on Wednesday in Harrisburg.

Yesterday's list of petition seekers included:

Governor—Frank J. Harris (Rep.), Crafton.

United States Senate—M. H. Bloom (Rep.), First Ward.

CONGRESS

Thirtieth District — Anthony Perry (Dem.), Twenty-second Ward.

Thirty-first—Carl D. Smith (Dem.) Swissvale; Rex Newton (Dem.), Wilkinsburg.

Jewels, Clothing Stolen From Home

Gaining entrance through a cellar window, thieves broke into the home of Joseph Colton, of 1693 Creedmoor avenue, last night and stole jewelry and clothing valued at $170.

OFFICERS HELD IN KILLING

Coroner's commitments charging murder were prepared today against two state policemen and two constables in connection with the killing of one man and wounding of another in a "framed" barbecue holdup.

The commitments will permit the Coroner to hold the four under $5,000 bond each. The officers have been in the county jail on district attorney's detainers.

Those held in jail, according to the detectives, are Private Charles E. Mullen and H. A. Stinnett, and Constable Irvey Assay, of East Deer Township, and Constable William Brozek, of Indiana Township. M. A. Sallade, owner of the barbecue, and Private John Bradbury were released on their own recognizance.

The "holdup" of the barbecue at Harts Run road and KDKA boulevard resulted in the fatal shooting of John Cotton, 19, of Curtisville, and the wounding of Milton Eckle, 20, of Culmerville, Wednesday night. Eckle is in St. Francis Hospital.

Eckle told county detectives the "holdup" had been arranged by state police and constables to capture a gang of bandit suspects in the district. In a statement to Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt, Eckle related how the constables had arranged the "holdup" in a plan to capture Cotton, who had been suspected as a participant in holdups.

When he and Cotton entered the barbecue, the state troopers stepped from the back room, Eckle said. Mullen fired the bullet which penetrated Cotton's heart, and he was shot by Sallade, according to the youth's story to detectives and Langfitt.

GOVERNMENT COST BURDEN GROWING

(Today's article, the thirty-fourth of a series being published by the Sun-Telegraph in its campaign to reduce taxes through elimination of waste and duplication in government, deals with a recent report on Pennsylvania, as issued by the United States Department of Commerce.)

Every man, woman and child in Pennsylvania, which has a population of more than 9,724,000, is paying approximately $70.13 each year toward the cost of operating the 5,612 political sub-divisions which exist in the commonwealth. The bill for Pennsylvania's multiple government amounts to $681,925,600, according to the United States Department of Commerce report for the fiscal year ending May 31, 1932.

Of the total $681,925,600 government bill, $457,950,033 went for operating and maintaining general departments; $9,807,635 for operation and maintenance of public service enterprises, and $155,006,546 for interest on debts.

By separating the total government operation cost into the various divisions, it is seen that the state disbursed a total of $165,691,108 and the counties spent $80,418,122. The cities, boroughs and towns spent $219,705,281 and the school districts $187,046,491. Township government cost $19,844,639 and the poor districts $8,314,607. The remainder, $905,352, was expended by the Delaware River Joint Commission.

CENSUS FIGURES GIVEN

The figures cited above are contained in the report made public this month by the Bureau of Census of the Commerce Department. The report covers a preliminary summary of public expenditures, revenues, indebtedness, assessed valuations and tax levies of the entire state, covering the state government, the 984 cities, boroughs and towns, the 2,713 school districts, the 1,574 townships, the 373 poor districts and the Delaware River Joint Commission, or a total of 5,612 political units.

An increase of approximately three billion dollars is seen in the assessed valuation of all properties in the state subject to levies of the general property tax. In 1922 the valuation was more than nine and a half billion and in 1932 it was more than twelve and a half billion dollars.

The per capita assessed valuation increase was from $1,087.35 in 1922 to $1,312.46 in 1932. In 1912 the per capita assessed valuation was $625.17.

The total levies of the general property tax for the state and all sub-divisions were $93,375,000 for 1912; $239,795,000 for 1922 and $370,671,775 for 1932, this being a per capital of $11.52, $26.70 and $38.12, respectively.

Economists and students of government state that the great increase in taxation is due to the worn-out governmental structure of Pennsylvania. The state constitution is now 60 years old and in its provisons are numerous barriers which prevent many of the proposals which would bring a simpler governmental structure and cut the cost of governmental operation.

ROOSEVELT URGES PROGRESS

President Roosevelt himself blames the old ox-cart constitutions of many states for the high cost of government operation. In his book, "Looking Forward," he notes that, "The form of local, county, and town government as we know it in most of our states, dates back to the Duke of York's laws, enacted about 1670, and it is astonishing how few changes have been made in their form since the formation of the nation."

The President points out in his book that in 1890 local government in the entire nation cost $487,000,000. In 1927, the last year for which complete figures are available, the governments of local units within states cost $6,454,000,000, an increase from a per capita of $7.73 in 1890 to $54.41 in 1927.

President Roosevelt points out that "the excessive cost of local government can most effectively be reduced by simplifying the local governmental organization and structure. We must consider each service and decide what size unit can most effectively and economically perform that service."

Summing up the entire situation, economists point out that the way out is not to cut services such as schools and health, but to reorganize local government from a worn out structure to a plan which will fit the modern needs.

What to do for COLDS

(Place no faith in so-called "instant" cold cures)

It takes several hours, and more than one kind of medicine to get any real relief from a cold. Your first aim should be to clear the head, dry the secretions, and reduce the cold fever.

You can get the necessary medicines of your druggist, by asking for Pape's Cold Compound which combines them in a pleasant tablet.

To relieve a "new" cold, take three of these little tablets; chew them up, drink some water.

To relieve a more stubborn cold will require a second treatment, and frequently a second day of this treatment, but it's worth the time. Colds that have been driven out of the system are gone.

Pape's Cold Compound relieves a cold as quickly as anything safe to take.

98 out of 100 Women say— "THIS MEDICINE HELPS ME!"

They take it before and after childbirth, at middle age, when they are nervous, weak and rundown. They give it to their daughters and they recommend it to their neighbors. When a woman learns from experience how good this medicine is, she is always eager to tell some other woman about it.

By accurate record, more than 800,000 women report benefit. Let it help you too. Get a bottle from your druggist today.

"For five years I suffered terribly with headache and backache and was so nervous I would have to go to bed. I took different medicines but with no results until a friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking four bottles I am a different woman. I only wish I had started on it when I first had my troubles."—Mrs. H. B. Lusby, 202 N. 34th St., Louisville, Ky.

"I am a young mother. Before my baby was born I was so rundown and nervous that I could not do my own housework. My mother told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ease my nerves and prepare me for childbirth. After only a few bottles I was up and doing my work cheerfully. Childbirth was very easy, thanks to your medicine".—Mrs. John Ellis, 6508 So. Campbell Ave., Chicago, Ill.

"No Backache Now"

"I have five children and a large house to attend to, besides church affairs. Last summer I was weak and rundown, and suffered so with my back. Six bottles of the Vegetable Compound helped me wonderfully. I do all my work now, sew for others and have no backache. If every woman would only take this medicine four times a day regularly there would be fewer pained faces."—Mrs. G. M. Ketel, 8558 N. Allegheny Ave., Portland, Ore.

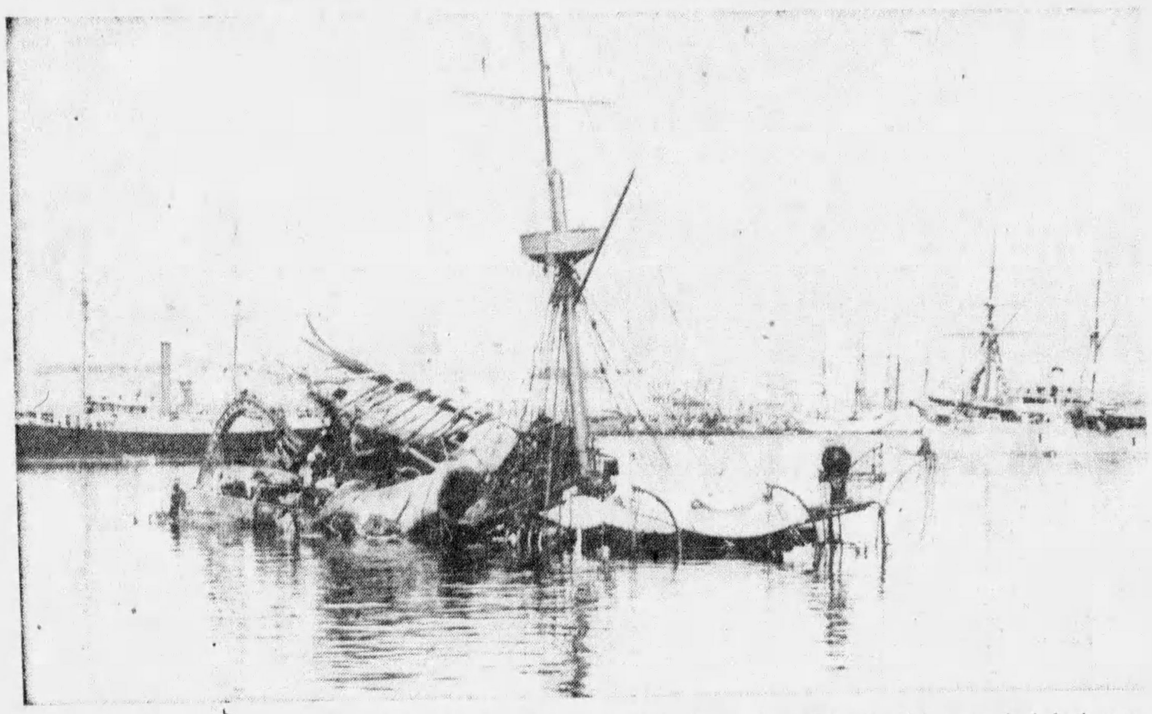
REMEMBER WHEN LILLIAN RUSSELL, EVELYN NESBIT REIGNED?

This is a Picture-Story of Dramatic Events, Personalities, Beauties, Customs and Fashions Within the Memory of Living Americans

Remember when thirty were killed, more than 100 injured when Wall Street was rocked by a terrific explosion? It was the detonation of a horse-drawn wagonload of high explosive—a mystery still unsolved—Sept., 1920.



Remember when they sank the Maine? Here she lies in Havana harbor, February 16, 1898—the day after the explosio that touched off the Spanish war. And don't you remember how America shouted: "To Hell With Spain?"

Remember when Lillian Russell, later the gracious hostess of the late A. P. Moore's estate in Pittsburgh, reigned on Broadway? The divine Lillian, as she was known, won the affection of the theater public as no other.

Remember when New York's Mayor William J. Gaynor was shot by a disgruntled city employe, August 9, 1910? Picture shows him staggering away into the arms of friends.

Remember when Evelyn Nesbit was this young beauty, climbing towards success on the Broadway musical stage? This was during her friendship with Architect Stanford White—later (1906) shot by Harry K. Thaw, her Pittsburgh millionaire husband. In this picture Evelyn is wearing one of Mr. White's expensive kimonos.

Remember when this slender slip of a girl was in vaudeville? You don't even know her? Why look at the eyes 'n' that "C'm'up look." Its Mae West in her black-haired days.

THE SOFT SPRING TAILLEUR

Below is the beloved of all women—a plain black crepe, touched with white, in this model achieved by a Louis XIV frill of organza. Note the box-plaited dust ruffle and the rhinestone links and buckle.

The centre figure shows a jacket and frock of suede crepe in navy blue, with a shirtwaist bodice of giddy tie silk. The striped frock is brown and white suede silk with a butterfly bow of white pique, swell three-quarter bat sleeves, and a tricky use of the material's design in the cut of the whole model.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE BEST WAY of thumbing the nose at slush and snow vagaries of the weather is to invest in a new frock which is distinctly forward-looking to spring. Lots of models that will do very well on the streets of May can be worn comfortably and with much pampering of the morale beneath a fur coat this week.

* * *

THIS IS THE season when a sleek black frock with accents of perishable white lingerie is usually very alluring. And the silk suit becomes interesting now, too, either in a plain color or in print—perhaps in combination of both.

THERE IS A HOT revival of boutonnieres going on just now, gay spots pinned on to further point out that one is out of winter garb and sniffing for the first pussywillows. The shops know of this annual yearning for fresh, new clothes, and it will repay any woman to look over the accessory departments, and perhaps discover items that will transform old, familiar frocks in her closet to a new life.

Miami Alumni Reunion on Monday

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Mrs. Robert Chew, efficient publicity chairman for the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club, has turned to press agenting for the local group of Miami University Alumni. From Mrs. Chew comes word of a reunion of local alumni which will take place Monday night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hodtum, Shady Drive East, Mt. Lebanon. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hodtum are Miami graduates. This gathering, like many others that will take place at the same time; will be in celebration of the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of Miami University which more than 10,000 alumni will observe in their local centers.

Miami, which is the second state institution of higher learning to be established west of the Allegheny Mountains, did pioneer service in educating the youth of the Ohio Valley. Because of the founding of five national fraternities at Miami, the Oxford university has often been called "The Mother of Fraternities." Miami, it is said, might also be called the "mother of colleges" for during the generation immediately preceding the Civil War, Miami men founded or helped found no less than 11 colleges, Wabash, Indiana, University of Southern California, Colorado College, Westminster, Monmouth, Berea, Erskine, Hardin, and old Farmer's College, near Cincinnati.

One United States President, nine United States Senators, 12 Governors of states, ambassadors and cabinet members are among Miami graduates. On the Republican ticket in 1892 the candidates for both president and vice-president were Miami men, Benjamin Harrison and Whitelaw Reid.

Active alumni organizations in 40 cities throughout Ohio and adjoining states will present founder's day programs. A radio program from Covington, Ky., will include an address by President A. H. Upham and musical numbers.

Voters' League Open Forum Tomorrow

The Allegheny County League of Women Voters will conduct another open forum tomorrow in the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium at 10:30 o'clock. The speaker will be John M. Henry, newly appointed director of the bureau of elections, who will speak on "Our Election Laws," touching definitely on the permanent registration bill.

These meetings are attended by members of the League and also by representatives of the city and borough, parochial and private high schools. Teachers as well as students attend.

Duquesne Alumnae To Be Aides to Dean at Tea

Alumnae of Duquesne University will serve as aides to Miss M. Gertrude Blanchard, dean of women, tomorrow afternoon when she presides at tea following the second annual conference for teachers of Science in Catholic high schools. The tea will be given from 4 to 5 o'clock in the Library building of the University.

The conference for teachers of Science will be held throughout the day with more than 200 science teachers from 50 Catholic high schools in attendance.

The aides will include Miss Rose Caulfield, Miss Mary Caulfield, Miss Rose Brennan, Miss Martha McCaffrey, Miss Ann Carlin, Miss Marydessie Blaney, Miss Helen Murray, Miss Agnes Craig, Miss Evelyn Craig, Miss Rose Barsh and Mrs. T. M. Redman.

And today we're gadget-minded! Being wearied of trafficking with all that goes toward making women "boo-ful," we just took ourselves to the realm of pots and kettles . . . dishes and doo-dads of the kind which makes housewives' eyes brighten and their hearts leap up! The first eye-widener being . . .

This new business of coloring starch which is reclaiming erstwhile faded and bedraggled curtains and fabrics! Heretofore to re-dye, one stirred or boiled (or both) and even then the fabric in question was a doubtful color when emerging from the dye brew. But this coloring starch makes fabrics any color desired easily, quickly and well. Leaves them with just enough of starchiness to give them "body" . . . and comes in 10 shades . . . at 10 the package (which does as high as 6 pairs of curtains by actual experience . . . we asked!)

Negro Rights Group To Meet in School

WARNS AGAINST DUPLICATION IN LEVY

Dr. O. M. W. Sprague, former financial adviser to the Bank of England and the first money expert to resign from the Roosevelt administration, favors a federal sales tax.

In an exclusive interview with the Sun-Telegraph, which together with all other Hearst newspapers is supporting a manufacturers' sales tax, Dr. Sprague said:

"I believe a sales tax would be effective if it guaranteed no tax variation during the course of manufacturing an article slated for taxation. In other words, we should prevent a duplication of the taxation."

This would be accomplished, according to sales tax exponents, by an arrangement of licenses for manufacturers. The tax would be collected on the amount of gross sales monthly, but to prevent duplication of "pyramiding" of taxes, sales from one license to another would be exempted when the commodities were sold for further fabrication or assembly.

TALKS TO CLUB

Dr. Sprague addressed the Economic Club of Pittsburgh at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club last night in his capacity as a Harvard economist. He included in his interview some helpful hints to Mayor William N. McNair, a pronouncement on the 59-cent dollar and an urge for a national comic weekly to prick the skins of experts in Washington.

To the Mayor on his single tax theories:

"I don't think there would be sufficient revenue from an exclusive land tax."

On the cheaper dollar:

"It doesn't mean that you or I are necessarily going to have more money. I believe, however, that the public feels the 59-cent dollar has come to stay and hopes that it is not going to be further reduced."

SOUNDS HOPEFUL NOTE

It was because of his opposition to the "almost daily devaluation of the dollar" that Dr. Sprague resigned as financial adviser to the Secretary of the Treasury. He sounded this optimistic note:

"If this is the last stage of monetary experimentation, I think we can go forward to other measures for a trained recovery."

It is the temporary function of the Civil Works Administration, Public Works Administration and the NRA in general to stimulate this circulation of credit and currency, Dr. Sprague explained, but he compares their work to war:

"We have higher prices in war, because the government becomes a great purchaser. But after the war, we know there will be a slackening.

"The question is whether CWA and the other alphabetical organizations haven't increased some costs too soon, before they got a momentum in trade recovery under way. Is it going to taper off so that private industry can absorb the workers now employed by the government?"

With that, the economist discarded his professional mood and declared that what this country needs is a good comic weekly that will "give those experts in Washington a weekly raillery," because:

"They are apt to take themselves too seriously. I know that a good cartoon gets under their skin much faster than the most heated editorial."

per cent of the national income. Of this $3,468,000,000, or 4.45 per cent, was apportioned to the federal government, $1,780,339,561, or 2.28 per cent, to the state government, and $5,017,789,000, of 6.43 per cent, to the local government, Maj. Humes said. He continued:

"Of each dollar of taxes collected, property pays 49 cents, income tax 24 cents, customs duties 6 cents, federal excise tax 5 cents, state gasoline 3 cents, state business taxes 3 cents, and miscellaneous, 10 cents."

The income tax system has necessitated a bureaucratic organization of accountants, auditors, lawyers and a special tax court, while businessmen have had to install elaborate bookkeeping systems or employ expensive accountants to help them make up income tax reports, Maj. Humes said, continuing:

"The nation is facing a serious emergency with a budget unbalanced from seven to 10 billion dollars. Now is the ideal time to introduce a sales tax which has successfully operated in 30 other countries.

"A sales tax is far more equitable than the present system of taxation. It is my contention that it is the most economic and scientific, the most simple to administer, the cheapest to collect and the most painless to collect in its imposition. Under it, you pay, not on your earnings, but on what you can afford to spend. The exemptions of foodstuffs and clothing will lift the burden from the poor. The man who spends the most will pay the most. The man who has little or nothing to spend, pays little or no tax."

Canada's Sales Levy To Be Discussed On Radio

An explanation of how the manufacturers' sales tax could replace the present federal income tax laws will be given by Raymond D. Evans, former Assistant United States District Attorney, in a radio address tonight at 6:20 from station WCAE. Mr. Evans is assistant to the potentate of Syria Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., which embraces 20,000 members throughout Western Pennsylvania.

The address of Mr. Evans will be the fifth in the series of radio talks in the campaign of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers in the United States, seeking enactment of the sales tax legislation. Canada's experience with the sales tax since 1920 will be cited by the speaker.

The sixth radio talk will be given tomorrow by County Controller Robert G. Woodside, former national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Mr. Woodside, now chairman of the national home at Eton Rapids, Mich., maintained by the V. F. W., will be the guest of Louis L. Kaufman, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph "Globe Trotter" at 12:15. The address will be broadcast from station WCAE.

Four Divorce Suits Filed, Two Granted

Divorce suits have been filed by Isabelle E. Lynn against Lester H. Lynn, Irene B. Duffy against Francis D. Duffy, Max Hecht against Dorothy Hecht and by Mary B. Campbell against Samuel B. Campbell.

Divorces were granted to Marian E. Morris from Paul W. Morris and to Catherine Frantz from George T. Frantz.

3 CLUBS ADD TO SALES TAX DEMAND

Three more organizations today had passed resolutions urging congressional enactment of a manufacturers' sales tax to replace the income tax.

Two others, in telegrams to their representatives in Congress, urgently requested passage of the proposed sales tax legislation.

Latest of the organizations to join the many others in the county favoring the manufacturers' sales tax are the Woman's Club of Swissvale, the Woman's Club of Crafton Heights and the Prytaneum Home Study Club of Homestead.

The action of the Crafton Heights Club was reported by Mrs. Leslie J. Dodds, president. The resolution of the Woman's Club of Swissvale was signed by Mrs. George C. Seitz.

The Prytaneum Club in addition to adopting the resolution sent the following telegram to Allegheny County's members of Congress, according to Mrs. Charles R. Stone, the president:

"The Prytaneum Home Study Club of Homestead today adopted a resolution advocating that Congress enact a national manufacturers' sales tax as a substitute for the federal income tax."

Mrs. W. H. Kuhl, president of the Travelers' Club of Pittsburgh, sent the following telegram:

"The Travelers' Club of Pittsburgh, consisting of nearly 50 members, today unanimously indorsed the manufacturers' sales tax to replace the federal income tax."

HARDWARE MAN FOR SALES TAX

With its membership generally favorable to the enactment of a manufacturers' sales tax, the Pittsburgh Retail Hardware Dealers Association at its meeting tonight will be asked to adopt a resolution urging immediate action by Congress upon the proposed legislation.

Charles W. Scarborough, secretary of the association, who will present the matter to the members assembled in Fort Pitt Hotel, said:

"I believe that most of our members are favorable to the enactment of a manufacturers' sales tax if such a tax is assessed at the source. It is too small to pass on, and would be, I am convinced, an equitable tax."

EVIL OF UNJUST TAXES SCORED BY BLASS

Economic history of nations, without exception, has demonstrated that when taxation becomes unjust or inequitable, government is undermined and destroyed, according to Andrew H. Blass, business consultant and editor of Modern Finance, Pittsburgh financial magazine.

In a brief discussion of taxation in general and the manufacturers' sales tax and the federal income tax in particular over WCAE at 6:20 p. m. yesterday.

Mr. Blass said:

BURDENS IN TAXES

"Burdensome taxation has bred revolution, armed, economic and social. The net result of high income taxes has been the diversion of capital from productive and profitable business into tax-exempt securities. American citizenry has revolted from numerous revelations of legal attempts at justifiable tax avoidance, either by taking advantage of the loophole technicalities of the law to avoid payment of the tax, or by postponing the ultimate realization of taxable income.

"Whatever the cause, the effect is the same. Sources of taxation disappear and wealth which should carry its share of the tax burden fails to do so. On top of all this the capital which should be yielding revenue to the government or profit to industry, is doing neither."

FUNDAMENTAL FACTORS

Mr. Blass outlined three fundamental factors which must exist in any sound policy of taxation:

First, revenue in adequate amount must be produced for the use of the government.

Second, the burden of taxation on those least able to bear it must be light.

Third, steady development of business and industry must be encouraged rather than retarded.

Mr. Blass continued:

"Exposed to these three principles, income taxation, because of the relatively unstable base which the tax is assessed, fails to meet the provisions of sound principles of taxation. The history of income tax legislation clearly evidences the use of the power of government in assessing taxes to reward one group and punish another group.

BYRNES BACKS SALES TAX

The first of the 1934 candidates for Congress to indorse publicly the manufacturers' sales tax as a substitute for the federal income tax today was John E. F. Byrnes, World War veteran, and a son of a former city councilman.

Mr. Byrnes seeks both the Republican and Democratic nominations for Congress from the Thirty-third District. He is a resident of the Eighth Ward and is a past state and county official of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Active in politics for a number of years, Mr. Byrnes said he advocates:

"Adoption of a manufacturers' sales tax as a substitute for the federal income tax; full payment of the federal soldiers' bonus; repeal of the federal gasoline tax; an air force second to none in the world; full payment (plus interest) of all war debts to the United States; an act to compel all those that display NRA signs to pay their employes by check, thereby exposing the 'chiselers' and to use the full power of office to bring about the elimination of ox-cart government, a thing that prevails in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County at the present time."

the butterfly collar makes this dress

You can see Bruyere's influence in the low-placed skirt pleats as well as in the youthful fagoted sleeves. But . . . it's the collar that makes the dress, Bruyere or no Bruyere. It's of barred white organdy, and it's blithe as the butterfly it's named for. Smartly tailored of mossy crepe, this dress is here in chalky blue, a dusky rose and navy. Misses' sizes. SECOND FLOOR.

ZONING HEARING TOMORROW IN M'NAIR ROW

The Board of Adjustment tomorrow will decide whether to follow its own precedent by upholding the zoning laws or give way to the unprecedented intercessions of Mayor William N. McNair.

Confronted for the first time since it was created, August 23, 1923, by a Mayor's demand that it ignore the city's zoning ordinance and the court rulings sustaining it, the board will make its decision at a public hearing, Chairman A. G. Holmes announced today.

TOLD TO 'FORGET LAW'

Mayor McNair appeared before the board last Tuesday as voluntary adviser to Miss Margaret Trimble, of 35 Semicir street, who was refused a permit for her father, Thomas J. Trimble, to build a garage only 17 feet back from the street line.

At that time the Mayor termed a Supreme Court decision sustaining the zoning laws as "a bunch of boloney" and told the board to "forget the law."

Chairman Holmes advised the Mayor the zoning ordinance would not permit construction of a new garage less than 60 feet from the street line and that it was not within the board's power to change it. To this McNair replied:

"Use common sense. Your attitude is that you don't want anybody to build."

HOME OWNERS PROTEST

During the existence of the board more than 12,000 appeals have been heard before it under three former Mayors, none of whom ever appeared before it, according to former board members.

McNair left the board meeting in a huff and yesterday said he didn't think he would attend tomorrow's session.

Holmes and the other board members declared that construction of the garage close to the street would shut off the view of the adjoining house at 45 Semicir street, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Clemens Mihm.

Today the Mihms asserted they would "go to court" if the board granted a permit. Mihm said:

"It would depreciate the value of our property, and our tenants already have told us they would move if the garage was built, because it would be right across from our front porch. Six years ago Trimble tried to get a permit and was refused."

Miss Trimble told the Board of Adjustment that her father had promised her a new car if she could get a building permit for the garage.

M'GINNIS SENDS RESIGNATION

The resignation of Attorney B. B. McGinnis from the Civil Service Commission has been received in writing by Mayor McNair, who has announced that he has a man in mind who will devote full time to the job.

Rumor at City Hall persists in giving the McGinnis incident a deeper meaning than the appearance of that attorney in behalf of a client who is suing the city in an automobile accident case.

McGinnis, active in the Democratic organization, is reported as having been active in seeking the rewarding of the faithful with jobs, while the Mayor has been making good on his pledge to leave the patronage largely to the discretion of department heads.

It is now reported that McGinnis offered to withdraw from the cases in which the Mayor objected to his appearance, but that even was not satisfactory to McNair.

Meantime, other legal opinion expressed doubts on the Mayor's idea of "starting from scratch" in the Civil Service Commission, and automatically pitching out all who passed their examinations during the Republican regime.

FIVE SEEK VOTE FRAUD RETRIAL

Counsel for five officials of the election board of the Seventh District, Fifteenth Ward, convicted yesterday in Federal Court of conspiring to falsify and alter ballots cast at the elections for United States Senator and Congress in November, 1932, today said motions will be made for a new trial.

Among those found guilty was Mrs. Mary C. Burns, mother of five children, who was majority inspector of the board. The others were Clement Wessell, judge; John W. Stanton, minority inspector, and Martin L. McTighe and Mark Stanton, clerks. The Stantons are brothers.

Mrs. Burns, the second woman to be convicted in the election fraud cases, appeared to take the verdict calmly and was surrounded by sympathetic friends.

Since the trials began last November there have been 32 convictions and eight acquittals in eight cases heard.

Joseph W. Muldowney, judge of the election board in the Third District, Fourth Ward, and brother of Congressman M. J. Muldowney, is listed to go to trial Monday, with William Maher and Mary Wagner, inspectors, and Edward Baurhem and Francis Gunshall, clerks.

Modish Lines That Flatter the Figure

Pattern 1775

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

Lines and details that follow the newest fashion trend as well as giving that graceful and slender appearance so important to the larger figure, have been combined in this lovely afternoon frock. Its outstanding success comes from the flattering collar and revers, the surplice bodice, lovely sleeves that flare so gracefully, a snug hip yoke and slender skirt treatment. A well chosen print or monotone would make up smartly—in silk, crepe or one of the lovely new sheers. Revers and vestee might be fashioned of contrast, if desired.

Pattern 1775 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 4 yards 39-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE NEW SPRING, 1934 EDITION OF THE PATTERN BOOK features all the best spring styles for adults and children. Send for your copy of this interesting, helpful book and be chic this spring. PRICE OF BOOK 15 CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN 25 CENTS.

Address orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

1.—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2.—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3.—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.

STUDENTS RAP TROLLEY FARE

Councilman John J. Kane has received a petition signed by approximately 180 students of South Hills High School objecting to street car rates and requesting that the Pittsburgh Railways Company give them a special rate, he announced today.

The signers are students residing in Brookline, Beechview and West Liberty. They want a special rate to South Hills junction. Their petition reads in part:

"The present rate of eight and a third cents is exorbitant for the short haul. Carrick and Brentwood can ride on one fare to Highland Park, Wilkinsburg and East Liberty. We here in Brookline, Beechview and West Liberty can't even go to see a football game on one fare. We have to pay two fares."

M'NAIR ASSAILS RUM IN TALK

Students of Arnold School heard Mayor McNair today define economic rent, tell a few of his expriences, denounce whisky and recite that famous old "Johnny Appleseed" story.

While he told of "Johnny," the Mayor held an apple in his hand—as an illustration, he explained to the students. He didn't eat the apple.

The Mayor advised the students to carry into life what they learn in school. A person serving on an election board should know mathematics, he said.

McNair was accompanied by City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully and his secretary, Theodore Moritz.

M'NAIR PLANS SPEECH TOUR

Carrying the gospel of "Pittsburgh First" and of economic rent, Mayor McNair will go to Cleveland tomorrow on the first of a series of missionary trips.

Lancaster, Pa., and Baltimore are on the schedule next week. Detroit is contemplated for tomorrow night.

Addressing the City Club in Cleveland, McNair will extol the merits of Pittsburgh and have a bit to say about taxation. If Mrs. McNair doesn't object too much to a plane trip, Detroit will also get some Pittsburgh advertising tomorrow night.

Wednesday evening the Mayor will make an address in Lancaster, proceeding from there to Baltimore, where he will spend Washington's birthday. His secretary, Theodore L. Moritz, will accompany him.

Besides conferences with Mayor Howard Jackson, who has given Baltimore a model financial setup, Mayor McNair will be guest at a Kiwanis luncheon there. In spite of the fact that Baltimore has substituted a two million dollar deficit with a surplus, McNair indicated he might have a few criticisms to make of the city's tax system.

Cocoa and Chocolate Ideal For Young and Old

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Health Commissioner of New York City.
United States Senator from New York.

Cocoa and chocolate make highly nutritious beverages. Children as well as adults will benefit by drinking them in moderation. They are wholesome and delicious beverages. Such praise can be given to few other drinks.

The growing child who attends school has a great need for proper food. He is growing, not only physically, but mentally. He should be taught the value of food as well as what foods will benefit him.

Many children eat their lunches at school. Usually the choice of food is limited. This can be corrected by co-operation between the home and school. I am glad to say that recently great strides have been made in planning school lunches and in guiding the child to discriminate between right and wrong eating. Most school lunch rooms serve cocoa or chocolate.

The cocoa or cacao tree grows as high as 30 feet. It yields two crops a year and these are gathered in June and December. The cocoa beans are found in pods of various shapes and colors. Only the ripened pods are gathered. These are cut, then dried for 24 hours, then carefully washed and dried again.

Roasting gives the bean its delicate flavor. After roasting and blending, the beans are pressed and the resulting liquid is poured into moulds. Chocolate is the ground cocoa bean mixed with flavorings, sugar and milk. The plain bitter or baking chocolate is made by cooling the hot liquid. To make sweet chocolate, cocoa, sugar and butter are added. Almond chocolate is made by adding almonds to the plain hot cocoa, while milk chocolate is sweet chocolate to which condensed milk is added. Cocoa is made by pressing nearly half of the fat content from the cocoa bean. The dry powder is then mixed with sugar and various flavorings.

The cocoa bean contains tannin and a substance called "theobromine." It is a stimulating drug, similar in its effects to caffein which is found in tea and coffee. It is not as stimulating as caffein. In addition, cocoa and chocolate are greatly diluted with milk so that little theobromine is found, especially in cocoa.

Cocoa and chocolate are beverages rich in fat, protein and carbohydrates. Because of these substances, they make excellent drinks for an in-between meal. Taken in moderation, they do not spoil the appetite or upset the digestion.

WHAT TO COOK, AND HOW, TOLD BY PRUDENCE

By PRUDENCE PENNY

AN INTERESTING fact I discovered the other day, which I believe will be of interest to you housewives who are always on the lookout for new and interesting recipes with which to delight your husbands and family, is the use of bottled beer in preparing cole slaw.

In fact, I found out that beer may be used almost any place where the recipe calls for liquid, except in some dessert recipes. Particularly, it is helpful in seasoning foods deliciously as in the case of jellied salads of all kinds, soups, sauces, dressings, encasserole meats and cheese dishes.

For the woman who entertain a lot and is always looking for new and unusual recipes, so that she may enjoy the prestige of serving something different from the average run of party foods, I am sure that she will be delighted with this recipe. Incidentally, beer not only gives the salad an intriguing flavor, but adds its calory content and nutritive value to that of the cabbage providing a healthful dish that contains vitamins A B and C.

COLE SLAW WITH BEER—1 medium-sized head of cabbage, 1 green pepper, shaved; 2 tablespoons celery seed, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 1 cup cooked salad dressing, season with salt and pepper, ¾ cup beer.

Chop or shred the cabbage, add the green pepper and seasoning. Combine the salad dressing and the beer, having both ice cold, and beat until smooth. Pour the dressing over the cold cabbage mixture and serve in a salad bowl lined with the crisp green lettuce leaves.

Several delicious recipes are included in today's Prudence Penny contest "honorable mention" list.

* * *

CHOCOLATE DOUGHNUTS—2 cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon grated cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon cloves, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup milk, ½ ounce chocolate, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons shortening.

Sift dry ingredients, add sugar. Dissolve chocolate in milk and add to mixture. Then add beaten egg. Lastly, stir in shortening which has been measured scantily. Rol, cut and fry in deep fat at 365 degrees F. Drain and sprinkle with powdered sugar to which a pinch of ground cinnamon has been added. Submitted by Mrs. Mabel Ellinger, Masontown.

* * *

SCALIOPED HALIBUT—3 cups halibut (cooked), 1½ cups potatoes (cooked), 2 hard cooked eggs, 2 cups bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 cups milk, 4 tablespoons butter, 1½ teaspoons salt, teaspoon paprika.

Make a white sauce of the milk, flour, butter, salt and paprika. Into a well-buttered baking dish put half of the flaked halibut and diced potatoes. Slice the hard-cooked eggs and put over this, then add about half of the white sauce. Repeat with the rest of the ingredients, putting the buttered soft bread crumbs on last. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 minutes. Submitted by Miss Anne M. Puglisi, of Donora.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS!

:-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-:

By MARION BRUNOT

Contentment Can Be Found Where There Is Love

How would you like to go on a swing, up in the air so blue?

Or again how would you like to board a steamer for the Mediterranean, and even go to old Tut's tomb?

Or would you enjoy our own Southland? Or again just good old New York with its village cafes and its Rockefeller Center?

Or maybe it is that you are tired of your job. And want something different, even if it is but selling books from door to door.

Wouldn't it be wonderful to be getting into your top coat and warming up the engine to start over slippery mountains with the nose of your car pointing seaward? Wilkinsburg, Export, Cresson . . . Huntington passed . . . and then the long, even stretch to the coast . . . Oh, just anything at all to get away.

Your boy friend tires you. He tells you all about his business, and it is such an uninteresting business he has. Now, if it were airplanes or crossing the Gobi desert, then it would be different.

And your father when he goes asleep on his chair before dinner, and his spectacles fall off and he snores. That's enough to drive you to a cocktail party.

And your mother, not that you don't love her. But she does take everything so matter of fact. Why she even smiles when she talks to the grocer over the telephone.

You have mentioned the things you are dying to do to the home folk, and have gotten a great big laugh. And the starch has fallen from your ideas for a while. You spoke to the boy friend of your wanting to have your voice tried out for the radio, and the wet blanket he swathed this idea in would have given an ordinary person pneumonia.

DREADS LONELINESS

You would quit that fellow once for all, but you dread lonely evenings. And he does buy you a nice feed downtown in lighted hotel dining rooms occasionally. And he gives you those pleasant rides over the bridges of our converging rivers at night time. The lights twinkle like stars and the reflections in the water do something to you that causes you to forget your boredom for awhile.

You read stories of girls who have gotten to desert isles with the right man, and who have been stenographers and have been sent out of town for dictation and have come back hanging on the arms of the "one and only." And you decide you'd be a Mati Hari to have your fling. There are worse things than a firing squad!

I do feel sorry for the girl who has wings, and yet never can use them. The world is large. There are many people in it. Big ideas that stay and can be used sometimes never are ours until we have matched wits with strangers.

The sweetest flower that blows wastes its sweetness no longer. A florist gets it, and exploits it in his window. It is the same with the human beings all around us, even though they are girls. All the nice things, all the interesting love affairs, all the real happenings need not go to someone else. You, I, everyone, should have a share.

HEART INTEREST

A man who wearies a girl isn't the man for her. And the sooner she lets him know it and he clears out the better it is for both of them.

When a girl is genuinely in love, everything the big boy does is edged with some sort of star dust that makes it seem wonderful to her. Why even uninteresting businesses become regular Arabian Night adventures.

You may look about and feel disgusted when you watch the older men on your street come out or go into their homes. How can their wives be so contented, and fill their days in planning meals and in setting a home in order for such husbands? The answer is love. Heart interest. Sharing one's burdens and one's joys. These things have made the plain handsome. These things have caused this older generation not to see gathering crow's feet and bending shoulders.

It will be the same with you some day, if you put some hard thinking into it. And if that thinking carries with it new scenery, well, then you better have a roundtable talk with your parents. You had better have a showdown with the boy friend.

For inhibitions are worse than exhibitions everytime.

Of course don't forget that dreams may be found walking on Smithfield street as well as on Broadway.

If You Long for First Love Consider Dickens, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

Any who still have lingering memories of a lost first love, should consider Charles Dickens and Maria Beadnell.

Maria, a roguish flirt, captured the heart of young Dickens. He suffered intensely when they quarreled and parted. Each married someone else.

But Dickens never forgot her, and he immortalized her as 'Dora in "David Copperfield."

When Dickens was famous Maria wrote to him. She received a prompt and cordial reply. They corresponded, and in time they met again.

Mrs. Winter had retained the roguish mannerisms of Miss Beadnell, but in middle-age they were ridiculous. Dickens was cured.

Later, in "Little Dorrit," Dickens introduced a character called Flora—a frank disillusionment of an old first love.

So others might find their "Doras" and "Floras" now!

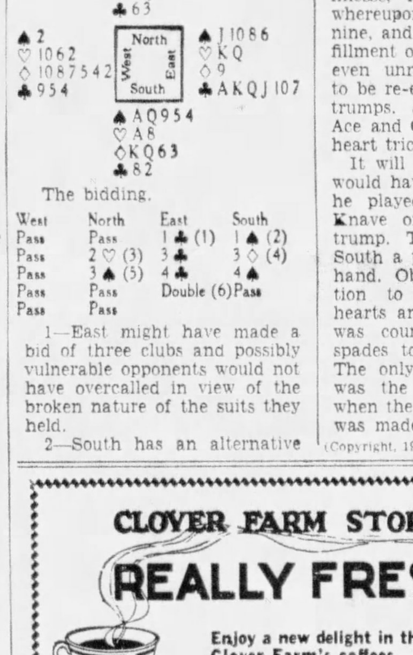
Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The 'Informatory' Double

Bridge players, or at least a great many of them, used to have a rather ambiguous phrase to denote a Double meant for a Takeout. For years it was called the "Informatory Double." As a matter of fact, all Doubles are informatory or imformative—that is, they give information—sometimes correct and sometimes incorrect, to partners and opponents, whether they are meant primarily for a Takeout or for the infliction of penalties. In a certain sense, the type of Double that is most specifically informative is the Penalty Double, which locates trump strength, as one pair in the recent Grand National Tournament of the United States Bridge Association learned to its sorrow on the hand below:

West, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The bidding.

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♣ (1)	1 ♠ (2)
Pass	2 ♡ (3)	3 ♣	3 ◇ (4)
Pass	3 ♠ (5)	4 ♣	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	Double (6)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—East might have made a bid of three clubs and possibly vulnerable opponents would not have overcalled in view of the broken nature of the suits they held.

2—South has an alternative of a Takeout Double at this point but considers, in view of the fact that his partner has passed, that the vulnerable Overcall is strong enough.

3—North has adequate trump support and hence feels safe in showing his six-card suit.

4—Encouraged by his partner's response, South shows a second suit.

5—North is almost strong enough to bid four spades but decides simply to show preference.

6—East counts on a heart trick, two clubs and one spade—a very close margin on which to double.

In the play West opened a club and East won two tricks immediately. He then returned the heart King, which South won with the Ace. On the basis of the Double South placed East with four trumps to the Knave so now led a small trump to the King and returned the three. East could see the dangers which he faced and, hoping against hope that South would not finesse, he played the eight, whereupon South played the nine, and thus assured the fulfillment of the contract. It was even unnecessary for Dummy to be re-entered to pick up the trumps. South simply led the Ace and Queen and conceded a heart trick to East.

It will be observed that East would have done no better had he played either the Ten or Knave on the return of the trump. The Double had given South a perfect reading on the hand. Obviously East, in addition to the King-Queen of hearts and his tricks in clubs, was counting on a trick in spades to defeat the contract. The only trick there could be was the one which vanished when the "Informatory" Double was made.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

The story is told in terms of the wrap-around skirt and the scarf bodice, in many new evening frocks. These features mark a very smart new evening gown of warm brown faille. Crossed bands make the bodice, and the skirt has a soft train.

Your Romeo should approve of the charming Juliet caps that are now in vogue. Fashioned of small pearls and rhinestones in a wide-mesh filet, they not only look lovely but hold the hair in place.

Resort to sunshine at a southern resort and wear the new resort clothes. A smart shoe is an oxford in white buckskin with zig-zag lacings of brown patent on bands of silver kid. The laces are white silk.

Do tricks with a plain cloth or woolen coat. Buy to go with it a hiplength cape of fur and a matching fur hat, and be fashionable. A lovely cape of nutria has a small monk's hood and is worn with a nutria beret poised very much over one eye.

Given in Marriage :-: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary and Noel Prepare to Go Away

Was Philip Veritzen's remark merely a casual one, or had he, with diabolical insight, guessed the secret doubt which had crept into my mind as I listened to the final solemn words, "I pronounce you man and wife," which had united Noel and Mary?

"No, indeed," I said sharply, "I have not the slightest regret for my part in this marriage. How could I—how could anyone—looking at those two radiant faces?"

Mr. Veritzen's keen black eyes twinkled maliciously.

"Is it your experience," he queried, "that newly married couples generally wear expressions of deep grief upon their countenances?"

"No," I answered, then added stoutly, "but those two are especially blissful, if facial expressions are any criterion. Just look at them!"

He wheeled and gazed critically at his son, standing so proudly by Mary's side.

"You are right," he said abruptly, at last. "They do look idiotically blissful. I wonder if they will weer that beautiful expression a year from today?"

I wondered something else—whether his expression of curiosity was simply that, or born of a wish that this radiant happiness should not endure. But I had no time to indulge in wonder, nor could I betray that mental process to Mr. Veritzen.

IMPORTANT TO MADGE

"That, I suppose, is on the lap of the well-known gods," I said, smiling. "We can only hope—and pray—that it will last.

He looked at me curiously.

"This really means much to you, doesn't it?" he inquired. "May I ask if it is general altruism that animates you, or do you feel especially responsible to God and the world for the success of this romance?"

I lifted my eyes and looked at him steadily.

"It means more to me than anything else in the world, save the welfare of my husband and my children."

An expression which I could not fathom flashed into the keen black eyes so steadily regarding me. It made me feel supremely uncomfortable, as do all puzzling things, but it lasted only for a second; then there came into his eyes the old, quizzical smile, with an infusion of tenderness.

"We'll have to see what we can do about it," he said, "but I mustn't keep you any longer. I see Mary, or I suppose I should say Mrs. Noel, looking longingly, if not resentfully, in your direction."

"Oh, indeed, I must go to her at once," I said, and upon the word I left him standing there and made my way to the laughing group of young people surrounding Noel and Mary.

"You needn't think you're going to escape us," Bob was saying. "We're going to give you a send-off worthy of the name, if we have to trail you all night to do it."

RUSHES TO AUNT

"Hear, hear!" Carolyn cried, while Bill and Hank, Mary's young brothers struck valiant fists into palms and chorused "That's the stuff!" as with one voice.

Ronald and Marion were laughing, but I noticed that they were not voicing the merry threats of the others. Bob put my thought into words when he put a swift, searching query:

"What's the matter with you two? Aren't you with us?"

"Oh, heart and soul!" Ronald agreed quickly, and Marion caroled, "Of course we are," with enthusiasm that apparently satisfied the others. But I was convinced that Ronald and Marion had been taken into a belated confidence by Mary and Noel, and would aid them to escape the madcap plotters.

The next instant Mary spied me and, regardless of the fragility of her wedding lace, rushed through the others to me.

"Oh, Auntie Madge, where have you been? I've missed you so!" she exclaimed, and then turned with laughing imperiousness to the others:

"Beat it a sec! I want to spin a spiel with my revered aunt. No Noel, you stay here."

She waited only until she saw the last retreating back before demanding tensely:

"What happened? What did Avis try to pull?"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Quiet Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am to be married in a month and owing to the recent death (four months ago) of my fiance's father, I would like to know if it is proper for me to have more than one attendant?

2—I am thinking of having my three sisters and a niece attending, but I have heard from several people that having more than one sister attending is bad luck. Is this ue?

3—Is it necessary to have a matron of honor? H.

1—Under this circumstance, you should plan to have your wedding most simple, with no attendant or only one attendant and only the members of the family and perhaps a very few close friends invited. There should be no attempt to have a formal wedding.

2—I have never heard of this idea of "bad luck." What luck would have to do with this is a mystery. But having three sisters and a niece as attendants would not be in good form, since your fiance's family is in such recent mourning.

3—No.

TELL IT TO ELSIE :-: By ELSIE ROBINSON

Marriage Shouldn't Be a Reform School

Would you marry a reformer—

Someone who wanted to make you over—

Who found fault with everything you said and did, and who, if you protested, assured you it was "all for your own good?"

That's Verda's problem. Maybe it's yours. If so, you can join in her Blues Chorus.

Dear Elsie:

About a year ago I met an awfully attractive man. He took me out quite a lot, and we seemed to get along fine together. He told me I was the only girl he had ever taken seriously enough to go steady with, and that he admired me very much. He was always telling me how sweet I was, and saying that I was just about perfect. Everything I did seemed okay with him.

About two months ago he asked me to marry him, and since I had fallen deeply in love with him, I said yes. And then the funny business started. He began to criticize me, and to try his best to make me over.

I've never been criticized like that. I have always been popular, and liked by most people. I was brought up to have nice manners, and not do crazy things. I am full of fun, but I am always dignified, and try never to do things that call for criticism.

But that doesn't seem to make any difference. Nothing I do is quite right any more. He is continually saying "You shouldn't have done that. You should have done so-and-so." Or "I wouldn't want my wife to be like that."

HESITATES TO MARRY

Now I never would dream of trying to make HIM over. I don't expect him to be perfect. I know he is only human. When I promised to marry him, I expected to take him As Is. And I am getting so I bitterly resent his efforts to "improve" me. It hurts me terribly when he tries to tell me how I should act.

So, in spite of the fact that we have a lot in common, I find my feelings toward him changing. I have tried to tell him how his ways made me feel, but he just sulked and said that he was telling me those things "for my own good"—which made me feel still worse—and hurt my pride. I've always been proud of trying to be regular.

What do you think? Shall I go on and marry him? Or shall I break with him? Do you think he would be different, once we were married?

VERDA.

Shall you marry him? That's up to you. Some girls have a yen for punishment — find a queer perverted delight in martrydom. Perhaps you're one of them. If so, this is certainly your golden opportunity.

For, make no mistake, the altar will not alter the lad! Even though you changed yourself entirely over to fit his specifications he would still pick and pry and pester. For that's his only relief for what ails him.

And what does ail him? His own irritated Ego, Verda. His own smarting self-esteem.

We all have, or should have, self-esteem. We all hunger for powers of some sort—crave admiration and respect—yearn to make our mark. That hunger lies at the root of every good thing that has ever been accomplished by human beings. But now and then it runs amuck, and becomes an obsession instead of a healthy hunger.

MOTIVATED BY FEAR

When something has gone wrong in life—when some youthful humiliation or repression, or some adult failure, has made us feel that we have been unjustly treated—then we become filled with a constant, furious desire to prove to the world that we're as good as we think we are.

The psychologists call that an "inferiority complex." Which is just an elaborate name for fear. Back of every braggart's boasting, of every bully's browbeating and bluffing, of every egotist's conceited monologue, you'll find the same motive—fear—fear that somebody won't realize how wonderful they are.

Why is your Hero always criticizing you? That's why. Because, by belittling you, he makes himself seem stronger and wiser in his own eyes, and, he hopes, in yours.

And will marriage cure that? It certainly won't. It will simply give him an immeasurably greater opportunity to make you feel like a plugged nickel. Which, unless you're a natural worm, is bound to make a mess of any marriage.

For marriage isn't a reform school—nor is it a one-man act. And if two people can't take each other As Is, and share the spot-light 50-50, they'd better not start.

So, unless you dote on grief, you'd better tell him to go peddle his papers, Verda. And find yourself a man who is sufficiently sure of himself to live—and let live.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Walk with toes straight ahead, chest expanded, hips tucked back, arms swinging comfortably at the sides. Walking is an excellent exercise. Put on your seven-league boots, chuck high heels. No woman walks comfortably on stilts. Good time to wash out your lungs; it will make them happy. Walking brings the figure to normal proportions, puts curves on lean legs, slimmers down fat ones.

You may not believe it, but cheeks aren't as blushy as they have been in the past. Lots of girls are chucking the rouge pad, endeavoring to attain a more subtle effect, concentrating on faint eye shadows and lipstick. The secret of make-up success is in the skin itself which must not be too dry or too oily. Synthetic beauty is wasted on a complexion of poor texture or sallow tint. Once again let us remind the beauty class that health rules mustn't be passed up.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Neglect of Simple Cyst a Dangerous Procedure

Many persons believe cysts and tumors are cancerous. Of course, the tumor may be malignant in its nature but in most cases it is likely to be harmless and not at all dangerous to the health and life of the afflicted person. In most instances, a cyst is a perfectly harmless tumor. By this I do not mean that it should be neglected.

Dr. Copeland

One of the most common types of cyst is that known as a "sebaceous cyst." This form of tumor is commonly found on the skin, especially of the scalp, behind the ear, or it may be in the armpit. As a rule it is always found in an area of the body where hair is present.

The sebaceous glands are found in the skin and manufacture an oily secretion. The sebaceous cyst is formed by an obstruction of the outlet of a sebaceous gland. As a result of this obstruction the material normally expelled by the gland accumulates within it, leading to the formation of a cystic mass. This mass or tumor may grow rapidly, but usually it grows slowly and eventually may reach an amazing size. Cysts as large as a hen's egg located in the scalp are not at all uncommon.

Occasionally the cyst may rupture and expel its contents. But the opening may close and there is a reformation of the tumor mass. In that case the cyst will regain its former size.

Contrary to popular belief, a cyst can be cured only by complete surgical removal. The application of ointment and salves is of no avail and sometimes may prove irritating.

Unfortunately, many persons neglect this simple trouble. Many avoid medical attention because they fear the knife. But the operation is so simple there is no need for alarm. It is performed in the doctor's office and need cause no disability. A local anesthetic is used, preventing all pain.

Frequently I am asked whether neglect of a cyst or simple tumor is dangerous. I advise the removal of all cysts because neglect may lead to irritation and infection. An infected cyst is painful, requiring prolonged care and even after the delayed operation is performed. Much time and discomfort are saved by early attention.

Many authorities believe that prolonged irritation and neglect of a simple tumor or cyst may lead to cancer. Of course, this does not mean that every cyst has in it this possibility, but the remote possibility must not be overlooked.

Do not confuse a cyst with a boil or other skin infection. Unless infected, a cyst is painless. It grows slowly in most cases and causes no discomfort. But it is annoying and disfiguring. Certainly it is wise to have it removed.

THE PROBLEM:

"I must think of something new to serve during Lent!"

THE ANSWER

BREAST-O'-CHICKEN

HOT TUNA FISH RING

1 tin Breast-O'-Chicken tuna fish — 1 cup cracker or bread crumbs
2 eggs — 1 tsp. salt
2 cups milk — 1-8 tsp. pepper

Beat eggs; add shredded tuna fish and other ingredients. Pour into buttered ring mold, set in pan of water and bake in a moderate oven for 25 minutes. When unmolded, fill center with creamed peas and serve hot.

WHEN you buy Breast-O'-Chicken brand tuna fish you get a substantial, nourishing food, rich in vitamins A and D, high in protein content. Look for the tin pictured below. It is your positive assurance of your money's worth, backed by the Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval. An NRA product!

Hints for the Household -:- -:-

When possible, always keep a kettle of water boiling on the fire. Boiling water is frequently required in the home—sometimes in a hurry—and it is better to have it ready, even if it is not wanted, than to be without it and to find a sudden and immediate need of it, which would probably incur the expense of using gas. Water which has been boiling for hours is just as good as water that is freshly boiled; this is a scientific point which many lay persons have presumably disbelieved.

Candles can be used to the last inch in this way: Obtain a cork which fits tightly into the candlestick and drive a screw through this, the point protruding about half an inch. Press the candle firmly on to the screw point. Candlesticks will keep much cleaner if this is done. Here is another suggestion. Candles that do not fit the holders need not be shaved with a knife. Dip the bases into boiling water, and they will be found to fit any candlestick.

When shoes are lined with leather at the heel stockings often become stained where they come into contact with the leather. Ordinary washing often fails to remove these marks. If the stained parts are damped with lemon juice, however, and this is allowed to remain for some time, the stains will quite disappear when the stockings are washed.

Fruit stains on white or colored fabrics usually disappear when boiling water is poured on them from the height of a few feet. Sponging with hot water is almost as good for delicate fabrics. If a blue or gray mark is left on white fabrics moisten it with lemon juice and repeat the hot water treatment. Do not apply soap to a fresh fruit stain or to a blue or purple cooked fruit stain, as the alkali "sets" the dye in the fruit juice. Sponge with water alone first of all. Most cooked fruit stains yield to hot water.

When knitting or crocheting, the ball of wool has a knack of eluding you by rolling under chairs or furniture. To avoid this put the ball of wool into a paper bag, turn down top and put a rubber band loosely round; it keeps the wool clean and it cannot run away.

Home Life of the Stars

At close of day Miss Verta Bray
Is fond of reading Dickens.
Miss Crepe de Chine, the Follies queen,
On Sundays raises chickens.
When Chester Croon comes home at noon
He always feeds his fishes.
When Hotsy-Tot is off the lot
She dries the supper dishes.

Miss Betty Blah assists her pa
Around their old plantation.
Miss In-Your-Hat has taught her cat
To purr in syncopation.
Miss Famous Phiz is quite a whiz
At cooking macaroni.
(To all of which the answer is Three syllables—Baloney!)

—Arthur L. Lippmann.

Haw!

Far be it from us to go around inviting a sock on the nose, but a good paragraph is worth a sock on the nose. Sunday midnight at the Casino de Paree where Broadway and Main street jammed the place—Billy Rose, the producer of the proceedings, began calling on celebs.

He introduced his wife, Fannie Brice. Billy is her second groom, she was formerly Mrs. Nicky Arnstein. However, Fannie had a cold and was not in the mood. She bowed politely, and tried to get out of the ordeal of being funny. Her husband rushed from the stage and talked her into it.

"Oy!" she half-joked, "wait'll I get him home!"

To which a wag in the rear gagged:

"She'll hit him with Nicky Arnstein's picture!"

Quiteso, Quiteso

Add definitions of friends—Charles L. Mittel's:

"There are some people who need no friends. The cemeteries are full of them."

Broadway's Like This

The small-time producer of a show which grossed a new low of $7 one performance was discussing the new record. But like all showmen he couldn't resist exaggerating.

"Did you hear," he began, "about my show grossing $8?"

That Would Be a Thrill!

If we ever do a column called: "Last Night I Dreamed" it will include:

"That in one of the Broadway delicatessens I dreamed I saw a herring eat a songwriter!"

Imagine!

One of the darlings of a cafe show snubbed this column the other night, after the editor of it smiled his usual greeting. But she threw her pretty nose to the ceiling and passed on.

"Well," said the puzzled columnist, "what'd I do now?"

"She's sore," explained a friend, "because you wrote that she had a fight back stage and you called it a draw."

"But why is she angry?" said the columnist. "I heard she lost."

Heheheh

And Bob Hope of "Roberta" knows a movie star who lost her job because she was too expensive. They had to hire a double for the four-syllable words.

Izzy Elinsonisms

These certainly are chilly days for a bald-headed nudist. . .Add jobs that keep you guessing: House detective in a nudist hotel. . . I just found out why so many foreign stars are brought to Hollywood. A movie producer figures that it is one way of making what he speaks—sound like English. . . Roosevelt's birthday cake weighed 350 pounds. I'll bet you can eat THAT cake and have it, too!

Defining a Columnist

The Lite Dige reports that a London critic has a definition of a columnist "who day in day out delights, instructs, annoys or bores as the case may be, the readers whose eyes turn by a fatal attraction to the particular column each morning."

"It is obvious," adds the critic, "that he must be a good hand at his work or the public would not continue to read him, nor the newspaper owners to employ him. But no man can produce a masterpiece every day; and what the skilled columnist does is to turn out, at a moment's notice, a set of clever variations upon some formula that has become so much part and parcel of his being that his column is hardly any more trouble to him than walking or shaving."

Or waiting for the ideas to come.

Life Struggles in Jungles Pictured at Fulton

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

Stalking of prey, the survival of the fittest, hidden terrors of the jungle, man turned beast, pile atop each other to form "Jungle Tiger," animal thriller in the Fulton.

Wandering through it all is a faint romantic tinge, the love of two men for one maid, but the attempted plot is entirely incidental. Although Harry Woods, Marion Burns, Kane Richmond, and little Ah Lee are the listed cast, the real cast is made up of untamed animals fighting for their lives.

The Malayan jungles of Asia form the background of Harry Wood's hunt for "the devil tiger" that has terrorized whites and natives alike. With him on the hunt are Kane Richmond, adventure-seeking young American; Marion Burns, whose father has been killed by the devil tiger, and Oriental Ah Lee, mascot of the party.

Particularly vivid are the animal battles, a 40-foot python strangling a water buffalo, an alligator and a tiger fighting for supremacy in swirling waters, a hyena attacked by a Malayan bear. One of the conflicts is amusing, a monkey trying to rid himself of three giant crabs that insist on sticking.

Crouching through all the scenes is the tiger whose appearance presages death, until he himself is killed by the hunting party. The human characters manage to remain onlookers, not the center, in the action.

Lighter divertisement is offered in three comedy shorts and a Hearst News Reel. Mickey McGuire and Our Gang put it over in a truly amusing "Mickey Minstrel," while Rip Van Winkle is the subject of a musical Terrytoon. Vince Barnett is seen in "Air Maniacs," with not a logical moment in it.

Stage, Movie Offerings Of Today

Presenting it as its first stage attraction in many months, the Stanley is offering "Artists and Models of 1934," with a cast headed by Jans and Mahlalen and Jimmy Save, comediens, and including Edith King, formerly leading woman of the George Sharp players here. The screen feature is Paul Lukas and Elissa Landi in "By Candlelight."

* * *

"This Side of Heaven," with Lionel Barrymore and Fay Banter in the stellar roles, is the screen feature now showing in the Penn. Cab Calloway and his Orchestra are the stage attraction.

* * *

"Man of Two Worlds," a story of a man who falls in love with a picture of an English girl, and who later meets her is the photoplay playing today in the Warner with Frances Lederer and Elissa Landi in the featured roles.

* * *

Randolph Scott and Barbara Weeks are featured in "The Last Roundup," part of the double bill in the Davis and Regent, "Beloved," with John Boles and Gloria Stuart in the starring roles, is on the bill also.

* * *

"Massacre," with Richard Barthelmess and Ann Dvorak, is showing on the Sheridan Square screen.

* * *

The Texas Guinan girls and a company of midgets are featured in "World's Fair Scandals," current stage attraction in the Pitt, Ralph Cook being the chief comedian. Randolph Scott is on the screen in "Broken Dreams."

* * *

Jack Holt and Fay Wray have the leading roles in "Master of Men," first run photoplay coming to the Enright screen Saturday. Holt plays a furnace worker in a steel plant.

* * *

"Palooka," human interest comedy, with Jimmy Durante as manager of Stuart Erwin, a pugilist, will open in the Fulton next Monday, "Devid Tiger," current, to stay only two days more.

By Mark Hellinger

College for the Week-End

(PART TWO.)

THOSE OF you who missed yesterday's column must be informed at this point that I spent last week-end at Cornell University. My brother is a senior up there, and is liable to be so for several years. The occasion was the junior prom—and the real reason for my being there was that my wife wanted to go.

As for me, I can take my Proms or leave 'em alone. I don't dance in the first place, or in any other place. More, the city of Ithaca, New York, where Cornell has been losing football games for many a year, considers 20 below zero a mild temperature. Still more, having been tossed out of colleges in my youth as fast as I could enroll, I was never able to developed a great fondness for any of these halls of learning, as they are jokingly called.

But my wife wanted to go—and that sentence has settled arguments ever since Adam and Eve were expelled from Paradise University for making apple-jack. And so, after the long trip from New York, I stood in my room in the Ithaca hotel and gazed at my dear wife. Dear is the word.

"Well," I growled, "you wanted to see Cornell—and here we are. So what? It's 25 below zero, my feet hurt, I have a headache and I just saw a woolen salesman in the lobby to whom I owe 50 bucks from a poker game about 10 years ago. I suppose you're glad you came, aren't you?"

Mrs. Hellinger nodded contentedly. After years of experience, I will go on record as stating that there is nothing that will bring more wifely contentment than a husbandly complaint.

"Yes, indeed," she smiled. "I think I'm going to enjoy myself immensely. Personally, I feel fine."

Then it was my turn.

"I'm happy to hear it," I said, "because this will be a good time to tell you that all the grips are locked—and the keys are back in New York on the library table."

And I wasn't kidding, either. My wife gave a startled grunt, moved quickly in my direction—and I saw that she wasn't kidding, either. Fortunately for one of us, probably me, the door opened at that moment and my brother rushed in. My brother never knocks, which may mean that he's training to become a Broadway columnist.

"Well, folks," he cried breezily as he kissed my wife, "thought you'd be all ready by this time. Hurry it up. We're due at the cabaret dance at the Helta Delta Skelta, and then we have to race over to—"

"There will be no racing," I interrupted. "As a matter of fact, it looks as though there will be no dressing. Your sister-in-law left the grip keys in New York."

The lady gave a horrible howl!

"I forgot the keys?" she shrieked. "Why, how dare you say——"

My brother raised a hand. It made a rather unusual picture because very few student hands are seen raised without a glass in them.

"Nothing to it, my dear brother," he smiled as he kissed my wife. "I'll have Bob Causer, the manager of this hotel, up here in a minute. There's nothing he can't fix."

And the kid was quite correct. Mr. Causer proved to be a genial gentleman who not only runs the Ithaca Hotel, but also has a band called the Cornellians, runs a charming little restaurant named the Dutch Kitchen, is the official check-casher for Cornell University, and wears vests that look like the dawn coming up on the road to Mandalay.

In no time at all, Mr. Causer had those locks open for us. All it took was one hammer, one colored porter and one saw. So well were those locks opened that they could never be used again . . .

Well, I'd like to tell you a great deal more about my experiences at college—but time, lack of space, and a somewhat hazy memory all combine against me. About all I can recall is that they took the missus and myself from dance to dance. And then, for the sake of variety, around breakfast time took us to a dance.

Wherever I turned, I was up to my neck in bands. They had Johnny Hamp and Claude Hopkins and Bob Causer's outfit and Hal Meade and Art Kenaga and—oh, I can't remember half the names. To make matters worse for me, each band had its own crooner. The whole town looked as though it were harboring a crooners' convention.

But that, as Syd Stogel points out, is the way it goes. Up at Cornell Mr. Herbert Hoover will be happy to learn, Prosperity is just around the Crooner . . .

Frankly, after awhile, I grew to like the doggone thing. I never did get to see the campus or the college buildings, but if they're anything like the cellars of the fraternity houses—why, they're okay with me. I really had a swell week-end.

But I did feel a little sorry for the wife. After all, it had been a trifle tough for her. She must have danced at least once with every student in the college, and at least three times with every football player. She even danced with a few professors, and that takes plenty of nerve.

It was she, however, who had insisted that we make the trip. So, as she complained of a general weariness on the way back to New York in the train, I couldn't resist a smile. I never was much of a smile-resister, anyhow.

"Sorry you're tired, honey," I offered. "But it's your own fault, you know. It was you who insisted on going to Cornell for the week-end."

She sat up with a bounce.

"It was I who insisted?" she cried. "How dare you! You know very well that, if it hadn't been for you, I wouldn't have made the trip for anything in the world!"

I wonder if Reno is a nice city? . . .

Stormy Petrel Sullavan Is Cast

By GWYNN

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 16.—That stormy petrel of the Universal lot, Margaret Sullivan, it would seem, has finally and definitely been cast for the leading role in "Little Man, What Now?" which Universal will rush into production, having abandoned its plans for making "Elizabeth and Mary."

Behind the shelving of that picture is a very funny story about Lowell Sherman. Sherman was signed to direct that picture and the first day he showed up at the studio for work he was a veritable vision of sartorial splendor. One of the workers around the place took one look at him and made a bet with another fellow that such elegance wouldn't last — and it didn't!

About the fourth or fifth day, Sherman was walking around in his shirt sleeves. And gradually on through the days he discarded the formal attire and acquired slacks and sweat shirts until, finally, the day he decided to walk out on the assignment due to casting arguments, he had "appeared" to everyone in dirty old tennis pants and shirt and minus his ever-present monocle.

Terry Hunt, ex-fighter and trainer for many a celebrity, could probably tell you more about Hollywood's stars (particularly the femmes) than anyone else. Terry started by working out with Ernst Lubitsch almost exclusively, but Lubitsch told the Countess Frasso about how the weight just poured off him under Terry's guidance—and then the rush was on! He goes to the Countess every morning at 10—giving exercise. Then he goes to Sally Eilers, Katherine Menjou, Frances Marion and scores of others—not all in the same day, of course, and he always tells one star that another is doing better, etc.—just to keep them at fever pitch and interested in their "workouts."

MGM has been having a lot of fun with a picture that may or may not be put on the screen called "Stealing Through Life." Rowland Brown was signed up for three months to write and direct it, but at the end of that time hadn't even completed the script and MGM decided to let him go, and to shelve the picture. However, it's come to lige again and it is now planned to have Franchot Tone play the lead, and Nat Ferber has been signed to write the story.

After all the fuss and fuming by Cecil B. De Mille about whom he should get for the part of Caesar in "Cleopatra," the part was finally handed to Warren William and he was given to Paramount in exchange for Charles Ruggles, whom Warners wanted for the starring role in "Friends of Mr. Sweeney." So the search for the right man turned out to be one of those romances of big business.

Despite all the talk pro and con in the papers as to whether he will star Anna Sten in "Barbary Coast," Sam Goldwyn is going right ahead with elaborate plans for its production. William Wellman has been borrowed from Twentieth Century to direct and Dwight Taylor has been given a contract for the writing of the screen play. And Gary Cooper may still play opposite the fascinating Miss Sten, unless previous engagements prevent because of the delay in starting this production.

Random Shots: Albertina Rasch gave a party the other night and among the guests was Maurice Chevalier, who somehow managed to disappear during the course of the evening . . . When found he was in a small room listening to Chevalier records . . . Tallulah Bankhead has turned down an offer of $4,000 a week to do personal appearances . . . Roger Pryor will play second lead to Lee Tracy in "I'll Tell the World" . . . Fredric March and Connie Bennett seem to be the coming romantic team for pictures . . . Virginia Bruce is being deluged with picture offers and may accept one any minute . . . That knowing little bird that gets in everywhere is whispering the fact that the Garbo-Mamoulian romance is now just so much good publicity—for Mamoulian . . . With all Hollywood basking in summer sunshine, the Clark Gables spent the week-end with Helen Hayes up in Nyack with the temperature 10 below zero—and they loved it . . . Harpo Marx may go on the air and play his heavenly harp. . . He wants to talk, too . . . Garforbid.

Miss Scheff Released By the Variety

Fritzi Scheff, announced a few days ago as an attraction for the Variety, February 26, has been booked for a tour through the South, to begin at this time, hence she will be unable to appear in Pittsburgh at the time announced.

The Variety offer to Miss Scheff was the result of a statement in Walter Winchell's column that she had lost her job as a New York night club hostess and was in need of work. The chance for a tour being more important to her, the Variety theater management willingly released the singer from the local engagement, made by a New York agent. Ben Jaffe, acting manager of the Variety, has received a letter of thanks from Miss Scheff.

A FEAST for Washington's Birthday

After consuming great plates of oven-baked beans our forefathers went out and asserted their independence. Oven-baked beans were the favorite dish. Our ancestors found them both savory and fortifying.

So on the birthday of the Father of Our Country let us enjoy again this old-time favorite food. Thrill to the good aroma. Delight in the rich, sweet flavor. Revel in the mealy goodness. Then arise, imbued with the sort of courage that makes history.

57 Now this feast will be thrifty and simple to fix. (For Heinz Oven-Baked Beans are reasonably priced and all ready to heat and serve.) And yet it will have all the grand old gusto, for HEINZ are really oven-baked BEANS!

HEINZ

THE GREATEST IMPROVER!

Folks of all races put Heinz Tomato Ketchup on foods of all sorts. And love it! . . . The secret of this universal charm is a flavor enticing, exciting, absolutely unique. Flavor begotten of the union of fresh-picked, Heinz-bred tomatoes, lusciously ripe, and rare spices selected by Heinz around the world. That is how we make the greatest food-improver on earth. That is why

57 HEINZ is the largest selling ketchup in the world

H. J. HEINZ COMPANY

Heinz Cream of Mushroom Soup has won widespread popular favor!

Heinz 16 soups are made to home-made recipes. They are made unhurriedly, carefully, right through to the finish. We believe that you good housewives who have taken the trouble to brew a kettle of good, old-fashioned, home-made soup and who know how soundly satisfying such soup can be—we believe that you will always prefer that kind of soup.

So that is the kind of soup we make. We use fresh, crisp, carefully selected vegetables. And whole, sweet cream. And genuine prime meats. We make our soups in small batches in open kettles, carefully watching each stage of the cooking. And we carry them right through to the final step, sealing them hot in tins, all ready to eat—nothing to add, nothing to do but heat and serve.

By completing the job we are able to save you the trouble of measuring and blending in extra ingredients. We are able to safeguard the quality of the final soup as you serve it, too. A vitally important point. Listen:

57 A sample of each batch of each soup in its final form (exactly as you will serve it) is tested and tasted for food-value and flavor. We do this to be absolutely sure the soup you serve will be just right.

We are sure you will like Heinz home-recipe soups best. We want you to try them. But we don't want you to risk any money. So we offer them to you on the plain, straight, "on approval" guarantee you see above. With this protection, next time please try Heinz Soups.

REACTION LOWS BELIEVED REACHED

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—An examination of the stock market's recent performance makes it seem probable that the lows of the reaction were seen last Saturday. A period of dullness and narrow movement may possibly lie immediately ahead, on account of disturbing political factors, but it seems reasonable to assume that the trend is still toward higher levels.

Judging by the action of the market, one may say on the bull side that:

1—The bond market has snapped back and shown strength.

2—The railway issues have done likewise.

3—The old-line leaders among stocks have been relatively strong.

4—The most actively traded issues have made gains in the last three days, while the percentage of the total volume made by such issues has risen.

5—The market turned dull on the decline Wednesday, and volume increased in the afternoon rally. Also, stocks opened strong yesterday and held up in the first hour.

6—The reaction thus far has not been great enough to break out of an ascending zone or "path," nor to stop the rise in a five-week "moving average." Thus one may still say that the "underlying trend" is upward.

7—Business activity reports are on the whole encouraging enough to allow further bullishness, especially in case of steel and automobile output.

BEAR ARGUMENTS

On the bear side of the argument, we find the following points:

1—The daily volume of trading has fallen, and was lower Tuesday and Wednesday, when stocks turned up.

2—This suggests the possibility of a further "secondary" reaction, which may be considered not improbable in view of the "support stock" taken on Saturday and the short covering which helped the subsequent upturn.

3—Possibly some decrease in foreign buying is suggested by lower dollars and higher pounds in exchange.

4—"Asked prices" have not been raised in proportion to actual selling prices, perhaps indicating greater willingness of holders to sell at prices but little above the market.

5 — Uncertainty concerning foreign conditions and exchange regulations tend to keep some out of the market.

SELLING PRESSURE OFFSET

A careful examination of this statement of the case suggests that the bulls have the better of the argument, at this moment.

It is true that there has been some short covering; but aside from aviation isues, this has not been a very important factor. Stock market regulations is not coming for a good while, and is not likely to be nearly as drastic as feared. A foreign war would probably be regarded as "bullish" for a wide list of "munition stocks."

On the whole, I would say that yesterday's performance was favorable. The leading stocks poked up to or through their upper resistance levels and held their ground well enough to indicate ability to penetrate into higher territory. In other words, buying was good enough to offset any selling pressure.

Although it must be admitted that the break through on the up side has not yet been decisive, and caution requires that buying be withheld pending a decisive penetration on volume, I am inclined to think that higher prices will be seen between now and the middle of March.

Jersey Employes Get Stock at $43

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Employes of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey have been offered common stock at $43 a share under the company's stock purchase plan, it was announced today. The price will apply to subscriptions during the first half of the current year.

During the second half of 1933 stock was offered to employes at $34 a share which compared with $30 during the first half.

AUTO INDUSTRY POINTS COURSE FOR BUSINESS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—The automotive industry is highly sensitive to the factors making for economic recovery, and is a good barometer of the trend.

Alert parts and accessory manufacturers, serving the whole array of assemblers of finished cars, are in position to get a birdseye view of the progress of the industry as a whole.

Mr. Rukeyser

Accordingly, I asked J. O. Eaton, chairman of the board of the Eaton Manufacturing Company, at Cleveland, makers of parts to be found in all automobiles, for his impressions. Mr. Eaton, with the ledger experience of his 11 Ohio and Michigan plants before him, predicted an increase in automobile output in 1934 of 30 to 35 per cent over the 1933 record.

SEES BIG GAIN

The parts business in the first quarter is running 100 per cent above the 1933 level, but a year ago conditions were disturbed by the prevalence of banking troubles, Mr. Eaton believes that the parts industry in the first half of the year will run 35 per cent to 40 per cent ahead of a year ago. Eaton declared:

"It is difficult to attempt to forecast beyond that time, but it is my belief that the automobile output for 1934 will exceed that of 1933 by 30 per cent to 35 per cent, and may reach three million units. Some people in the industry believe that even this total may be exceeded by another half million cars.

"This optimism is based on the exceptional interest shown in the automobile shows and on the fact that this year there seems to be a strong trend towards the actual purchase of a car instead of merely wishing for one."

The significance of the statistical forecast may be heightened by comparison with the record. Production totaled 5,358,420 cars in 1929, 1,430,375 in 1932, and 2,400,000 in 1933.

CASH TO STOCKHOLDERS

What should management do with the profits of 1934? Harry F. Sinclair, chairman of the Consolidated Oil Corporation, has announced that his company will pay out in dividends all the net income applicable to the common stock. Not contemplating any important capital investments.

And having "ample" cash on hand, the management has felt it is in position to pay out all the earnings. One of the stated reasons for the policy is "to contribute in a practical manner to the recovery program." Numerous other corporate directors have been actuated by similar considerations. It is good to take care of stockholders when they are especially in need of funds. By withholding excess earnings in fat years, companies can put themselves in position to be generous in lean years.

Exchange Asks Data On Air Stock Trades

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—The New York Stock Exchange today launched an investigation into recent trading in aircraft stocks.

The exchange has notified all members to report to the business conduct committee by noon, February 19, a list of all sales of such stocks made from January 26 to February 9, the names of members of firms through whom transactions were made, and of the customers for whom they were executed.

While exchange officials declined to comment on the investigation, it was widely interpreted in Wall Street as an echo of the investigations in Washington of airmail and Army and Navy aircraft contracts.

LESS RESERVE CREDIT OUT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—The average daily volume of Federal Reserve bank credit outstanding for the week ended February 14 as reported to the reserve board today by the reserve banks was $2,609,000,000, a decrease of $7,000,000 compared with the preceding week and an increase of $510,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1933.

On February 7 the total reserve bank credit amounted to $2,593,000,000, a decrease of $13,000,000 for the week. This decrease corresponds with decreases of $58,000,000 in treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks and $21,000,000 in non-member deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts, and an increase of $53,000,000 in monetary gold stock offset in part by increases of $115,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and $4,000,000 in money in circulation.

The system's holdings of bills discounted declined $5,000,000 of bills bought in open market $11,000,000 and of United States Treasury notes $2,000,000, while holdings of treasury certificates and bills increased $2,000,000.

CAR LOADINGS RISE 8,406

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Loadings of revenue freight during the week ended February 10 totaled 572,504 cars, an increase of 8,406 cars over the previous week, 67,841 over the like 1933 week and 10,969 over the corresponding 1932 period, according to the American Railway Association.

President Not to Change Reserve System

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

Business Editor.

THE FEDERAL RESERVE system is not doomed to oblivion. This was made clear by President Roosevelt yesterday.

The new monetary policies of the government had provided a basis for rumors that the Federal Reserve banks were to be supplanted by a new central bank, organized on lines similar to such institutions in Europe.

Other reports relegated the Federal Reserve to a minor position in the American financial structure. It was thought that new means of controlling credit would reduce the importance of the Reserve System.

* * *

President Upholds Reserve Position

THAT THE Reserve system is to continue to function in its present form was indicated in a letter from President Roosevelt to Gov. Eugene Black. The letter said:

"My Dear Governor:

"Several days ago I approved the gold reserve act of 1934.

"The law itself in no way impairs the strength of the Federal Reserve banks. They have simply exchanged their gold for gold certificates, issued by the Treasury and collateralled by 100 per cent of gold.

"These gold certificates so collateralled with gold supply all reserve requirements of the reserve act. This bill interferes in no way with the credit, currency or supervisory responsibilities of the Reserve banks. Their powers will continue to be exercised in the interest of agriculture, commerce and industry, just as they have been for the past 20 years.

"It gives me pleasure at this time to express my appreciation of the splendid services the Federal Reserve System has rendered in connection with our efforts to bring about recovery. It has been an institution of incalculable value through the 20 years of its existence; soon after its organization it was an important factor in enabling this country to aid in winning the war; and more recently it has given firm support to the government's efforts in fighting the depression.

"It has stood loyally by the interests of the people by supplying them with a sound currency, by placing at the disposal of member banks a large volume of reserves available to finance recovery, by exerting a powerful influence toward the rehabilitation of the commercial banking structure, and by cooperating in every way with the government's financial program.

"Very sincerely yours,

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

No Changes Planned For Reserve System

JUDGING FROM THIS letter, no changes of any importance are being considered by the administration. The communication definitely banishes any lingering beliefs that this country is to have an entirely new type of central banking system.

Of course new financial influences have been brought to bear on economic problems and more new ones may be used in the future. But any government plans for the control of credit will be made with the Federal Reserve as a basis, not with a new type of banking system.

STOCKS CREEP UP IN QUIET TRADING

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Wall street appeared to be a diverse thoroughfare today with most of the traffic moving discreetly ahead in the face of occasional red light profit-making signals and cautions detours.

Improved sentiment was attributed largely to the growing belief that the Federal stock exchange control bill will have some of its teeth drawn before it becomes a watchdog of the trading arena.

The British pound exhibited renewed strength in terms of the dollar, but the gold currencies did little. Grains and cotton were fairly steady. Rubber futures moved up to their highest levels since last June and bar silver reached a new high since 1930 at 46 cents an ounce. Bonds continued to advance.

Stocks were not too buoyant and the trading volume was a bit smaller than yesterday. Chrysler, however, made a new high since 1929, with a gain of about a point, and a number of others attained peaks for the past year or more. The utilities, rails, aricrafts and alcohols were narrow.

Much interest was expressed in advices from Washington to the effect that members of the Congressional committees now holding hearings on the Fletcher measure had indicated that the present form of the bill was "not the last word on the subject." Many letters had been received by Chairman Fletcher, it was said, recommending the proposed 60 per cent margin requirement be lowered to 40 per cent.

The questionnaire sent by the stock exchange to members requesting details of recent transactions in aviation issues did not cause any particular excitement. Some brokers inferred that an effort was being made to find out if professionals had advance information of the cancellation of their mail contracts which caused a sharp break in the aircraft stocks.

Some favorable attention was given the oils on the ground that this class was still behind the market. Earnings prospects here were also thought to be brighter, as were potential dividend disbursements. The alcohols were not especially perturbed by the Senate inquiry and metals still reflected hopes of an early announcement on steps to "rehabilitate" silver.

An increase of 8,406 in freight car loadings for the week ended February 10, was cheering to the rail followers, but it was learned that much of the increase was due to heavy coal shipments resulting from the extremely cold weather. Loadings for the week totaled 572,504, a gain of 67,841 over the like 1933 week and 10,969 over the same 1932 period.

U. S. EXCHANGE RATES SLIP

Associated Press.

Foreign currencies made further progress toward their new parities in terms of the revalued dollar in exchange markets today, as enormous amounts of gold purchased in Europe for re-sale to the Treasury arrived in New York and additional purchases were made in both London and Paris.

At London the dollar gave substantial ground to close at $5.09¼ in terms of the pound sterling, after opening at $5.06 and gradually yielding in the face of persistent selling for the purpose of paying for gold. In New York the British unit advanced 3 cents several hours later to $5.08¾ against a closing rate yesterday of $5.05¾.

In Paris the dollar slipped moderately to finish at an equivalent of 6.54 cents to the franc, and in New York the French unit later advanced .01 of a cent to 6.54 cents against an overnight quotation of 6.53.

Jobs First And Then Reforms

By B. C. FORBES

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT aims at recovery and reforms.

Having rubbed elbows with poverty all through my early years, and hearing so many tales of unemployment and suffering during recent years, I cannot but feel that, from now on, recovery should be given precedent over reforms.

Mr. Forbes

Jobs are infinitely important.

Food, shelter and clothing are cardinal necessities.

Washington would do well, therefore, as I see it, to rate as of prime importance policies and practices which will make for the extension of employment.

Reforms, if need be, can wait. But people cannot wait to eat. Hunger must be satisfied every day the sun rises.

There are times when the ideal must give way to the practicable, when aspirations must be subordinated to actualities.

"We must first live before we can philosophize."

Washington would do well, in my humble opinion, henseforth to concentrate chiefly upon stimulating economic recovery, stimulating employment. If normal employment can be restored, then other desired changes can be effected.

But if Washington should so act that increasing millions of individuals and families cannot earn a living, then our plight will be grave indeed.

Doctors sometimes recommend "building up" a patient before operating on him. America needs more building up. We have made progress, encouraging progress, yes. We have overcome despair. We are able to fill some four million more pay envelopes than a year ago. We are buying and selling somewhat less timidly. Values of securities, commodities, materials, merchandise have improved.

But our economic strength has not yet reached a point capable of withstanding a rapid succession of devitalizing major operations.

Give us, first, further recovery. Then, by and by, we should be able to withstand unsettling reforms.

After all, the government cannot permanently supply unlimited numbers of jobs.

Only industry and business can.

If Washington concentrates mainly upon making it possible for business and industry to supply a sufficient number of jobs, our economic and social structure will be able to withstand even radical reforms.

But, meanwhile, the primary objective of all should be to build up the strength of the patient.

(Copyright, 1934, B. C. Forbes.)

TRADE REVIVAL BROADENING

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—The rising trend in trade and business volume continues without abatement, and "sporadic instances of improvement now are giving way to proofs of a more definite general revival," said the weekly Dun & Bradstreet trade review today.

Some of the gains as compared with a year ago "reach nearly staggering percentages," there view asserted, pointing out that this time a year ago "the nadir of the past century has been touched by nearly all branches of commercial and industrial activity." It continued:

"The high level to which both mercantile and manufacturing business has been lifted was revealed by reports from all sections of the country this week, which brought a unanimity of expression indicating continued improvement.

"With some moderation of the sub-zero temperatures of a week earlier, which slowed down transactions in the agricultural districts, retail sales pushed ahead boldly, as the larger industrial payrolls offset the layoffs of the CWA."

BROKERS LOANS DECREASE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City decreased $43,000,000 during the week ended February 14 to a total of $853,000,000 from $896,000,000 in the week preceding. This compares with the record high of $6,804,000,000 established October 2, 1929, and with the low record of $331,000,000 on July 27, 1932.

PRUDENCE RECIPES HELP COOK FOR 75

Orphans Are Given Variety Through Menu Contest

You say it's a task cooking for a family of six or seven? Just think of Marguerite Tussey, whose problem is cooking for 75 people and then console yourself. She considers Prudence Penny a sort of fairy godmother with her column of prize recipe helps. Let her tell you, herself, how she feels about the contest:

"We surely are interested in your contest and use some of your recipes here in the home (Concordia Orphans' Home) every day. We save them all and are arranging them in a book for future use. There are 75 in our family, so you see it takes a lot of cooking."

In some cases the very small family is almost as much of a problem as the very large group, so Mrs. H. C. Litzinger sends in her recipe for rebaked beans suggesting:

"This is an ideal recipe for a couple or small family, for it it so easily and quickly prepared and can take the place of home baked beans."

Do you have recipes which fill some person's particular needs? Send them in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, for she is daily awarding one $5 prize and 10 $1 prizes to excellent recipes. No recipes are returned.

BRILLAT SAVARIN'S FONDU

Take as many eggs as there are persons to be served. Weigh the eggs in their shells and allow a third of their weight in a rich cream cheese, and a piece of butter one-sixth the weight of the cheese. Break the eggs into a bowl, and beat them well. Add the cheese, grated, and the butter broken into small pieces. Stir these ingredients together with a wooden spoon. Put the mixture into a lined saucepan, place it over the fire and stir until the substance is thick and soft. Put in a little salt, according to age of cheese, and a good sprinkling of pepper. Serve the fondu on a very hot silver plate. Do not allow the fondu to remain on the fire too long after it sets, as, if it boils it will be entirely spoiled.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

MRS. MARGARET HUNT,
Bakerstown road, Pitcairn Heights, Tarentum.
STUFFED CAULIFLOWER

One medium-sized head cauliflower.
Four cups of water.
One and one-half teaspoons salt.
Four cups of boiling water.
Two tablespoons of butter.
One onion, chopped.
Two cups chopped cooked ham.
One-half teaspoon celery salt.
One-half teaspoon of salt.
Few grains peppers.
One cup of milk.
Two cups of soft bread crumbs.

Remove outer leaves from the cauliflower. Soak 30 minutes in four cups of water and one and one-half teaspoons of salt. Drain. Then cook 20 minutes in boiling water and salt. Drain again. Melt butter in a frying pan. Add and brown onion slightly. Then add ham, celery salt, seasoning, milk and bread crumbs. Place cauliflower in greased baking dish. Stuff dressing between flowerets and around edges. Sprinkle with butter. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes, or until brown. Serves six.

MRS. C. SALERNO,
400 Race street,
BROCCOLI

One bunch broccoli.
One-half cup olive oil.
One lemon.
Two cloves garlic.
Salt to taste, about one-half teaspoon.

Clean and separate the flower in small pieces. Wash thoroughly and cook in salted boiling water, being careful not to cook too long nor break the flowers. After it is cooked, drain and place in a platter. Mix the olive oil, juice of a whole lemon, salt and the garlic cut in small pieces. Pour this over the broccoli and mix thoroughly. Serve cold garnished with slices of lemon. Excellent with fish.

MRS. M. M. SNYDER,
1213 Race street, Connellsville.
SEEDLESS GRAPE CONSERVE

Two cups white seedless grapes.
One large orange (cut fine with peal on).
One cup water.
Two cups sugar, white, granulated.
Juice of one lemon.

Place grapes, orange and water together and let stand one-half hour. Add juice of lemon. Bring to boiling point, add sugar, cook until thick. Seal in sterile jars same as jelly or preserves.

MRS. B. R. RUSH,
670 E. Maiden street, Washington.
OYSTER BUNDLES

Cut nice, even slices of the breast of either boiled or roast turkey; spread over each piece a thin slice of boneless bacon, and put on top of each piece of bacon a large oyster; roll up each slice of turked with the bacon and oyster inside so as to form a little bundle; tie each of these securely; place in a baking pan, and bake them long enough to cook the bacon, basting frequently with a little melted butter. Rich brown gravy should be served with these bundles. A nice way to use left over turkey. Parsley makes a nice garnish.

JOSEPHINE I. COLT,
104 Grimes avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.
GRATED HORSERADISH

grate up good sound roots, cover with a little distilled white vinegar and pack into sterilized bottles at once. White vinegar is better than cider vinegar, because the cider vinegar darkens the horseradish. Seal the horseradish tightly and keep it sealed. The best part of the horseradish is the sharp, pungent taste, and that is due to a volatile principle which escapes very readily, especially when the horseradish is exposed to the air.

MRS. J. HARTNETT,
118 West Ohio street,
CHINESE FONDUE

Two cups diced celery.
One small onion.
Two and one-half cups milk.
One cup cooked rice.
One teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
One-fourth teaspoon paprika.
Four eggs.

Cook the diced celery and finely minced onion in the milk until about half cooked; beat the eggs slightly and gradually add the hot milk, stirring constantly. Add the rice, salt, pepper and paprika. Turn into a buttered baking dish, set in a pan of hot water and bake until firm in a slow oven. About one hour is required for cooking.

MRS. H. C. LITZINGER,
2667 Stafford street, Corliss Station.
REBAKED BEANS.

One medium sized can baked beans.
Two tablespoons brown sugar.
Two tablespoons catsup or chili sauce.
Three strips bacon.

Place beans in casserole and add sugar and catsup or chili sauce. Place strips of bacon on top. Bake in over at 425 degrees for 20 minutes or until well browned.

MRS. J. C. SHOOK
1449 Woodstock avenue,
HEALTH SALAD

One pound cooked prunes (chilled).
Two packages cream cheese.
One-half cup grated carrot.
One head lettuce.

Drain prunes and remove stones. Mix cream cheese and grated carrot, moisten with evaporated milk if necessary. Stuff prunes and arrange on lettuce—garnish with bits of carrot. Serve plain or with French dressing. (Serves eight.)

MISS MARY DOROTHY BARNETT
6753 McPherson Blvd.
CHOCOLATE CREAM-FILLED COOKIES

Melt two squares chocolate over hot water, add one cup shortening, work until creamy and add gradually one-half cup sugar. Mix thoroughly, add two eggs, slightly beaten, four tablespoons milk and one teaspoon vanilla. Sift together three cups flour, two and one-half teaspoon salt and add slowly to first mixture. Mix well and chill. Roll a small portion at a time as thin as possible, shape with a small cutter and bake 10 minutes at 350 degrees fahrenheit or in a moderate oven. When cool put two cookies together with white icing. These taste like the very expensive chocolate-filled wafers one can buy.

MISS FLORA Y. LIEBEGOTH,
Martinsburg, Blair County
GALANTINES.

Poultry, lamb, veal, young pigs, and many kinds of game may be made into galantines. Although the directions given are for veal, any other kind of meat may be used. Buy a breast of veal about 15 inches long and about 10 inches wide. Remove bone and gristle and use for making stock. Make a force meat of a pound of veal to which add a few slices of cold boiled ham or tongue. Chop together until fine enough for sausage meat. Season with pepper, salt, parsley, and a little grated nutmeg and lemon peel, and one small shallot. Add to this half a pound of stale bread previously soaked in cold water and then squeezed dry, in a napkin. Mix together very thoroughly. Spread a layer of force meat on the breast of veal, or whatever meat you are using, and add a layer of very thin slices of fat pork with rind, and then a slice of boiled ham or tongue; scatter over this a few blanched pistachio nuts, add another layer of force meat, roll up the galantine, beginning at one end; confine in place with a cord, and sew a piece of thin muslin around it. Put the galantine into the stock which you have prepared from the trimmings, and sufficient water to cover it, and the following vegetables: Two or three small carrots, one small turnip and a half a dozen celery stalks. Boil very slowly four hours and allow to stand in the kettle until nearly cold, then remove, lighten the cloth, put a light weight on it, and set in a cool place. Take the fat from the top of the stock, strain and clarify it; add a glass of sherry, and boil very slowly until a rather stiff jelly. Test, by putting a little on a cold plate. When done, put the galantine on a deep dish and pour the jelly over it. Galantines are very handsome dishes for any occasion. They are to be cut crosswise in thin slices and are always eaten cold. Garnish with parsley or curled cress. Oysters may be added to the force meat, or a layer of them may be put between the layers of force meat.

Kill that COLD!

Don't Merely Coddle It with Half-Way Measures!

A cold is nothing to trifle with! It may end seriously. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for an internal treatment. It also calls for a COLD remedy and not something good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is direct and internal—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is sold by all druggists, 30c and 50c. Accept no substitute.

REVISED TECH FIVE BATTLES PENN STATE TOSSERS

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Meine Hard to Figure Peculiar Record in 1933. McFarlane Ace of Lions.

Cards Get Players Back. Cue Marathon Recalled. Criticism Ousts Coach.

Now that Heinie Meine has signed, local fans are wonder ing how much or how little it's going to mean to the Pirate They'd like to know on what part of Meine's 1933 record i would be safe to base their expectation for the coming season. The veteran form shifts were very puzzling. Fo the year he won 15 games against eigh defeats. Fifteen victories are not to b sneezed at any year. They spell a va uable pitcher. Only Larry French, with 18, won more decisions for the Bucs.

Heinie Meine

But while Heinie's mark of .652 w good enough to give him fourth plac among the National League pitchers percentage of victories, his record f effectiveness told a different story. that department, charged with 3.65 earned runs per nine innings, he rank as low as twenty-fifth among the 2 hurlers who pitched 10 or more co plete games.

Lifted in his first game of the year, Meine turned in a won five straight, only to lose four right afterward and to derricked in two other starts. From May 15 until June 18 he never went the distance, being derricked six times in a ro In 16 straight starts between May 15 and August 29, he had to be taken out 13 times. Then, at the finish, he won five su cessive games in which he allowed a total of only five runs. In view of that in-and-out record, guessing what the 35-yea old right-hander may do in 1934 is a job for a crystal gaz

M'KEESPORTER PENN STATE'S SCORING ACE

When the Penn State basketball team meets Carnegie Tech's reconstructed outfit on the Tartan floor tonight, Pitts burgh fans will get a look at one of the best forwards on the collegiate courts. The captain, star player and ace scorer of the Lions is a McKeesport boy, Norris McFarlane. He leads the team in scoring by a wide margin, as in eight games to date he has registered 113 points, or an average of better than 14 per game.

McFarlane's best night for points scored was against Juniata. In that game he racked up 10 field goals and made good in three out of four free throws for a 23-point total. Successful free throwing has contributed in no small measure to McFarlane's record. Out of 51 attempts he has dropped 33 through the ring, a fine average for actual competition.

BIG SALE ENDS IN RETURN OF PLAYERS

On June 4, 1932, the major league circuits were startled by the announcement that the Phillies had purchased Pitcher Flint Rhem and Second Baseman Eddie Delker from the Cardinals for $50,000. No other club could figure the pair as being worth that kind of money, and the Phils looked to be the outfit that could least afford to pay such a price. As a rule, the Quaker owners are in the selling rather than the buying business.

Flint Rhem

But what looked like a big sale at the time is now completely off the books. Whether or not real money changed hands in the first place can only be surmised, but in any event both players have made a return trip. They're back in St. Louis. Delker was returned to the Cards with Catcher Virgil Davis in the deal for Jimmy Wilson, and now, following the shifting of Ethan Allen from St. Louis to the Phils, Rhem also has been sent back to the Redbirds, supposedly by the purchase route, after efforts to peddle him to some other club fell flat. Some of the operations between the Philadelphia and St. Louis National League clubs have been as hard to understand as those between the Cardinals and Cincinnati. When the Cards need players or have some to unload they appear to find a surprisingly ready market in one of the two other towns.

BILLIARD MATCH LASTS 16 HOURS

The present three-cushion title tournament in New York has revived the discussion as to how many miles a billiard player walks during a tourney. Willie Hoppe, Johnny Layton and others have figured it out that the average is something more than one mile to a match. But J. P. Allen bobs up with an authenticated account of a carom marathon staged in New York 69 years ago, showing that in the matter of physical strain the modern cueists have it soft by comparison. William Wickes and William McKeever met in a special match that started on the night of February 20, 1865, and continued until the afternoon of the following day, a total of 16 hours.

These rival cueists agreed to play 37 games of 100 points each "around the table," meaning mixed caroms and pocketings. They used a 6x12 table, with four pockets. Without leaving the table, having such food and refreshments as were needed brought to them, the principals fought through 34 games, becoming so exhausted that the remaining three games were called off. Wickes won 20 games and scored 4,891 points to 14 games and 2,129 games for McKeever.

BELIEVE ALUMNI FORCED VINCE TO QUIT

The belief prevails in Cleveland that the resignation of Ralph Vince, former W. & J. gridder, as head football coach at John Carroll University, was due to criticism by an alumni group. The explanation given was that Vince would be unable to handle the football coaching duties along with those of athletic director and member of the faculty, positions to which he was appointed only a week ago, but it is now said that, because he was under alumni fire, his resignation was suggested by the college authorities as a means of clearing up the situation.

Ralph Vince

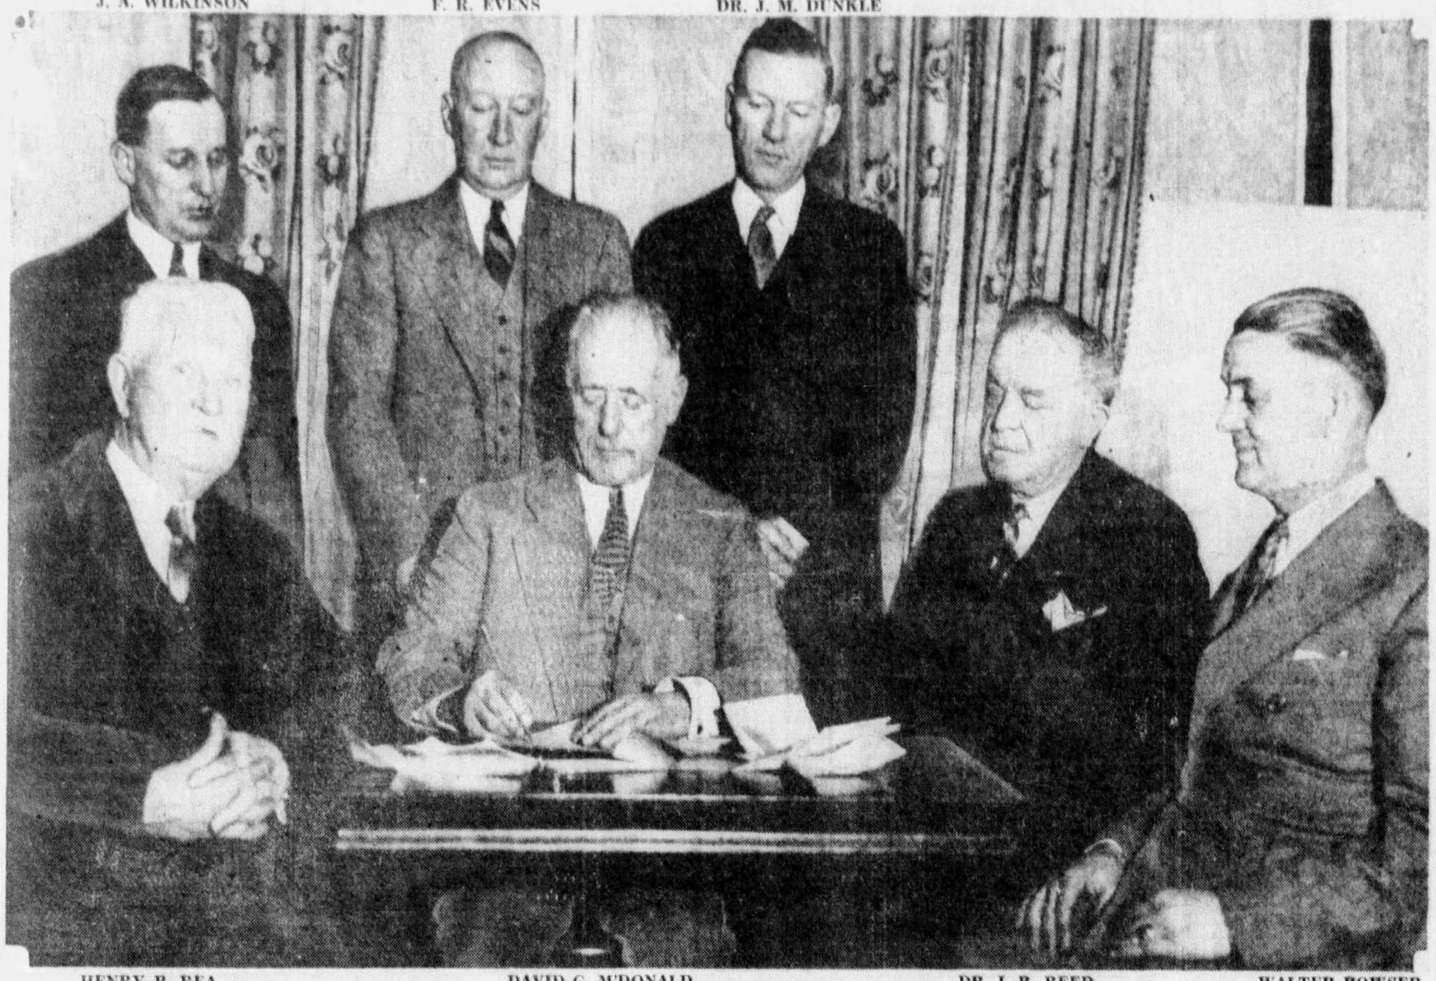
Vince did a good job in his seven years as coach at John Carroll, considering that his material was not always of a high quality. His poorest season was that of 1932, and he was severely criticized by alumni the following winter. However, the old W. & J. man did a fine comeback last fall, his team going through the first seven games undefeated, only to drop the last two to Case and Baldwin-Wallace. Vince is succeeded by Tommy Yarr, former Notre Dame center.

TERRY HOPES TO PLAY IN 154 CONTESTS

The possibility that Frankie Frisch and Charley Grimm will miss a number of games this year, as usual, leaves Bill Terry and Joe Cronin likely to be the most steadily active of the nine major league playing managers, inasmuch as Mickey Cochrane and Jimmy Wilson plan to take occasional rests, and Rogers Hornsby, Lew Fonseca and Bob O'Farrell will be only part-time performers. And Terry insists that, barring accidents, Cronin can expect nothing better than a tie with him, as Bill declares he has no intention of letting down an active work and hopes to play in 154 games at first base for the Giants. He would have missed very few games last season but for a fractured wrist that kept him out for almost six weeks. If Terry has to stay on the bench at any time this season, George Grantham will be his replacement.

Harness Racing Men Form Pittsburgh Short Ship Circuit Here

J. A. WILKINSON F. R. EVENS DR. J. M. DUNKLE



HENRY B. REA DAVID G. M'DONALD DR. I. B. REED WALTER BOWSER

The Pittsburgh Short Ship Circuit was formed at a meeting held in the Henry Hotel. Rea and McDonald are Pittsburghers, Reed is from Crafton, Bowser from Ebensburg, Evens from Ben Avon and Dunkle from Butler. Tentative dates for county fair meetings were agreed upon and other business transacted. Dave McDonald, popular secretary of the Schenley Matinee Club, holds a similar office in the newly-formed organization. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

HARNESS MEN FORM NEW CIRCUIT

The Pittsburgh Short Ship Circuit was organized and tentative dates for nine out of 15 county fairs of interest to local breeders were selected at a meeting held yesterday in the Hotel Henry. David G. McDonald, president and secretary of the new association, as well as of the Schenley Matinee Club, presided. More than 20 harness horse enthusiasts attended.

The nine fair dates arranged for the Pittsburgh Short Ship Circuit follows:

August 15-18—Ford City.
August 21-22—Butler.
August 28-30—Ligonier.
September 1-6—Allegheny County Fair.
September 5-7—Carmichaels.
September 12-14—Waynesburg.
September 19-21—Washington.
September 25-27—New Castle.
October 3-4—Burgettstown.

Other dates announced, which conflict with those of the Short Ship Circuit, follow:

July 4, September 3-5—Ebensburg.
September 1-4—Stoneboro.
September 4-6—Mercer.
September 4-5—Bedford.
August 29-31—Clarion.

Dates for the Dawson and Indiana fairs still are in doubt.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern was a speaker at the meeting and outlined a program if improvements he plans to make at South County Park, where the second annual county fair will be held next fall.

The directors of the Pittsburgh Short Ship Circuit are Robert Wright, F. R. Evens, Walter Bowser, Dr. I. B. Reed, J. A. Wilkinson, Alden Miller and Col. McGovern.

GENEVA ROUTS BISON FIVE

BEAVER FALLS, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Geneva's basketeers, recently humbled by Westminster, returned to winning form last night and conquered Bethany, 48 to 25, in a tri-state conference contest. The lineup:

Names in News

EDDIE CASEY has been given a new group of assistants as football coach at Harvard. ADAM WALSH, formerly of Notre Dame, is to be line coach; MYLES LANE, formerly of Dartmouth, is to be backfield coach, and WESLEY FESLER, formerly of Ohio State, is to be end coach.

MISS MARION MILEY defeated Miss HELEN HICKS, 1 up, and MISS MAUREEN ORCUTT won over MISS GRACE AMORY, 4 and 2, in semi-final round matches in the Florida women's golf championship at Palm Beach yesterday.

DON PEDEN, Ohio University football coach, has terminated negotiations with Indiana University, which sought his services, and will remain at Ohio U.

Informed that the San Francisco club had offered to pay his $35,000 salary if he would play in the Pacific Coast League this year, BABE RUTH today said he had no such offer under consideration, and that he had made no plans for his baseball future after 1934.

BILL O'BRIEN, business manager of BILL TILDEN and WILLSWORTH VINES, today said that FRED PERRY, British tennis star, will turn professional in the event Great Britain loses the Davis Cup.

CHARLEY HARVEY, manager of STEVE HAMAS, is considering propositions to have HAMAS box MAX BAER in a bout at either the Polo Grounds or Yankee Stadium, New York, in June, and meet the winner of the KING LEVINSKY-WALTER NEUSEL fight in New York March 9.

JOHNNY FISCHER, young golf star who is enrolled at the University of Michigan, plans to quit his studies in March and go to Florida to prepare for the Walker Cup matches.

Curry Underdog in Game With Champions

By TOM BIRKS

The Curry Soccer Club leaves over the Pennsylvania Railroad at 11:20 o'clock tonight for St. Louis, where it meets the Stix-Fuller Club in the Western semi-final round of the National Open championship series at Sportsman's Park Sunday afternoon.

Manager Johnny Bruce is taking 13 players along for the game. Two club officials and Mike Bookie complete the party. There is little chance that Bookie will get into the game since his injured foot is mending very slowly.

George Chappell, Curry's young center halfback, will have a tough assignment in this game. It will be his job to watch Gonzales, the Stix center forward, classed as the greatest goal-getter in the country. Chappell played a brilliant game against Stevenson, the Slavia center, and may be equal to stopping the famous St. Louisian.

LITTLE HOPE SEEN

This will be the first time a Pittsburgh club has met a national champion in cup play in 15 years. The last time a local club drew a defending champion was in 1920, when the McKeesport Club played the Bethlehem Steel aggregation at Olympia Park, McKeesport, and the Easterners won with ease.

While local soccer fans are pulling for Curry to make a showing in the Mound City, there is very little chance that the Keystone League aggregation will win the game. Stix-Fuller is a strictly professional club, with the best players obtainable from the Eastern Professional League on the roster.

The playing field at Sportsman's Park is especially treated for soccer football, the hard surface being like concrete. The Curry team will have to use special studs on their shoes to get any foothold.

KEYSTONERS MEET

There will be an important meeting of the Keystone Soccer League at Rosies' Store, Bridgeville, at 8 o'clock tonight. All teams are urged to be represented.

Tomorrow flinds Clan Douglas and Old Carnegie meeting at Beadling at 3 p. m. in the game that will decide the championship of the Central District League.

GOLF HANDICAP LIST FIXED

The best golfers in the state hail from the Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania districts, according to the official handicap list announced today by the Pennsylvania Golf Association.

Of the 54 golfers with handicaps of five or under for the 1934 season, no less than 38 are members of district clubs. Three players are given a handicap of two and Wilson Marks, of Kiski and Oakmont, is one of them.

Knox M. Young, Jr., of Shannopin; Ray Babcock, J. W. Danforth, H. C. Fownes, II, and James A. Fownes, all members at Oakmont; George H. Flinn, Jr., and Joseph W. Oliver, both of Fox Chapel; Frank Nash and Joe Royston, Jr., of Highland; Fred Brand, Jr., of Shannopin; John Graham, of South Hills; Tom Jamison, Jr., of Greensburg, and Fred B. Weppner, of the Pittsburgh Field Club, are handicapped at three.

Those given a handicap of four are V. L. Bradford, Beaver Valley; Dr. Tom Canon, St. Clair; George L. Craig, Jr., Allegheny; Dr. W. H. K. McDiarmid, Alcoma; Ed McLeod, Jr., Nemacolin; James Ramsay and James G. Wyman, of Highland.

John Barclay, Jr., of Greensburg; Jack Benson, of South Hills; Dick Boucek, of Highland; Sid Carson, Jr., of Greensburg; George Chubb, Jr., of Sewickley Y.; F. H. Fairweather, of South Hills; Bill Farquahar and James T. Lappan, of the Pittsburgh Field Club; Dr. George T. Gregg and Richard C. Long, of Oakmont; Earl Hewitt, Jr., and William E. Pierce, of Indiana; Bruce Miller, of St. Clair; Herbert F. Miller, Jr., of Aliquippa; Dr. Joseph W. Stranger, of Highland, and F. L. Stout, Jr., of Shannopin, are handicapped at five.

Forty others from this section are rated from six to 10 strokes.

Toots Erath, of Edgewood, leaves for Quincym, Fla., tomorrow to act as pro. He will return in April.

George Underwood, former pro at Alcoma, has been chosen professional at the Uniontown Country Club. He will take over his new post on March 1.

NOTES OF THE A. A. U.

Junior swimmers from the Catholic Community Center, of Steubenville, O., and the Keystone A. C. will feature a meet at the Keystone A. C. tomorrow night, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Entries close tomorrow at A. A. U. headquarters for the Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U. senior track and field championships, to be held in the Pitt Track House next Wednesday and Thursday.

Joseph Kelly, at Salem, O., and Thomas Loretta, at Steubenville, O., have been appointed A. A. U. commissioners in their cities.

Four A. M. A. swimming championships are carded at the Homestead Carnegie Library next Wednesday night.

ALLEGHENY VICTOR

MEADVILLE, Pa., Feb. 16.—Coasting after obtaining an early lead, the Allegheny College basketball team defeated Oberlin College, 30-21, here last night.

MEMORY TEST

TODAY'S QUESTIONS

How good is your memory of sports heroes, events and dates? Can you answer these questions:

1—Name the brothers who coached local high school teams at the same time.

2—What local athlete never played in a losing football game?

3—What former Peabody High School star later coached a major college team?

4—Who is regarded as the dean of local basketball men?

5—Who was the heavyweight boxer who knocked down Harry Greb in a bout at Motor Square Garden?

(Answers in Want Ad section tomorrow—see today's Want Ad section for answers to yesterday's questions.)

BUCS TO PLAY TIGERS HERE

Another exhibition game has been added to the schedule of the Pittsburgh Pirates with the announcement this morning that the Bucs would meet the Detroit Tigers, of the American League, at Forbes Field, Wednesday, May 16.

The Pirates will have completed a home stand against the eastern clubs, while the Tigers will break a long jump home from Washington. Following the contest, the Pirates will leave for Brooklyn to begin an eastern invasion, while the Tigers will entrain for Detroit to open a stand against the eastern clubs of the American League.

School Teams Play Long Floor Tie

Three extra periods failed to produce a winner in a basketball game between the North Braddock and Duquesne Junior High School basketball teams yesterday and the game ended in a 39-39 tie. The score was deadlocked at 27-all at the end of the regulation time, at 2-all after the first extra period, and at 37-all at the end of the second.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Philadelphia—Tony Falco defeated Bucky Jones, 8 rounds; Bobby Dechter defeated Ernie Caesar, 6 rounds; Billy Thornton defeated Joe Meta, 6 rounds; Al Fisher won by a technical knockout over Carmen Vitullo, 3 rounds; Jimmy Reilly defeated Dick Rogel, 4 rounds.

At Duluth—Jock Moore defeated Sammy Gallop, 6 rounds; Babe Daniels knocked out Caddy Casey, 2 rounds.

At Ypsilanti, Mich.—Seal Harris defeated Frankie Simms, 10 rounds.

At Tacoma—Freddie Steele defeated Leonard Bennett, 8 rounds.

At Dallas—Hy Liter defeated Paul Ladd, 10 rounds.

At New Haven—Kid Cocoa knocked out Tony Catalano, 2 rounds.

BOBCATS WIN

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Wesleyan College defeated Fairmont Teachers here last night, 38 to 29. The victory was sweet revenge for the Bobcats, who were trimmed by the Teachers at Fairmont several days ago.

TALLMAN NAMED W. V. COACH

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Charles (Trusty) Tallman, present freshman coach, was appointed head football coach at West Virginia University today.

The action was taken by the board of governors upon recommendation of President John R. Turner, of the Morgantown institution.

Tallman, a star end at West Virginia a decade ago, succeeds Earle (Greasy) Neale, who was named backfield coach at Yale two weeks ago.

He has been freshman coach for several years with marked success. Incidentally, he is a member of the Legislature, representing his home county of Mason.

Bozeman Retains Cue Tourney Lead

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Defeating Tiff Denton, 50 to 34, Jay Bozeman yesterday hung up his sixth straight triumph in the world three-cushion billiard tournament in New York. He is undefeated and is in sole possession of the lead.

In other matches yesterday Welker Cochran defeated Kinrey Matsuyama, 50 to 47; Arthur Thurnblad defeated Alfredo De Oro, 50-47, and Otto Reiselt defeated Augie Kieckhefer, 50-49. Cochran, the defending champion, has won five matches and lost one.

Chilly Doyle Ill In W. Penn Hospital

Charles J. (Chilly) Doyle, baseball expert of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, is confined in the West Penn Hospital for observation for appendicitis. He was stricken ill shortly after appearing on the Trained Seals' radio program over WCAE Wednesday night and was accompanied to the hospital by George Gibson, manager of the Pirates.

JENKINS FIVE WINS

The Homestead Jenkins tossers defeated the Y. M. H. A. quintet in an Allegheny County League tussle last night, 26 to 20. Malackney led in the scoring with 11 points. The lineup:

MAX ELLING BANNED

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 16.—(INS.)—The State Athletic Commission today placed four Pennsylvania fighters on the "indefinitely unavailable" list for failure to honor their contracts. The disciplinary measure were meted out to Max Elling, Pittsburgh; Jimmy Gormley, Philadelphia, and Johnny Russicano and Joe Jordan, both of Allentown. Elling canceled a match with General Burrows at Motor Square Garden last Monday night.

YOUNG CUE VICTOR

John Young, of Penn, Pa., tightened his grip on first place by chalking up his fifth straight triumph in the Western Pennsylvania pocket billiard tournament at the Ritz parlors last night when he defeated Earl White, local cueist, 125 to 54, in 36 innings. Young set a new high mark for the tourney when he clicked off 50 without a miss. H. L. Rumstay, of the North Side, clashes with Whitey Wilson, of Lawrenceville, tonight.

JACKETS CLASH WITH RIBBONS TONIGHT

By CARL W. SHATTO

The Chicago Blue Ribbons, generally regarded as the team most likely to win the second half title and qualify to meet Pittsburgh in the American and International Lacrosse Association's post-season playoff for the championship, will help the Yellow Jackets open the second half of the association's split-season race at Motor Square Garden tonight.

The locals are regarded as the Ribbons' leading rivals for the second half crown, and this is only natural in view of the fact that the Jackets had a few points to spare in annexing the first-half gonfalon. Ribbon partisans, however, point out that Pittsburgh dropped two decisions in Chicago by lopsided margins, whereas the Jackets had to travel two extra periods to nose out the Chicagoans, 9-8, in their first game here, and won the second by only 17-15.

The Ribbons, who are refreshingly free of rough tactics and who are the game's leading exponents of a fast, bewildering, short-passing attack, arrived here yesterday and wore off the rust resulting from a fortnight of idleness from league competition with a long, hard workout at the Garden yesterday afternoon. Since the return to form of Odie Core and Leo Boullane, the Jackets are in just as good condition as are the invaders, and the second half inaugural should be a fairly even fight.

The Jackets are to help the Indians, formerly of Buffalo, introduce the sport in Detroit, the association's new member city, Sunday night. Tonight's probable lineup:

PITTSBURGH.		CHICAGO.
No. Player.	Pos.	Player. No.

3—N. Langevin	D	Hatton—8

9—Vincent	F	Barron—10
7—Boullane	F	Baldwin—11

Pittsburgh substitute—No. 4, McLean; No. 5, L'Heureux; No. 6, Core; No. 8, Jennings; No. 12, Silk.

Chicago substitutes—No. 4, Braden; No. 6, White; No. 7, Stephenson; No. 9, Bain; No. 2, Quirie; No. 12, Latchford.

THE LINEUP

CARNEGIE.		PENN STATE.
Silverman (A.C.)	F	McFarlane (C.)

Referee—Sykes Reed. Umpire—Lindsay Montgomery, Geneva.

By JESS CARVER

For the first time since 1932, when Dutch Hermann was the coach and Pitt was handed a surprise defeat, a Penn State basketball varsity invades Pittsburgh tonight. The Lions, sporting a record of seven victories against a single defeat, meet Carnegie Tech's riddled forces in the Tartan gymnasium.

The goblins of mid-semester ineligibility got the Tartans and got 'em right, so it will be a revised battle array that Coach Max Hannum will toss at the invaders. Since the Plaid laid off for the mid-semester examinations 2 days ago, four members of the varsity squad, two of them first stringers, have toppled by the wayside. The regulars were Ewalt, center, and Macalka, forward, and the reserves, Vukovich and Breve.

SILVERMAN AT FORWARD

The revised Tartan lineup shows Acting Capt. George Silverman and Paul Gibson at the forwards, Silverman having been moved up from a guard; Brad Edelblut at center and Fred Freedel and Ted Rigg at the guards. With the reserve situation such as it is, this quintet can figure on being in there for as long as possible.

Three football players have been added to the Tartans' list of substitutes. Dutch Croft, big tackle, is to perform as a reserve center, and Steve Trobovich, grid center, and Frank Sanford, sub halfback, are to be available as reserve guards. Trobovich played basketball at Aliquippa High before enrolling at Tech.

State's team is led by Capt. McFarlane, a McKeesporter, who is the scoring star of the veteran Nittany Lion aggregation. The Lions have knocked off Juniata, Susquehanna, Dickinson, Bucknell, Wash-Jeff, Army and Colgate and have lost only to Navy.

EASY FOR DUKES

Duquesne's Dukes are to set forth this afternoon on their one and only eastern trip of the season. They'll stop off in Sunbury tonight and then move on to Lewisburg tomorrow, where they meet Bucknell tomorrow night. Villanova and Temple will be played next week.

The Red and Blue had a setup in West Virginia's Mountaineers in the Duquesne gymnasium last night. Fresh from successive victories over Wash-Lee, West Virginia Wesleyan, Bucknell, Temple, Georgetown and Wash-Jeff, the Mountaineers assimilated a 51-to-20 lacing at the hands of the Dukes.

Behind 34 to 8 at the intermission, the West Virginians looked even worse than they did when Pitt trimmed 'em here a few weeks back. The defense seemed totally unable to check the fast passing, accurate shooting Dukes, and the team's attack had the potency of a cup of your Aunt Maria's weakest tea.

The Dukes, on the other hand, seldom have been hotter. Everything they tried worked, including about nine out of every ten shots they took at the hoop. Art Feldman led the attack of the locals with seven field goals and four fouls; Paul Birch had six and Irv Brenner four. Joe Stydahar proved to be the most potent factor in the Mountaineer lineup and accounted for 11 points.

W. VA. USES HUDDLE

Coach Davies kept his varsity in the game for about three quarters of the action. The Mountaineers used a huddle for calling its tap-off plays and then remained in the same while the Dukes controlled the ball game.

In a nip and tuck preliminary that was not decided until Joe Slidders tossed a field goal with the score tied just as the final whistle tooted, the Duquesne freshmen nosed out the Mountaineer frosh, 38 to 36. The lineups:

PITT GOES WEST

Pitt's varsity tossers entrain tonight for South Bend and tomorrow's all-important tussle with Notre Dame, a return match which the Irish will give their respective shirts to win.

If Pitt can repeat its triumph scored here a couple weeks back (and Coach Red Carlson says the ball game already is "in") it will sort of knock in the head plans for a "national championship" game between the Irish and C. C. N. Y. in Madison Square Garden later in the campaign. They'll have a tough time laughing off two setbacks by the same team.

The Pitt squad will consist of McCamant, Skip Hughes, Roderick and Wainio, forwards; Cribbs and Noon, centers, and Charley Hughes, Ochsenhirt, Nickel and Kuno, guards.

SOUTH SEEKS TO EXTEND CITY LEAGUE VICTORY STRING

Believe It Or Not (Reg. by U. S. Patent Office) By Ripley

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE RADIO MYSTERY—A. M. Tracey, who lives in Harlem, Ga., owns a small popular make sedan which, in some strange way, receives radio broadcasts through the engine. The car is in no way equipped with modern automobile receiving sets. The first time Tracey or his chauffeur noticed the strange phenomenon was when he had the engine repaired and had over-size piston rings and valve seats installed. Mechanics are unable to attribute radio reception to such mechanical detail. And the music, speeches and other programs have become so monotonous that Tracey actually paid $34 to a mechanic to silence the car—but it still is a mysterious radio.

PERRY BATTLES LANGLEY FOR SEC. II LEAD

By JULIUS LEVIN

Leaders in both sections of the City League meet important rivals on the basketball court this afternoon with the headliner scheduled in Section I as South High School, defending champion and favorite to repeat, goes after its twenty-third successive City League victory by invading Taylor Allderdice to engage the Dragons.

South, at the present time, is setting the pace in Section I with a full game lead over Connelley Trade School. While South is battling with Allderdice, Peabody, beaten in eight straight games, will be the attraction at Connelley. If Connelley and South both emerge victoriously this afternoon, their battle next Tuesday at the South Side Market House likely will determine the winner of the sectional champion.

TRADERS SEEK REVENGE

South defeated Connelley in their first meeting at Connelley and the Traders are determined to obtain revenge. Westinghouse and Schenley tangle at Schenley in the third section engagement.

Section II also provides an interesting race, with Langley and Perry deadlocked for the top position. These two teams come together on the Langley floor and the winner will take undisputed possession of first place. Allegheny Vocational plays at South Hills, and Oliver at Carrick in other Section II duels

Tomorrow morning in the Fort Pitt Hotel, the basketball committee of the W. P. I. A. L. will gather for the purpose of arranging pairings for the annual elimination series. The regular season comes to a close next Friday.

STAGG ON TOUR

Dr. Amos Alonzo Stagg, the "grand old man" of football, presented gold footballs to 16 members of the Peabody High School squad, champion of the City League, at an assembly held yesterday in the Peabody auditorium. The 16 winners were James Brewer, captain; John Brewer, Joseph Ciocca, Robert Delavel, John Dickinson, John Fiore, Kenneth Forbeck, Nicholas Katsafanos, Philip Latterman, Robert McCarthy, Richard Patterson, Abner Roberts, Robert Rooinson, Jay Steele, Salvatore Sunseri and Donald Wineland.

Dr. Stagg, here as a guest of the Henry Clay Frick Educational Commission, was introduced by Dr. George W. Gerwig, of the Board of Education. Other speakers were John E. Saul, vice president at Peabody, and Richard Meyers, Peabody football coach. Stagg will speak at Langley and ers were John E. Saul, vice principal at Peabody, and Richard Allderdice today.

Sun-Telegraph Softball Tournament Hailed

Game Standardized At Conference In Chicago

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

First announcement yesterday that the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph this summer will conduct a mammoth softball tournament for the Greater Pittsburgh district, the winner of which will compete in the national finals under the auspices of the Chicago American, a Hearst newspaper, at the World Fair in Chicago, was greeted with warm enthusiasm.

M. J. Pauley, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Softball Association of America, who came here to lay the groundwork for the tournament, is going from city to city to insure a thorough understanding of the conditions of the competition. He expects to return here within a few weeks.

POPULAR IN MID-WEST

Softball is a game similar to mushball, played with a somewhat different ball and a different sized diamond, with a change in the pitching distance. It is very popular in the Middle West and will be virtually making its debut in these parts in the Sun-Telegraph's tournament. Official rules were adopted at a meeting in Chicago and will be available at all sporting goods stores shortly, and standard equipment also is on the market. A canvas of all local sporting goods houses and sporting goods departments of the department stores reveals the fact that they will be ready to take care of the needs of hundreds of teams and thousands of players who will participate in this big tournament.

HOW TO ENTER

Further details will be announced as soon as the national setup arrangement is completed at headquarters in Chicago. Entry in the tournament will be made through an entry blank which will be published well in advance of the tournament, which now is set to get under way late in May or early in June.

TECH CANCELS RING CARD

Ernie Sesto is looking for a boxing team to coach. Up until yesterday, Ernie had a smathering of a team out at Carnegie Tech, but Graduate Manager Buddy Overend came up with the announcement that the Tartans had decided to cancel the remainder of their Eastern Intercollegiate Conference engagements due to the fact that the Plaid found it impossible to muster a full team.

Several members of the ring squad followed in the footsteps of the basketballers who were knocked off by scholastic ineligibility, and, rather than forfeit several matches in each meeting, the Tartans decided to call it quits for the season.

Coach Carl Olsen, Pitt's track and field mentor, has completed plans for the annual university indoor championships, to be staged in the track house tomorrow afternoon. Coach Olsen also plans to write at least four new records on the big board after the meet.

Existing marks in the 300 and 440 yard dashes; the 880-yard run; the mile and the shot are the ones in the greatest danger. The meet will get under way at 1:30 o'clock.

Tomorrow night, the Duquesne and Temple University boxing teams will meet in an intercollegiate Conference match in the Duquesne gymnasium. The meeting originally was scheduled for next Monday, but was moved up two days after a telephone conference between John Holohan and Temple officials yesterday.

The Dukes have one victory and two defeats on their record to date. Temple has lost both its matches.

Knockouts Feature Bouts at Uniontown

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 16.—A trio of knockouts were recorded at the Gallatin Garden amateur boxing show last night, seven bouts were on the program.

KAUFMANN'S

SCHMERTZ GIVEN NET POST

VETERAN GETS DAVIS' PLACE AS DELEGATE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Robert C. Schmertz, veteran Edgeworth racquet star, was unanimously chosen at yesterday's Pittsburgh Tennis Association executive committee meeting to succeed President J. Phillips Davis as special representative of the local net body on the executive committee of the Middle States Lawn Tennis Association.

The post became vacant last month when Davis was elevated to the second vice presidency of the Middle States group, a distinction carrying with it ex-officio membership on the sectional board.

HAS FINE RECORD

Schmertz handled the Pittsburgh details of the annual conclave of the United States Lawn Tennis Association at the P. A. A. here last week-end and cared for the exacting task so neatly that his election as Steel City delegate entirely was logical. He has been well known as a tennis devotee hereabouts since his debut as a youngster from Jeannette, Pa. He was a star of the Princeton varsity court squad prior to the war and while cavorting for the Tiger was a teammate of the renowned George Myers Church.

The new P. T. A. official won the Western Pennsylvania men's singles title at Johnstown in 1915, the last time the district classic was staged outside of Pittsburgh. Following a long period of active service with the A. E. F. in France, Schmertz returned home to resume tennis competition, but with less serious attention to tournament play. The past three years or more he has confined his activity mainly to doubles, in which his usual partner is King Moore, former Michigan luminary.

TABLE TOURNEY PLANS

The matter of P. T. A. pursuit of the 1935 National Public Parks championships for Frick Park was tabled at yesterday's session, but undoubtedly will be brought up for airing before the yearly gathering of the district association some two months hence.

The proposal of the Allegheny Country Club to hold an invitation singles turf court tourney patterned after Seabright, Southhampton, Longwood, and Newport in power and scope remains unsettled pending word from the Middle States sanction and schedule committee in regard to suitable dates.

Leon See's 'Inside Story' Of Carnera's Career

EDITORIAL FOREWORD

Though badly beaten by Sharkey in 15 rounds at Brooklyn, N. Y., October 12, 1931, Primo and the author were far from discouraged. See felt sure that the giant would be ready to "shoot on his own" for the title after a good rest, so they returned to Europe late in 1931 consoled with a brilliant K. O. of Campolo and a 10-round victory over King Levinsky. Late in January, the 1932 Carnera campaign got under way in Paris . . .

CHAPTER XXVIII

By LEON SEE

Developer and Former Manager of Primo Carnera, World Heavyweight Boxing Champion

Yet during this new phase of his career—the 1932 era of sincere fights—I still piloted him carefully, matching him with some European fighters, known as boxers—not sluggers. I felt sure Primo could defeat them on points, and that his only danger would be from a "lucky punch." So my fistic virtuoso "tuned up" with these victories early in 1932:

He beat Moise Bouquillon in two rounds at Paris; Ernst Guhring by a technical K. O. in the fifth round at Berlin; the then champion of Europe, Pierre Charles, on points at Paris; the South African, Don McCorkindale, also on points at London; Maurice Griselle by a knockout in the tenth round at Paris; Hans Schonrath by a technical K. O. in the fourth round at Milan.

Louis Soresi

Finally, Carnera encountered the Canadian Negro, Larry Gains, in London. Primo outpointed him with the greatest ease, but he was deprived of the decision as boldly and as unlustly as in his first Maloney fight at Boston in 1930.

OUTBOXES LARRY GAINS

Regardless of that bad decision, the way in ich Carnera outboxed Gains added to my convictions of Primo's class.

From then on Carnera was the uncrowned champion of the world!

All he needed was the chance to fight for the title.

Carnera did not really need me any more . . . my role was ended . . . and so I let him return alone to the United States in June, 1932. Important business kept me in Paris.

I knew that he was in good hands, because I had entrusted him to a wise American manager—Bill Duffy—better situated than I was to overcome the final obstacle between Carnera and our goal—the match for the world championship.

Money losses, through legitimate but unlucky investments in which both Primo and I suffered, preceded the ascendancy of Louis R. Soresi in the management of Carnera. When I first met Soresi he was working for an Italian-American bank in New York where Primo and I deposited our monies. Soresi became friends with Primo and we were his guests often. We bought real estate at Atlantic Beach from a friend of his, obligating ourselves to pay $40,000 apiece at the rate of $1,800 monthly, and we lost about $10,000 before the transaction fell through . . . But we met with worse losses in California property (Primo and I dropping about $20,000 on those deals) and in stocks, chiefly Transamerica, which hit us for about $20,000 altogether.

FINANCIAL STATUS

Even those losses, considering our huge earnings, were not so terrible. Though I was not responsible for all those ill-starred investments, I decided (against Primo's wish) to assume them; so I gave Primo my note for $60,000, which I agreed to refund him out of my share of earnings and uncollected accounts . . . . Since then (1932), I have reduced that debt considerably by taking a very limited percentage of Primo's earnings.

When my Big Boy and I returned to Europe, late in 1931, I received a cable from Albert M. Yuzzolino, of New York, counsel for Carnera, which I translate accurately:

"To reduce Primo's income tax, I must declare your debt as money not received by Carnera. Afraid the press will be informed as I must take a judgment. Please cable if I may do so."

So I cabled the lawyer in this fashion:

SORESI TAKES CHARGE

And that is how the news spread and, with it, rumors of a wild and unfair nature . . . In the meantime Soresi had become financial overseer and advisor to Carnera. He and Attorney Yuzzolino have approved my accountings and there has never been a suspicion of dishonesty, except when it was voiced (and sometimes published) in ugly rumors.

One proof that Primo and I were the best of friends when he left for America on June 11, 1932, is the contract signed that day by us and Walter Friedman, representing Bill Duffy. It provided that I should receive 15 per cent of Carnera's earnings when abroad for the period of one year and that my first contract with him (stipulating my one-third "cut" of his earnings) would be renewed when he left North America.

Carnera probably could not send me any money, but did not state that either that 15 per cent or my original contract was abrogated. So the situation, in my opinion is this:

I am still the legal manager of Carnera under what I regard as a sound original contract that has never been violated or revoked. Since June, 1932, for a period of a year, he owes me 15 per cent of what he has earned and since that time one-third of his receipts. I believe that these sums to date would about wipe out the approximate $50,000 indebtedness to Primo acknowledged by me before our parting in 1932.

Since then, Soresi has become Carnera's active manager, retaining the astute Duffy as his American representative . . . . A 100 per cent Italian management for an Italian champion seems to prevail . . . . I do not hold that against Primo. He is ardently Italian . . . I am sure I do the Big Boy no injustice when I state my opinion that anyone who speaks rapturously to him of Italy, Fascism or Mussolini scores a literal K. O. . . . . Primo is a nice fellow, but I think he is a little too easy to convince—the last to get his ear is always right. Eh bien—

In France I followed the 1932-33 Carnera campaigns in the United States. Primo won several tune up bouts in short order and then ran into one of those Maloney-Gains bad decisions when Stanley Poreda got a "home town win" over the Big Boy. The late Ernie Schaaf knocked out Poreda at Madison Square Garden and Duffy arranged a match between the winner and Carnera, the survivor to get the crack at Sharkey's title. Primo stopped Schaaf in the thirteenth round and poor Ernie died a few days later. The falsity of fraud suspicions over that fight was exposed by this most lamentable tragedy. Carnera was exonerated of any criminal responsibility after an inquest that must have been painful indeed to the warm-hearted Primo.

So Carnera got his crack at the title, and, on June 29, 1933, he reached the goal for which he set out back in 1928. As I read the thrilling news in far-off Paris of how Primo had scored a clean-cut knockout of Sharkey in the sixth round at the big Garden Bowl in New York City, I was overjoyed.

My original chimerical IDEA of making a world champion had triumphed. It proved more than "the crack-pot scheme of a crazy little Frenchman." It was a fantastic dream—it is now a reality. So the reader, please, will pardon the pride of my graphic reflection:

I picked up a "forgotten man" in the dust of an obscure village . . . . I made him champion of the world.

See Reveals How Primo Was 'Cut Up'

During Primo's first two American tours (1930-31), this is how our receipts were divided: To Bill Duffy, 20 per cent after deducting expenses. Of the balance, two-thirds to Carnera and one-third to me. Much was said and printed about the Madden or Duffy "mobs" in that connection. I do not know the details of how Duffy paid his assistants, but I believe that Pete the Goat Stone, Frenchy Demange, Walter (Good Time Charley) Friedman, and perhaps Owney Madden got shares of Bill's 20 per cent.

After Primo and I contributed proportionately to our share of the expenses, the Big Boy received about 50 per cent net. He always got at least half of the receipts. In Europe, Carnera was given a two-thirds share.

Some people have accused me of having robbed Primo. I leave it to the reader to judge, after considering that Carnera received hundreds of thousands of dollars, almost entirely through my scheming while he was only a novice.

BIG MANHATTAN RACE REVIVED BY HEARST

By JACK LAWRENCE

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—William Randolph Hearst, through the New York American, announced last night that on Sunday, June 24, he will revive the around-Manhattan motorboat race, an event which has not been held since the summer of 1931. This year's contest will be held by the New York American and the trophies and cash prizes will be offered by Mr. Hearst.

Until 1931 the around-Manhattan Island contest was the most spectacular motorboat event of the year in local waters. It drew the most famous inboard and outboard drivers in the country and was witnessed by thousands of spectators from all of New York's water fronts. Many drivers who today are champions in their respective classes gained their first experience in the annual struggle that took them completely around Manhattan.

Power boat men have always admitted that no course in the country offers so many opportunities for spectacular driving or so many hazards to boats and crews. There has been a general demand for the revival of this event, but nobody took the initiative until Mr. Hearst made his announcement last night.

The race will be open to all classes of inboards and outboards, ranging from the tiny 11-foot skiffs up to the famous gold cup racers. Cash prizes will be put up for the professional drivers and handsome trophies for the amateurs.

The race will be given an international aspect due to the fact that a number of the foreign outboard drivers coming here from England, France, Spain, Hungary, Italy and Sweden to compete for the William Randolph Hearst international outboard championship trophy in Florida next month will remain over to take part in the around-Manhattan Island event.

BIG BOWLING SERIES OPENS

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI

The annual inter-city tenpin matches at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association got under way this afternoon, when three double contests were carded. A team match will be run off in the evening.

Detroit will defend the trophy it won last year at home, while White, of Detroit, will be risking his all-events title. Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Cleveland are the contenders.

In connection with the annual affair, the alley managers and the chairman of each team participating will clash in a special three-game match to be rolled tomorrow morning along with the three singles and two remaining team matches. Total pins will decide the winner. Ed Prozak, of Detroit, won the championship last year, and Louis Marone, P. A. A. alley manager, finished in the runner-up position.

STRIKES AND SPARES

Manchester still leads in the Greater Pittsburgh Duckpin League, according to latest standings released by Secretary J. C. Giles. It has won 45 games and lost 21. Center holds second place, while Climax rests in third. Lachendro sets the pace with an average of 100.29, and Bridgeford is his nearest rival, with 116.1. Tonight's matches follow: B. & G. vs. Center, Elba vs. Climax, Iroquois vs. New Kensington, Manchester vs. Nuss.

With the exception of Iron City and the Silver Toppers, all of the teams in the Metropolitan Tenpin League will be engaging in their second match of the week tonight.

New Manager

J. B. JANSING

Mr. Jansing, new general manager of McCreery & Co., succeeding Mr. Kaufmann. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

JANSING NAMED M'CREERY CHIEF

J. B. Jansing, former district manager of Montgomery, Ward & Co., has been named general manager of McCreery & Co., it was announced today.

Mr. Jansing arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday and assumed his duties at noon. He succeeds Arthur C. Kaufmann, who resigned as general manager and vice president.

Mr. Jansing has spent his whole business life in merchandising and has been with but two organizations during his 20 years in department store work.

STARTED WORK AT 17

He began his work at the age of 17 with the Stewart Dry Goods Company in Louisville, Ky. His first job was in the receiving room. Rapidly promoted from one position to another, he occupied the position of division merchandise manager with that store when he severed his connections with the organization in 1926.

The Stewart store was originally connected with the McCreery store here, and Mr. Jansing declared today that his new position seems like "coming home," although he has only made a few visits to Pittsburgh previously.

WORLD WAR CAPTAIN

He saw 26 months' service during the World War as a captain in the 88th Division. He served in France after training at the First Officers' Training School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis.

Since 1926 he has had charge of 30 stores of Montgomery, Ward & Co., with headquarters in New York and Chicago.

Mr. Jansing will move his family here shortly, he said. His wife, Luella, and son, John Curry, 9, are now in Forest Hills, L. I.

"I believe McCreery's has wonderful possibilities. With its fine reputation, there are great opportunities for increasing its volume."

Norma Talmadge Back From London

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Norma Talmadge, motion picture actress, returned from London last night on the liner Paris after making preliminary plans for her first English picture, to be filmed in two months, she said.

Flowers sent to the boat by George Jessel were pinned on Miss Talmadge's mink coat. She was wearing a black wool dress and a black beret.

ANOTHER OLD FRIEND

Back Again!

HERE it is: Iron City Bock Beer. After an absence of fourteen years, good old Iron City Bock is back again, as good and temptingly delicious as ever. In the old days, Bock was among the first signs of spring and the familiar goat's head was a welcome sight.

After ageing through the long winter months, Iron City Bock Beer is now ready for you in bottles as well as on draught. Order it in restaurants or from your neighborhood dealer. If you do not know the name or phone number of a dealer near you, call SCHenley 7400.

MUSIC

Frances Hall and Rudolph Gruen

Twentieth Century Club

The music committee of the Twentieth Century Club presented Frances Hall and Rudolph Gruen in a two-piano recital at the clubhouse yesterday afternoon. This sort of program has become so much machine music during the last few years that we no longer go to such recitals with much pleasure, but these players had something else to say for themselves.

Mr. Lissfelt

Both pianists obviously have been disciples of the same school, for in spite of the lovely blending of Bauer and Gabrilowitsch in their ensemble playing, this new pair has achieved such an accord in tone quality and rhythmic sensibility that one listens as to one player. So much for the ensemble; it was a joy.

The tone itself is so limpid, so secure, the scale is so nimble, and their larger tone so finely tempered that there was never a jarring moment, not even during some of Gruen's Valse and Humoresque. These were charming in their way, but endless glissandi and chromatics did get to be a little wearisome.

The Swinstead arrangement of the three sonatas of Scarlatti stretched a point for two pianos; there seems to be hardly enough notes to go around, for Scarlatti wrote economically when he made these pieces for solo instrument.

Gruen's arrangement of the Franck Prelude, Fugue and Variation was more successful. But the pearl of the program was, as expected, the delicious Sonata of Mozart which the composer wrote originally as played. Everything seemed right here and I could have sat the rest of the afternoon and listened to repetitions of this one work.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

In spite of all my hurry, it was long after 8 o'clock before I could break away. The shadows of the October evening had closed in and I had a three-quarters of an hour drive before me.

I dug out my old revolver from a bottom drawer. I had never fired it but once, but I took it along. I dusted it off and saw that it was properly loaded.

Then I started my flivver and was off for Towson. I drove rapidly but cautiously, frequently looking back to see if, by chance, anyone was interested in my movements. For some time I kept a suspicious eye on a large black sedan which kept directly behind me, but at Towson it branched off to the York road while I kept on up into the Dulaney Valley.

From this point, I proceeded with even greater care. I dimmed my lights and drove for half a mile, then stopped; drove another half-mile and stopped short around a curve.

Walks to House

At last I was convinced that I was not followed and when I came to a little dirt road leading through the woods in the general direction of the Paige grounds, I ran my car a short distance off the main highway and well up into the bushes. Then I turned off my lights, locked the ignition and all the doors, for I wanted to be sure that I should find it there safe in case we ran into a jam.

This done, I started off as quietly as possible for the house. The road, fortunately, was a fairly wide one, and as long as I stuck to the center, I had little trouble in stumbling along. Ten minutes later, I came out on the crest of a hill overlooking the Paige estate. I could just make out the various buildings looming through the gloom. There was the barn and the outhouses and the big old mansion. Then Murray's home and that of John Paige, and far down in a little hollow, the white cottage that belonged to Ranny.

But they were all dark. Not a twinkle of light anywhere. Even the gardener's house was black. There was something melancholy about the sight of this big empty place, devoid of light and life, as if the spirit of tragedy hovered over it—as indeed it did.

Swiftly and silently, I walked down the hillside, skirted around the desolate old mansion, and so at last I came to the first cellar window on the right of Ranny's cottage.

Carroll Present

Here I stopped and pulled out my gun, alert for any sound. But there was the silence of the grave. Only far away the mournful chanting of the frogs in the Gunpowder marshes.

I peered in the window. All dark and silent.

Was I the first or the last?

I opened it quietly, gave one last look around, and dropped into the blackness below. Remembering Anderson's caution, I gave one sharp whistle, which was instantly answered by a return whistle.

I looked around, trying to accustom my eyes to the darkness. Then I heard a low voice.

"Kay, is that you?"

"Carroll," I stammered. "Carroll, did you speak?"

"Right-o," and I felt a hand on my arm.

"This way," and I felt myself led through the blackness until at last we reached what my feet told me was the coal bin, the floor covered with a small amount of coal.

"Sit down," ordered Carroll, and I dropped on the hard uncomfortable lumps, making a terrific din as I did so.

"I thought you were knocked out," I said in bewilderment.

"Nothing else but," answered Carroll, his voice the merest thread of a whisper. "I was hit pretty hard but not too bad to get here tonight. Anderson wanted me particularly because I am a dead shot." (This was entirely true. Carroll had been the crack shot on the Cornell University rifle team and later on the New York Gun and Rifle Range and had held the outdoor and indoor championship for several years.)

"Who did it, Dickey?" I asked.

"Blest if I know," he answered softly. "But I hope the Inspector's right and I can get a couple of shots at the bird tonight."

Then he reached over and clutched me on the arm.

"The window," he whispered.

I looked and we could just make out a huge shadow lined against the sky.

The window was opened softly and we heard a low whistle.

"The Inspector," said Carroll, and we both gave an answering call.

Thinks of Letter

Anderson dropped into the cellar noiselessly, closed and locked the window after him, and came with no difficulty directly to the bin.

"Is Kay here?" he asked.

"Here, sir," I answered.

"Good!"

"Come have an easy chair," invited Carroll. "This coal is perfectly delightful. One could ask nothing better."

The Inspector laughed gently.

"This is only the start," he said. "Wait and see how it feels after six or seven hours of it!"

Dickey groaned.

Anderson came on into the bin and threw himself down.

"Now listen to me attentively, boys," he began. "Something has happened which I had not counted upon. I've followed Kirk Judson's suggestion and taken a lesson from the ladies."

"What's that?" we both asked.

"Well, I've been thinking over that letter that Mrs. Paige received the morning of her death, and I've been going over in my mind all the places where she could have destroyed it. My own thought is that she probably touched it off in an ashtray or lit a match to it and threw it in one of the open fireplaces. However, she may have thought that the ashes would be noticed—I don't know. Maybe she didn't burn it, at all, and we may find it somewhere."

JUNIOR PATROL

Washington's Birthday is next Thursday, fellows.

He was the first of our great Presidents. He was the general who fought and won the Revolutionary War that made us an independent nation.

He was the great man who rejected the job of being king of America to become its first President—who guided our destiny through the early hard years.

His birthday is a day all American boys and girls should know. Washington left us good advice, but his own life is some of the best advice a boy or girl can learn. Read something about him next Thursday. Even when you have your party remembering him think what his life meant to this country. His faith in our country was all powerful. When weaker men gave up the cause, he had just begun to fight.

Like they do about all great men, many of the things people believe about Washington are not true. He lived so many years ago that legend is now mistaken for truth. For instance, many people used to think that Washington cut down the cherry tree, and then told his father that he did it with his little hatchet because he could not tell a lie.

That story is pure bunk fellows. It simply isn't true. Washington was a truthful, honest man—pure in heart and mind but he didn't cut down the cherry tree.

But it is true that he made a dangerous trip through the country, crossing the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers in the winter time on his way to and from the French forts. He was delivering a message for the Governor of Virginia. A treacherous Indian fired at him. He fell in the icy river, near where the Washington Crossing bridge crosses the Monongahela River now. But he carried on. He completed his duty. Above all, that is probably the most important thing the life of Washington teaches us. He was never a quitter.

Now here is a swell letter from James Scholz, of 1107 Lakewood avenue, Pittsburgh. He writes:

"On Friday we did not have school and I played with my electric train which I got for Christmas. My transformer did not have enough power to make the train move. I want a dog but my mother does not want me to have one. We have a rabbit. We keep it in the back yard."

Perhaps you can get your train fixed, James, maybe even fix it yourself. Do you belong to a Junior Patrol club yet? If not, why not start one of your own?

INTAKE, OUTGO OF CELL

Living things (plants, animals) are built up of one or more units, cells, consisting of matter in living state (protoplasm), enclosed in walls (membranes). Cells perform life functions: motion, food getting, nutrition, respiration, excretion, response to irritation (light, heat, electricity) to maintain life of individual, and reproduction to preserve life of race.

Cells take in, oxidize, excrete matter, representing energy; the difference between intake and outgo energies is transformed into life functions. (General Science)

DESTRUCTION OF JERUSALEM—JEREMIAH LAMENTING—NEBUCHADNEZZAR'S VICTORY

The defeated King Zedekiah, bound to the victor's chariot, his eyes put out, is carried away with his people into slavery (586 B. C.).

The downfall of Jerusalem, the stronghold of the southern portion of the once mighty Solomon's kingdom, marks the climax of the second Babylonian empire under Nebuchadnezzar (604-561 B. C.), the conqueror. He rebuilt Babylon to magnificent splendor; its "Hanging Gardens" went down in history.

The first Babylonian empire, originally called "Plain of the Shinar," was founded probably by Sargon I in the valley of Euphrates—Tigris, Asia (about 2800 B. C.). It reached its height under Hammurapi (2240-2185 (?) B. C.), disintegrating slowly thereafter, until Nebuchadnezzar restored this ancient cradle of civilization anew, surpassing all former magnificence. (World History)

RALEIGH'S EXPEDITION TO ROANOKE, N. C. (1585)

Sir Walter Raleigh received Sir Gilbert, his deceased half brother's patent from Queen Elizabeth, calling for discovery of heathen lands in America. He was not allowed by the queen to participate in the expeditions to the undefined territory, called "Virginia," sending his captains instead, who failed.

A body of settlers, however, led by Sir Richard Greenville, in place of Raleigh, landed on today's Roanoke Island, N. C. (above). Repulsed by the natives, the group deserted the colony soon.

Besides being colonizer, Raleigh was courtier, author and soldier. He was imprisoned on account of court intrigues and jealousies. Largely on his promise to bring gold for King James I from the territory of the Orinoco (South America) without bloodshed, he was freed. Returning sick, after destroying the Spanish colony San Thomas and without gold, he was beheaded (1617). (United States History)

THE TWO-STROKE CYCLE ENGINE

Above: Diagram showing the two-stroke cycle internal combustion engine in both of its strokes. It completes the cycle in one revolution (two strokes of piston).

Second part of first stroke (left): Piston moves upward (in vertical cylinder, where crankshaft is below), compresses gasoline-vapor and air mixture in the cylinder, preparing it for a more effective explosion. At the same time vacuum is created below piston, in the crankcase, where air and gasoline vapor is sucked in through the check valve from carburetor. Before the piston reaches top position (upper dead center), electric sparks flash through the spark plug, igniting the gas-vapor-air mixture, which burns quickly (explosion).

First part of second stroke: Gases of combustion (CO_2,CO) and water vapor, expanding by the released heat (max. temp. cca. 2300°F.), press the piston downward (max. pressure cca. 250 lbs. per sq. in.) This compresses the explosive mixture in the crankcase.

Second part of second stroke (right): Progressing further down, piston sets free first, the exhaust, then transfer ports; through the former the combustion gases escape (toward the silencer); through latter the compressed air-fuel mixture enters from the crankcase.

This charge and exhaust continue also through the first part of the first stroke, until transfer and exhaust ports are again covered by upward moving piston, when compression in cylinder begins.

The deflector on the piston top tends to prevent the mixing of the explosive charge with the burned gases and hinders their escape through the exhaust.

The two-stroke cycle engine is simple (lacks governed valves) and powerful (twice as many explosions as in the four-stroke cycle engine by the same number of turns), but it is wasteful in fuel; hence restricted in use.

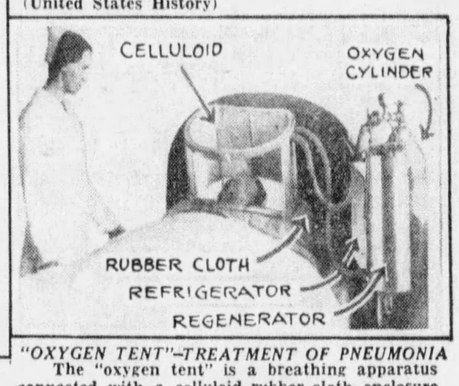
OXYGEN BREATHING APPARATUS

Oxygen breathing apparatus is needed by firemen, mine-rescue and other emergency crews, which sometimes have to work in poisonous gases (above left). Diagram of apparatus at right.

Oxygen is released from the cylinder by a reducing valve, rushes through injector, sucks used air from helmet through exhalation tube and carries it into regenerator. This retains moisture (H_2O) and carbon dioxide (CO_2) by chemical action of caustic soda (NaOH) spread on its baffle plates.

The purified gas mixture enters helmet from regenerator through breathing bag, cooler and inhalating tube for use.



"OXYGEN TENT"—TREATMENT OF PNEUMONIA

The "oxygen tent" is a breathing apparatus connected with a celluloid-rubber-cloth enclosure for the head of the patient (above). The breathing apparatus is combined with an ice refrigerator to remove heat, generated by chemical reaction in the purification process of exhaled air.

Its use reduces mortality of pneumonia—contagious inflammation of the lungs caused by the germ pneumococcus—by averting suffocation, counteracting the decrease in the respiratory area of the inflamed lungs by supplying excess oxygen. (Chemistry) Courtesy of American Atmos Co. (9—III—B)

Three Quick Trips to the Opera

If you hear a man talking about the Metropolitan Opera it's because he can spell it but can't pronounce it.

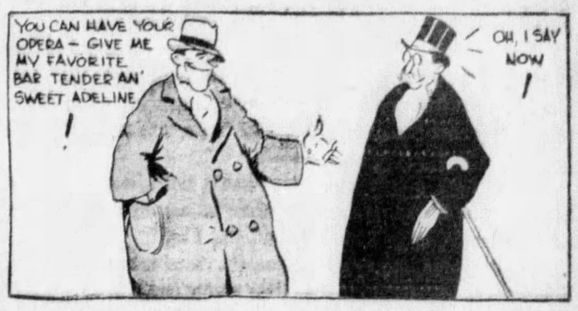
All the theater owners in New York are sore because the Metropolitan can serve bonded glassware on the premises.

Mr. Mulrooney orders no refreshment with entertainment. The managers were hoping he would complete the legal chastisement by adding those indispensable judicial words, "or both."

Mr. Mulrooney omitted that detailed trifle. Therefore, when you see "Ten Nights in a Barroom" with the original cast you can pick out any number of nights from one to 10 and still be wrong.

At the Metropolitan there is a cafe synchronized with the intermissions. After hearing the Rigoletto huddle trying to outbark the Lucia double squad you fill your tank and start hollering for your favorite selection.

You can spot Gatti-Casazza the male chorus and the merry village. And easily top him with your favorite bartender and Sweet Adeline, the little lady who has been serenaded on freight platform, in street cars and outside the gas house. The nicest thing about Adeline is that she never hung around the places where they sing about her.



Although the Metropolitan cafe is not attached to the opera house directly there is no barrier higher than a short walk. You can reach it by easy stages and drive up on foot. Having sipped your blended nectar, gathered by the repeal bees, you can ponder on man's inhumanity to man and wonder if the contralto sold her public utility stocks.

Returning moodily to the opera you discover the second act has brightened considerably. And that there is not only balm in Gilead, but plenty at the stopovers on the way to that enchanted land. If we must have opera we might as well mix it ourselves.

We consider Mr. Mulrooney theoretically correct when he permits paints, oils and varnishes at the opera and forbids the same ingredients at the flea circus.

Therefore, in order that art, temperament and song shall not perish from the earth, we shall renew our yearly subscription to the Metropolitan and perch in the diamond hoss shoe with the elite and the sawdust.

No matter in what language they establish the motif and the referendum, the barkeep speaks English.

Zoning's Fate at Stake

McNair's Attempt to Usurp Authority Is a Threat to Real Estate Values.

If Mayor McNair's attempt to coerce the Board of Adjustment succeeds, Pittsburghers may make up their minds that the protection which their properties have had for nearly 11 years is ended. It means the death knell of zoning.

The crisis has been precipitated by the Mayor's command to the board to "forget the law" and grant a young woman permission to build a garage only 17 feet from the street line, notwithstanding that the legal requirement is 60 feet.

Reminded by the board of Supreme Court decisions upholding the zoning laws, McNair contemptuously dismissed the decisions from consideration as "a bunch of baloney" and pompously announced that he would "take care of the courts."

Pittsburgh property owners should not allow a political accident like McNair to expose their homes to the invasions of junk yards, soap factories, and the like.

They should insist that the present members of the Zoning Board act courageously, just as their predecessors always acted.

A public hearing in the case is to be held in Room 919 in the City-County Building at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Persons interested in the protection to their properties afforded by zoning should attend and demand that the board rebuke the Mayor's flighty attempt to repeal a state law and a city ordinance.

The holding of a public office after many unsuccessful candidacies has gone to the Mayor's head. He has delusions of grandeur. He appears to have taken as his model Louis XIV. That monarch, on being told by the president of the French Parliament that the interests of the state demanded some particular course of procedure, interrupted him to say, "I am the state." That seems to be McNair's idea of himself.

Citizens who cannot attend the hearing tomorrow should make their demands known to the Zoning Board. Its members are: A. G. Holmes, chairman; Eugene L. Connelly and James A. Bortz.

These men are entrusted with a grave responsibility. They must not weaken and take orders from McNair.

Preparedness a Duty

The Defense of the Nation Requires an Adequate Army and Navy.

Gen. Ludendorff, who was Field Marshal Hindenburg's right hand in the Great War, said of the American Army, "It was an improvised Army, a good Army as such, but still an improvised Army."

How could it have been otherwise?

There had been no preparation of our citizens for war service; no realization that for a large Army we should need a great corps of trained officers, both commissioned and non-commissioned.

There had been no study of transport, commissary, or even temporary housing for the hosts that were soon brought within the operation of the selective draft.

Of course, the whole science of combat and the ordering of troops in battle were subjects to which we had given little thought, even the most casual.

The officers in our Regular Army were insufficient in number to meet the need of instruction and leadership, and even they, with a few exceptions, were totally unschooled in the modern science of war as developed on the various European fronts.

The sad truth was that the most frightful war in history found us unprepared!

And yet, almost overnight, we were overtaken by it, engulfed in it, inextricably bound up with its outcome—and all this, despite every effort in our power to maintain neutrality and to abstain from any part in the conflict.

Here is the answer to those who resist the relatively minor expenditure that preparedness involves—modest indeed compared to the cost of war itself. It is an answer to those who refuse to learn from the past, and who lack the foresight or imagination to perceive the indicated perils of the future.

Is it not manifest that we must have a sound and dependable system of defense? That this system must have a foundation in the moral and physical solidarity of our people, and in the sense of individual obligation for service to the nation which is at the root of all patriotism?

We neither need nor want the LARGEST Army, but we must have one that is adequate to the peace needs of the nation. In other words, one that is adequate to the defense of the nation.

We do NOT aim to have the LARGEST NAVY in the world, but one EQUAL to the largest, and THE BEST in point of equipment, personnel and the accessories of a fighting fleet.

And then there is the duty to marshal and conserve the basic strength of the nation—the power of our people as a whole and the strength inherent in their vast material possessions.

This requires vision and organization.

The man-power of the nation is of little value unless disciplined and capable of quickly being mobilized.

Every artery through which the nation's life blood courses must be clean, healthy and sound.

Such is the broad scope of true preparedness. It is a task worthy of us—worthy of Congress and people combined.

It is a duty which must be seen in its true outlines and extent. We must address ourselves to it with our whole energy.

WE CANNOT DELAY!

A Smoke Screen

Mr. Hagmaier Evades the Issue in the School District Consolidation Proposal.

In his address before the convention of Second Class Township Supervisors at Reading, former Representative Louis W. Hagmaier opposed the proposal that little independent school districts, of which we have more than a hundred in Allegheny County alone, be consolidated in the interest of efficiency and economy.

Mr. Hagmaier discoursed eloquently on home rule and undertook to give the impression that "taxation without representation" is threatened. But this, in our opinion, was a smoke screen designed to conceal the real issue, which he evaded.

The real issue may be found in these facts: In one year recently the tax collectors in the school districts in Allegheny County outside of the city charged $186,939 to collect school taxes; but the cost of the collection of a larger amount of school taxes in Pittsburgh that same year was only $37,306.

A good many tax collectors and other school officials would lose their jobs with consolidation of districts.

The Weak Spot in the Wall

(Copyright, 1934.)

Without PREPAREDNESS there can be no such thing as NATIONAL SECURITY.

Gen. Hans Von Seeckt, the German authority, once pointed out in the Hearst newspapers that a nation unprepared to defend its own resources is not likely to develop its industries as it should.

Far-sighted capital wants safety assured when it attaches itself to the soil and becomes a fixture. And an adequate national defense gives not only capital, but the whole people of a country, that feeling of security under which wealth accumulates and civilization improves.

The economic consequences of preparedness may not be easy to discern, but statesmen know that they are very real.

Pacifists may insist that our shores are protected by oceans. But that is not true. Foreign troops have been landed on these shores more than once. And hostile airplanes have added new possibilities of invasion.

UNPREPAREDNESS is the danger spot in national security because it invites WAR.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Thoughts while strolling: Mayor La Guardia indulges those turtle neck twists grandma called "the jittys." The long and short of it—Fannie Brice and her husband, Nick Kenney, the town's best dressed radio editor. Maxine Elliott leaving the Lombardy.

One word description of Doris Duke—chinny. At least 10 people have been pointed out to me as Owney Madden. Those dreamy maids whose lives are devoted to wonder-boying visiting firemen. Arthur Murray has three dance floors going.

What became of Dainty Marie of the trapeze? Lillian Lorraine's touches of gray become her. And what a liquid voice in her Follies hey-dey. Every time I see Carnera's broad shoulders I want to play piggy-back. The elfin in me. Haven't seen Norman Hapgood around for a long time.

One of my favorite people—Kay Brush. That plain clothes man who idles up when you stand too long in front of Cartier's. Whenever I walk into Dunhill's I try to talk like David Ross. Nobody writes a more distinctive hand than Gertrude Lawrence. Unless it's Maybelle Manning.

Charlie Winniger may have snowy hair, but he can still turn a black-flip. Why can't someone turn out a play made to order for Judith Anderson's talents? Will Irwin is plumping up. And Hi Phillips and Harry Evans look alike. What grand magazine covers that Dynevor Rhys is painting.

To my mind Percy Crosby has become one of the highlights of the American scene. Not only for his "Skippy" creations but for various endeavors in art and humanitarian fields. If he believes in an idea he will dig into his own purse to carry it through and he's a valiant defender of the under dog. He is, in glamour, to the art world of his generation what Charles Dana Gibson was in his, and has a twist for the national emotion few artists achieve. I think especially of that poignancy—the one-legged shaver on crutches in a "Skippy" cartoon praying: "I'm not asking for myself God. You know I can take it. But for a lot of kids who ain't going to have much Christmas."

* * *

Then there's Crosby's Christmas card which left so many of us gulpy and shining eyed—a starless Bethlehem cowling in dark gravity with the lines:

Star of the East, shine again
Upon this world of sorrowing men!

For leisurely dining not many places excel the mellow Cafe Lafayette, standing where it has for 30 years. The patronage is never of the Manhattan buzz-fuzz—instead poets, playwrights, novelists, artists. Now and then an Augustus John in smock and tam smoking a Limehouse gasper. In the game room afterward, over coffee and brandy, diners play cubito and dominoes on marble-topped tables. Mark Twain used to drop in when he lived in the red brick around the corner. O. Henry, flushed with a recently arrived magazine check, indulged zest for his favorite entremet, crepes Suzette. Edward Arlington Robinson, shyest American minnesinger, makes his only public appearance there. A waiter has a table cloth upon which he once scribbled a random sonnet. The Lafayette's proprietor offered the $25,000 prize that inspired Lindbergh's flight and deathless fame.

Billy Rose's amusing but slightly honky-tonk after midnight entertainment, combining the more boisterous gerry-mandering of the flashy restaurant of cabaret nudes and theater, called the Casino de Paree, is the only successful venture of the kind since the lamented Midnight Frolic. It is grossing as much, if not more, than Broadway's hit plays and seems especially designed for gentlemen and ladies out for no good.

Gordon Sinclair writes from Cayenne, French Guiana, the capital of the famous "Devil's Island." He attended the first presentation of a talkie for the 5,505 convicts and the film they displayed was, ironically enough, "The Big House." And adds: "Over a guy's cell cot here is pinned your Cosmo essay on 'Grandma.'"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

What Do We Get Out of Life?

"WHAT," says he,
"Do WE GET OUT OF LIFE?"

* * *

WHAT DO WE GET OUT OF LIFE?
That's the oldest human question
And the oldest human peeve.
Millions have asked it;
Millions have answered it;
Yet every day
Each one of us
Asks it anew,
And the older we grow
The more frantically we seek
Our particular answer.
We ask other questions, too,
But always—always—
Muttering in our brains,
Sighing in our hearts,
Snarling in our blood,
That one question
Goes on and on—
"WHAT DO I GET OUT OF LIFE?"

* * *

"WHAT DO I GET OUT OF LIFE?"
You ask that impatiently,
Like a child
Going to a circus.
Even though you are grown,
You think of life
As a circus
Where you should have the right
To see all the side shows;
So you enter life
As you would a circus,
And then sit waiting
For the side-shows to begin.

* * *

"Now,'" you say to yourself,
"I will be happy,
"For I'm at the circus,
"Now I will be excited
"And contented and proud,
"For I am part of life."

* * *

So you sit and wait
For the side-shows to begin,
And they do begin;
Many side-shows begin.
And for a little while
You are excited and happy.
Then slowly it fizzles out;
You grow cold and still;
The show goes on,
But you grow colder
And stiller.
Why is this?
WHY AREN'T YOU GETTING WHAT YOU WANT OUT OF LIFE?

* * *

You aren't getting
What you want out of life,
Because that isn't the way
To get anything out of life.
Life isn't a circus;
You can't get life
By watching it;
Or sitting in the middle of it.
LIFE IS A PROCESS,
NOT A PERFORMANCE.
LIFE IS A PROCESS
THAT HAPPENS INSIDE YOU.

* * *

WHAT DO YOU GET OUT OF LIFE?
YOU GET AS MUCH LIFE
AS YOU YOURSELF LIVE—
JUST THAT MUCH,
AND NO MORE.
Things may happen AROUND you;
Things may happen TO you;
But the only things that count
Are the things
That happen IN you.
The only life we have,
Is the life
That happens in us.

* * *

WHAT DO YOU GET OUT OF LIFE?
You'll get as much as you feel,
As much as you see,
As much as you understand.
The fact that you're born human
Instead of brute or bug
Makes no difference.
Human life is no guarantee
Of rich experience.
HUMAN LIFE
IS NO BETTER THAN LOUSE LIFE
UNLESS WE MAKE IT BETTER.

* * *

WHAT WILL YOU GET OUT OF LIFE?
YOU'LL GET WHAT YOU GIVE.
If you give intelligence,
You'll get understanding.
If you give sympathy,
You'll get tenderness.
If you give courage,
You'll get adventure.
No matter who you are,
Or where you are,
Or what your circumstances,
YOUR REAL LIFE WILL BE WHAT YOU MAKE IT.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

'Poor, Weak Woman!'

When an attractive man manages to reach the age of forty-five without having married at least once, you can safely wager that he is an artful dodger and a master of evasion. The sort who never enters a woman's presence without first looking around for the nearest "exit."

* * *

Because, it is not reasonable to suppose that NO woman ever made up her mind to marry him. And of all the adamantine, irresistible, inexorable things in this world, there is nothing which compares to a WOMAN'S WILL!

* * *

Where did Man ever get the quaint notion that he was the Head of the House? How did he come to think of himself as the sun of the domestic heaven, around which all the feminine satellites revolved? Was he coddled into it, jollied into it or "yes-deared" into it? Or does the fact that he is permitted to sit at the head of the table and do all the heavy work of carving and serving make him feel that he is really the "ruler" of his own domicile?

* * *

A man's will may be strong; but, beside the average woman's will, it is just a piece of gutta percha. A woman's will is made of cast iron. Concrete is pliable beside it. It makes a cannon ball just like a Christmas tree ornament, and an army tank seem almost fragile. Because there ARE things which can deflect a cannon ball or break down an army tank. But, once a woman's WILL is set on anything, nothing on earth can deflect, break or bend it.

* * *

And the sweeter, gentler and more domesticated the woman, the stronger her will and the more persistent her determination to have her own way.

* * *

A woman who has been out in the business or professional world for a few years discovers that she must make concessions and compromises, and becomes more reasonable. When she finds that she can't have her way, she lets go and forgets it. But the dear little home body NEVER gives up!

Long after a man thinks that the question is all settled, and that she has given in and "seen the light" (because she said "Yes, dear"), he discovers that she has just started the battle again on a brand new front. With a woman, a question is NEVER settled until it's settled HER way!

* * *

A man is a good forgetter. He has neither the memory, the patience nor the persistence to hold out against a woman's determination. He states his side of the case or lays down the law—and then forgets it. But you know about "women and elephants." A woman never forgets. She hangs onto her purpose as a puppy hangs onto an old shoe. Years after a man fancies that an argument has been buried, she'll run out and dig it up like a pet bone—and use it as a weapon to get her way.

* * *

Men have bought cars and country houses that they didn't want and couldn't pay for, gone on trips that they dreaded and hated and married women whom they had not the faintest intention of marrying—all because some poor, weak, little woman with a cast iron will and an adamant determination had MADE UP HER MIND that they should do these things!

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Psychic

When something in me shrinks away
From certain voice or eyes,
I do not stop, I do not stay
To question mysteries.
Although it is in wretched taste,
Uncouth and very rude,
I run away in utmost haste
As though by friends pursued.

And, when it happens otherwise,
Somebody comes along
Who with his laughter or his eyes
Turns sighing into song,
Again I make no questionnaire
Of things too deep to see;
I set him out a plate, a chair
And bid him sup with me!

ISN'T IT SO?

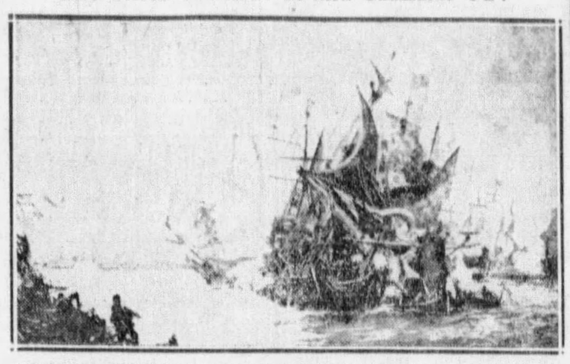
A Picture for Older Men

Let Them Consider It and CHEER UP.



ADMIRAL BLAKE'S GREAT BATTLE WITH THE HOLLANDER VAN TROMP.

This picture, showing a painting by W. L. Wyllie, R. A., gives a dim idea of the great naval battle fought in 1653 between England and Holland.

Admiral Blake, one of whose great victories is shown here, developed a habit of winning battles from Parliament, the army and others from his youth. The interesting thing about him is that he never went to sea UNTIL AFTER HE WAS FIFTY YEARS OF AGE.

He decided against the royalists, blockaded their fleet, captured 17 Portuguese treasure ships and burned three more. Then he captured a French man-of-war for exercise.

The Dutch were having it all their own way on the high seas until Blake, past middle age, undertook to get rid of them. He did it. He carried out the orders of Cromwell wherever Cromwell sent him, and so effectively that the Spaniards, after they had been beaten, it seemed by a miracle, comforted themselves with the thought that they had fought against English devils and not men.

Blake won wherever he went. He did not know what fear meant, fought when ill and wounded, died at sea like a hero, having been of great help to Cromwell in securing his power against foreign countries.

When the worthless Charles the Second came in he had the body of Blake, buried in the Abbey, and the bodies of the mother and daughter of Cromwell dug up and taken outside. That did not hurt Blake's memory, which was the main thing.

The moral of this is: Don't be discouraged because you have passed 50. A man that had never gone to sea became one of England's greatest admirals after that age, a man to compare, almost, with Nelson.

Human Side of the News

Dr. Logan Clendening Believes the Span of Life Is Determined at Its Beginning

By Edwin C. Hill.

TWO very distinguished gentlemen of the medical profession are very much in the human side of the news—Dr. Logan Clendening and Dr. Walter T. Dannreuther. Will Durant, the psychologist, has selected Dr. Clendening's "The Human Body" as among the 100 books he would recommend, if anyone had to strive for an education out of a selected list of books.

Dr. Clendening thinks that most of us fuss too much about our health, that we have exaggerated health fears, and do a lot of worrying that merely makes matters worse. He asks the question:

"Can anyone, by taking thought or care, add to his span of life?"

And replies:

"I do not think so. The fact is that the span of life of any individual, barring accidents, is largely determined at the moment he starts off. The number of years a man or woman lives depends upon the impetus he or she received, being the result, largely, of hereditary factors."

It is true enough, as Dr. Clendening says, that a man is as old as his arteries, but what causes arteries to harden? Alcohol, red meat and salt have been accused, but Clendening notes that some people who go in freely for these things go on to ripe old ages, and others who flee them religiously die of apoplexy and angina in a state of decriptitude at the age of 59.

Exercise and fresh air are supposed to be the sovereign augmenters of long life, says the doctor. He admits that they make one feel better, but he doubts if they promote long life. Theodore Roosevelt and Walter Camp died in their early sixties. On the other hand there are no end of octogenarians who never took a day's exercise in their lives.

"An impartial examination," says Dr. Clendening, "convinced me that nothing anybody does to himself after he is born makes more than a few hours difference at most."

He is not speaking, of course, of drunkards or drug fiends, or people who more or less deliberately wreck themselves.

The Embodiment Of Wisdom

WHEN I was a boy there was one personality in every village and town who seemed to be the embodiment of wisdom and kindliness. No one had so much work to do, but this character—for such he was—never seemed hurried. Always he had time to pause, after professional duties, for a chat about the affairs of the family—grandfather's asthma or grandmother's bad knee—sympathetic, understanding.

There wasn't much, it seemed to us youngsters in an Indiana town, that he didn't know in the way of useful things. He brought us into the world rather neatly and when it came to ushering old folks out of the world he did it in the way that families don't forget.

He could pull a tooth, set a broken limb, cure a fever, subdue long and malignant ills—and all without much fuss and feathers, just as part of the day's work of a man who knew his job. The character I speak of was the old time country doctor, who drove in his buggy, jerking the lines over his patient, amiable mare—drove about all day and frequently much of the night.

* * *

Passing of Family Doctor Lamented

I AM reminded of him—of many old time country doctors that I knew—because of a remarkable address which a very great doctor of New York, Walter T. Dannreuther, a man of international fame, made recently to the Medical Society of the County of New York. For Dr. Dannreuther, possessed of all that modern medical science can give a great practioner, laments the passing of the wise, benevolent, hard-working family doctor—he who was without the urge for quick riches.

And he tells us very bluntly that if the present trend continues—the disproportionate trend toward specialization, instead of the production of doctors better qualified to treat sick people, we are going to suffer for it. The best medical center that any individual can have, says Dr. Dannreuther, is his family doctor's office, and it is better and much more important for the physician to know all about his patient than it is for him to be an expert in the diagnosis and treatment of every disease. More understanding of his patients and less reference to specialists is Dannreuther's emphatic advice.

It is good to hear such common sense and humanity from a great physician, in these days when the cost of medical treatment, for one reason or another has risen to such a height that one sometimes wonders how the poor can ever afford to be ill.
